Unexpected Guests

Even though the bird life is a bit slow right now, I never know when a migrating visitor might drop in, so I make a special seed blend that will appeal to any bird. It has sunflower heart chips, peanuts and safflower seed. I used a tube feeder with a tray. Everyone's happy!

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was megalomaniacal French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte who made the following sage observation: "Four hostile newspapers are more to be feared than a thousand bayonets."

• Orchids are lovely flowers, and many people dedicate years to growing them and finding rare specimens. If you're like most people, though, you probably don't realize that the word orchid comes from the Greek word "orchis," which means "testicle."

• Records show that the town of Helena, Montana, had more millionaires per capita than any other city in the world -- way back in 1888.

• In the early 1970s, a British plumber named John Hancock replaced an antique toilet in the home of John Lennon, then kept the old toilet for the rest of his life. In 2010, after Hancock's death, his heirs put it up for auction. Even the auction house was surprised when the former Beatle's throne fetched a whopping $14,740.

• When you're in an unpopulated area and gaze up at the night sky, it's easy to be overwhelmed by the profusion of stars. But what's truly overwhelming is this: All the stars that are visible from Earth represent only 0.000000000000001 percent of all the stars in the known universe.

• You may not be aware of this, but there is a new fad that is catching on among some groups across the country: tall biking. Hobbyists construct bicycles with normal-sized front and rear wheels, but with frames and seats that extend anywhere from 6 to 10 feet off the ground. Some riders actually use these bikes to joust, using lances made out of PVC pipe and foam rubber. It's unclear, however, exactly how the riders mount their steeds.

Q: I recently found a "Happiness Bird" in custard satin made by Fenton Glass in an antique shop in Joplin, Mo. I was told that it was made in about 1955. I paid $150 for it and was told by a neighbor that it is rare and priceless. -- Betty, Springfield, MO

A: Since you are from the "Show Me" state, I will show you that neighbors aren't necessarily right. According to "Warman's Fenton Glass" by Mark F. Moran, your bird is worth about $40. Incidentally, custard satin was a matte finish introduced by Fenton in 1971 and available in several colors, including Blue, Crystal Velvet, Lime Sherbet and White.

TECHNOLOGY AND CHARITY

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. At this time of year, I'm getting lots of requests for donations to charities operating all over the world. They're all worthy, but how can I tell which ones do the most good?

A. There are a huge number of charities to choose from, which all help the less fortunate in some way. We all want to focus our contributions into those that will spend their funds most effectively.

One characteristic that really stretches the value of a charity dollar, but is seldom recognized, is the use of technology to get the job done. New techniques can make a world of difference.

For example, perhaps you'd like to help eliminate malaria. Now, nobody will contribute to a fund to hire guys to walk around Africa and swat mosquitoes. But bed netting, chemical sprays, sanitation, and water management are all effective things to do to mitigate the suffering promptly. The competent charities stress things like that, putting together management plans that spend wisely.

Looking back, 250 years ago people died of smallpox all the time, and the idea of purposely giving somebody a weak dose of a disease seemed incredible. But that's how vaccines were invented. Looking over today's horizon, Bill Gates is funding research to genetically engineer a mosquito that won't carry the malaria parasite. That's mighty far-reaching, but it may pay off someday.

Often the need is immediate. African drought victims need food and water every day, and charities struggle with the logistics of maintaining a supply line. Donating to such programs may seem like a cycle without an end, and donors get discouraged. We all wish we could find a technological means of breaking the cycle, but drought is a mighty tough problem.

Fortunately, there are lots of instances where managers of a charitable organization took a step back, examined the situation, and came up with an innovative way to solve the problem. An example:

Farmers in one poor country had to dry cacao beans on a flat barren ground, and bugs would crawl into the space and destroy part of the crop during the drying phase. Funded with American donations, the charity paved a parking lot, thus creating a flat surface that bugs couldn't invade. The bean crop was saved, the farmers earned money, and the village thrived. Instead of the recurring annual cost of chemical sprays, the cost was only the price of putting down paving compound once.

Education about technology is probably the very best investment of all for charity dollars. The following describes a completely real case:

Most villagers laughed at Niranjan Pradhan, a 38-year old farmer in India, when he tried something different with his rice crop. Catholic Relief Services teams had described innovative farming methods that would help villagers grow more rice on the same amount of land, but the techniques sounded very strange.

Niranjan used fewer seeds and spaced them farther apart, as CRS had taught him. His rice harvest doubled. "[The new method] earned me an extra 8,000 rupees [$178] profit this season," says Niranjan. "I put this money aside to invest in my three daughters' education and for dowry payments when they get married."

In recent months, a number of farmers from neighboring villages have come to Niranjan for advice. "They saw the results," Niranjan says. "Now they too want to reap the rewards of this exciting technology during the coming paddy season."

The technological component was simply to plant the seeds farther apart, which may seem obvious to an American farmer, but isn't obvious over there. The point is that by educating one farmer, when the word spreads everybody advances.

Drilling a well is a technological improvement that can save women and girls from having to walk six hours a day to distant water holes to bring back water. That can transform vast wastelands. In Australia, the water table is usually only about 100 feet down, but the Aborigines walked around Australia for 40,000 years without knowing that, trekking to infrequent water holes. It costs something to drill a well, but not very much. Drilling wells provides very good "bang for the buck."

Earthquake victims in Haiti are still in great need almost two years later. By contrast, we don't hear much about tsunami victims in Japan, because the Japanese are taking care of their own people. The difference is mostly because of availability of technology.

The old slogan "give a man a fish and you feed him for a day; teach a man how to fish and you feed him for life" has a new twist: By providing technology and often just a little capital investment, you can channel the natural initiative of people into making themselves self-sufficient.

DONATES LOCKS – Maria SanJulian, 5, recently donated her hair to Locks of Love, a public non-profit organization that provides vacuum fitted hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis. SanJulian is the daughter of Michael and Misty SanJulian, Oakland. Locks of Love meets a unique need for children by using donated human hair to create the highest quality hair prosthetics. Most children helped by Locks of Love have lost their hair because of a medical condition called alopecia areata, which has no known cause or cure. Others have suffered severe burns or injuries or endured radiation treatment to the brain stem or other dermatological conditions that result in permanent hair loss. The vacuum fit is designed for children who have experienced a total loss of scalp hair and does not require the use of tape or glue. "The prostheses they provide help to restore self-esteem and confidence, enabling these children to face the world and their peers," said a spokesperson. The organization, which began in 1998, provides the prostheses to children under age 21. These hairpieces require between six and 10 ponytails and take approximately four to six months to manufacture. It is estimated that children make up over 80% of the donors.

EARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

BACKBONE COLLEGE GRADS – Students who participated in and graduated from the Backbone College Program were recognized during a ceremony last week at Garrett College. Backbone Mountain College Program Students Honored At GC Ceremony

Members of the Garrett-Backbone Mountain College Program were honored last week with a graduation ceremony held in the auditorium on the GC McHenry campus.

The 10 men were presented with certificates of completion and recognized for their efforts by GC administrators and faculty, as well as officials from the Maryland Department of Juvenile Services (DJS).

Garrett professor Elizabeth Grant explained the purpose of this community program:

"The Garrett-Backbone College Program, founded in September 2006, represents a collaborative partnership between Garrett College and DJS," she said. "It was built upon the belief that youth are powerful assets for positive social change and that higher education can be a powerful tool for youth who have had little academic success in traditional settings, and many of them believe that they can't succeed in school. It thrills me to see a student realize that he is intelligent and can hold his own on the collegiate level.

"The courses we deliver at Backbone are as rigorous as those on our main campus," she continued, "and once a young man in the program gets a taste of success, his appetite is ravenous! Our hope is that each graduate of the program will continue his education and career aspirations once he leaves Backbone, and our data are encouraging. Since the fall 2006 semester, 180 youth have graduated from the Backbone Mountain College Program, including the December group. Of the 170 students who have already left Backbone, 14 are still in college, three are serving in the military, and 34 are employed. One graduate completed a baccalaureate degree at the University of Delaware, another is attending at UMBC this spring, and one has been accepted at the University of Maryland School of Law, and two more will graduate from community college this year.

"One of the enlisted men has completed two tours in Iraq," she continued, "during which time he won a competition of mental and physical skills, and he will now advance to an Army-wide event."

Grant outlined the structure of the Backbone College program, and said that 10 students in the custody of DJS are selected per semester to take part in the educational experience.

"Backbone college students are housed in a separate dorm site, and current enrollment in the program is limited by the 10-bed capacity of that building," she said. "In 2010, DJS dedicated the lower level of the cabin to classroom space specifically for the college program, and that has been a tremendous improvement."

Typically, Backbone students earn nine college credits during their time in the program, though as many as 15 credits have been completed by Backbone students in a semester

Garrett Staff Participate In Annual Summit

Representatives from Garrett College joined hundreds of faculty and staff members from Maryland's 16 community colleges, education policymakers, and elected officials last week at the Community College of Baltimore County in Catonsville for the second annual Summit on Completion, held by the Maryland Association of Community Colleges. The focus of the daylong conference was on key initiatives and strategies that the colleges are undertaking to improve completion rates.

The inaugural summit on completion, held last year, was organized in response to a White House summit on education at which President Barack Obama issued a challenge to "raise the bar" on graduation expectations. His plan includes substantially increasing the number of community college graduates by 2025.

Twenty-two workshop sessions were scheduled on a broad range of topics, including continuing education and the completion agenda, accelerated studies for adult professionals, use of an online tutorial community, preparing high school students for college level courses, integrating technology into developmental mathematics courses, and mentoring of students.

ertheless, the recidivism rate for Garrett-Backbone College Program graduates is significantly lower than most recidivism rates in the country."

Since the inception of the program, 180 Garrett-Backbone college students have earned over 1,000 college credits. The program is made possible by a grant from DJS.

"It is encouraging that graduates from this program have done well, and their successes underseore the dramatic potential for more cost-effective ways to deal with delinquency," Grant said "Developing competeneies in youth eoupled with the clear expectation of personal responsibility from each young person is a powerful combination that is under-utilized in American youth corrections. Punishment alone is inadequate, does little to deter juvenile delinquency, and does nothing to prepare a young person to succeed as an adult. In an era of shrinking budgets, DJS funding of programs such as the Garrett-Backbone College Program is a wise investment that costs the taxpayer less in the long run, as evidenced by lower rates of recidivism. My goal is to continue to chip away at that number, one group of students at a time."

Garrett College Welding Classes Slated At CTTC

For those who are interested in training for a welding career or expanding their welding skills, Garrett College is offering three classes beginning on Jan. 9, 2012, at the Career Technology Training Center (CTTC) in Accident. Each welding class includes 14 3½-hour sessions offered in the evening.

A team of experienced welders – Joe Ashby, Mike Beachy, and Travis Brenneman – will provide training on stick, metal inert gas (MIG), and gas tungsten arc (referred to as TIG) welding, and a variety of other skills needed to prepare students for the demands of the current workforce.

"We are very fortunate to have three excellent welding instructors with professional welding credentials and sound teaching skills," said Carol Mowbray Brooks, coordinator of the CTTC.

The welding classes offered in the winter session are part of the series of eight classes needed to earn a Garrett College continuing education welding certification. One may call 301-387-3069 to obtain additional information or to register for class.

Goodwill Urging People To Give More Donations

Horizon Goodwill Industries is urging people to donate gently used clothing and other items to their nearest Goodwill retail store or donation center. Garrett County has two stores – one in Grantsville and one in Oakland.

Because of an increase in customer demand in this economy, store inventory is down, while the demand remains high, according to Goodwill.

Items most wanted right now include all types of clothing and textiles: shirts, blouses, jeans, sweaters, business suits, dresses, skirts, sweat suits, coats, shoes, boots, towels, sheets, and blankets. Also needed are various household items, including small kitchen appliances, glassware, dishes, and knick-knacks.

"Donations to Goodwill allow us to provide job training and career services to people with disabilities, welfare recipients, dislocated workers, and other job seekers," said Craig MacLean, president and CEO. "Last year we helped more than 1,500 people with job training, job placement, and other vocational services – the community's support is vital to this effort."

He added that Goodwill has spent decades earning the public's trust, and donors can "rest assured" that their items are going to a reputable organization that has the community's interests at heart.

Donated goods are sold in Goodwill stores and online, with more than 89 percent of revenues going to fund job training, career services, and other efforts. Donations are tax deductible.

Horizon Goodwill Industries is a human service agency and network for not-for-profit businesses. Persons may call 800-435-2480 or visit horizongoodwill.org to find a location near them.

A new dehumidifier can save you $20 a year in energy costs.

Replacing an old dehumidifier with an ENERGY STAR® qualified dehumidifier can save you about $20 per year, or more than $220 over its lifetime. These dehumidifiers are more efficient than conventional models, so they use about 15% less energy. In fact, the energy you save over its lifetime could power an ENERGY STAR qualified refrigerator for five months.

North Garrett FFA Chapter Receives Grant

The North Garrett FFA Chapter in Accident recently received a $3,000 Living to Serve grant to fund its project, Farm to School. The group plans to raise market hogs, grow potatoes, and produce eggs that will be used by the school lunch program. The chapter advisor is Rick McCrobie.

The National FFA Organization recently awarded more than $400,000 in rural youth-development grants to 65 FFA chapters in 19 states across the country.

The Living to Serve grants will continue the outreach to rural youth and will support service-learning projects that impact local community needs. To be eligible for a grant, FFA members must live in a rural area and submit a competitive proposal for a service-learning project which successfully addresses a local issue or need.

The grants are administered by USDA's National Institute for Food and Agriculture (NIFA) through the National FFA Organization.

For more information on the Living to Serve program, persons may visit www.ffa.org/ltsgrants.

The National FFA Organization, formerly known as the Future Farmers of America, is a national youth organization of 506,199 student members. All are preparing for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture.

The National FFA Organization changed to its present name in 1988 in recognition of the growth and diversity of agriculture and agricultural education.

The FFA mission is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth, and career success through agricultural education. The National FFA Organization operates under a federal charter granted by the 81st Congress of the United States, and is an integral part of public instruction in agriculture.

The U.S. Department of Education provides leadership and helps set direction for FFA as a service to state and local agricultural education programs.

Sign-Up Period For Conservation Program Noted

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has announced that the ranking period cut-off date for the Conservation Stewardship Program (CSP) is January 13, 2012. Maryland producers interested in CSP should submit applications to their local NRCS office by the deadline so that their applications can be considered during the first ranking period of 2012.

"CSP is one of our most popular conservation programs, and we expect to receive many applications," NRCS Chief Dave White said. "I encourage all farmers and ranchers who are interested in applying to contact their local NRCS office as soon as possible so they can meet the deadline."

CSP is offered in Maryland through continuous sign-ups. The program provides many conservation benefits, including improvement of water and soil quality, wildlife habit enhancements, and adoption of conservation activities that address the effects of climate change. Eligible lands include cropland, pastureland, rangeland, non-industrial private forestland, and agricultural land under the jurisdiction of an Indian tribe.

A CSP self-screening checklist is available to help potential applicants determine if CSP is suitable for their operation. The checklist highlights basic information about CSP eligibility requirements, contract obligations, and potential payments. It is available from local NRCS offices and on the CSP web page.

As part of the CSP application process, applicants will work with NRCS field personnel to complete the resource inventory using a Conservation Measurement Tool (CMT). The CMT determines the conservation performance for existing and new conservation activities. The applicant's conservation performance will be used to determine eligibility, ranking, and payments.

In 2010 alone, nearly 21,000 applicants enrolled in CSP, putting additional conservation on 25.2 million acres, about the size of the state of Kentucky, to improve water and soil quality, enhance wildlife habitat and address the effects of climate change.

For more information about NRCS conservation programs online, persons are invited to visit http://www.nrcs.usda.gov, or visit their local USDA service center.

GRASSLAND RESERVE PROGRAM RANKING DEADLINE APPROACHING

The Kingwood USDA Service Center is now accepting applications for the Grassland Reserve Program (GRP). Applications may be filed with either the Farm Service Agency (FSA) or the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

GRP is a voluntary program for landowners and operators to protect grazing uses and related conservation values by conserving grassland, including rangeland, pasture land, shrub land, and certain other lands. The program emphasizes support for working grazing operations; enhancement of plant and animal biodiversity; and protection of grassland and land containing shrubs and forbs under threat of conversion. GRP offers producers two options for enrollment: (1) permanent easements or (2) rental agreements for 10-, 15-, or 20-year durations. Restoration agreements are also available.

To participate in GRP, applicants must file payment eligibility, adjusted gross income, and conservation compliance forms with FSA.

Sign-up is on a continuous basis; however, producers wishing to have their applications considered for the first ranking period must file no later than close of business on January 6, 2012. This includes persons who previously filed GRP applications and want them to be reconsidered for approval.

Those wishing to enroll or obtain further information on the Grassland Reserve Program may visit the Kingwood USDA Service Center, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or telephone 304-329-1923.

In Memory of Rich Humberson Jr.

May 3, 1964 — December 11, 2005

My son, "Little Rich" the one that I have been so proud of for so long, the one that taught me more than I taught him, the one that when we would divide anything you would take about 1/3 and give me 2/3. Just a phone call away and I called lots of times. You would come help me every time. You were always there for me and your mom. Son, you led me home lots of nights. Everybody I talk to thinks so much of you and that makes me so happy and so very proud. Son, after your mom passed away, you and your family gave me so much love, kindness, and respect, and I say thanks, and what an honor it is to have you for a son.

Son, you cast a large shadow. I am walking in it and I cannot [illegible] long and neverending road, as is sorrow. Rich, so many unsaid words, so many unfinished things still to do.

We all talk about the one set of footprints in the sand -- Son, when I see that one set, I know that it is when you are carrying me. Son, it has been 6 years since I last gripped your hand and saw your face and clear sky blue eyes. But son, I [illegible] this is what I am waiting for -- to see you and your mom. Son, you were the 11th commandment. Son, the Bible tells me God will only tempt me what I can be tempted. I keep telling Him the load is heavy, "raise me up." Son, it is just like David said, the boy cannot come to me, I shall go to him. Son, I know you are watching me from a far away place, but I keep waiting for you to call, which always says you're just checking in.

Son, I have wished God, I the angel will fly again.

Son, I love you,
Love always, Dad

Several Hunters Are Charged By NRP Officers

Maryland Natural Resource Police (NRP) noted a number of arrests in Garrett County during the deer firearms season.

NRP officers charged Tanner John Hyson, 20, Grantsville, on Nov 18 with spotlighting.

Christopher Will Rhodes, 22, Columbia, was charged Nov 26 with killing a wild turkey during closed season.

Also charged on Nov 26 was John Ray Lee Jr. of Swanton with spotlighting with a weapon. Lee was observed shining the headlights of his vehicle into a field where deer were located. One rifle was seized.

Matthew Lanham Fluharty, 22, of Welcome, and David Michael Murdza, 24, Mechanicsville, were charged Nov 27 with shooting antlerless deer during antlered-only season and for removing hide and head without checking in.

NRP officers charged Aaron Patrick Friend, 18, Friendsville, on Nov 28 with loading weapon in a vehicle, hunting without a license, and hunting without hunter orange.

The NRP charged Richard Allan Wilkinson Jr, 31, Westernport, on Monday with possessing a loaded weapon in a vehicle, failing to report a deer kill, hunting under the influence of alcohol, exceeding the bag limit of deer, driving under the influence of alcohol, driving under the influence of alcohol per se, and driving while impaired by alcohol.

Officers stopped Wilkerson's vehicle for suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol. After the stop, officers found a loaded rifle and fresh deer blood in the truck. They then located a freshly killed deer in Wilkinson's garage. No trial date information was available.

Also on Monday, the NRP charged Clinton Texas Beeman, 20, Elkton, Va., with possessing an antlerless deer during closed season, and Clayton Gaines Morris, 21, Elkton, with possessing a loaded weapon in a vehicle.

Officers found Beeman and Morris on Swamp Road with fresh deer blood and hair and a loaded rifle in the bed of a truck. The investigation revealed that an antlerless deer had been killed on public lands during the white-tailed deer antler season. The deer was seized and donated to a needy family

A trial date of January 25 has been set in the District Court of Maryland for Garrett County

FLL COMPETITION SET AT NORTHERN HIGH SCHOOL – The FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science Technology) LEGO League (FLL) teams invite the public to Northern High School this Saturday, Dec. 17, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. for the Maryland Garrett FLL Qualifier. The event is free of charge. The top teams will advance to the Maryland State FLL Tournament slated at UMBC in Baltimore on Jan. 28. Above is NeXT GEN Team 6095, which has been researching how dog food can give humans salmonella poisoning as a part of the Food Safety FLL theme this season. The team extends thanks to Dr. Anderson of Pineview Veterinary Hospital and Becky Mellinger of Oakland's Tropical World who each took time to talk to the team about their research. In addition to the research, team members have been busy building and programming a robot to perform various missions on the 4' x 8' playing field. In the front row, from left, are Will Baker, Payton Dixon, and Jake Toothman. Back row: Mykenzi Shreve, Tori Miske, and Alanna Kinney. Below is FLL NeXT GEN Team 6094. NeXT GEN members extend thanks to Dr. Harry Swartz, Jessica Steyer, and Alan Lilly for sharing their expertise on growing strawberries in high tunnels. The team proposes growing strawberries in a high tunnel to prevent deer contamination, which could lead to salmonella poisoning. In the front is Patrick Lee. Second row: Ian Bramande and Jonah Facciolli. Back row: Ashton Shreve, Isaac McRoble, and Tony Orr.

Numbers are growing for the Pizza Hut Book-It certificates. A total of 78 have been handed out in the classrooms or during gym at the school. Several students were honored as they had received a certificate last month as well. State's Attorney Files Motion In Rezek Verdict

State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch announced on Tuesday that she has filed in Washington County Circuit Court an Application for Leave to Appeal the Granting of the Motion to Reopen a Closed Post-Conviction Proceeding and the Granting of Post-Conviction Relief in the case of Roberto Oskar Rezek.

Washington County judge Daniel Moylan recently reversed Rezek's 1980 murder conviction in the shooting death of Garrett County sheriff's deputy David Livengood.

"For post-conviction proceedings, there is no automatic right to appeal an adverse decision, but the aggrieved party must ask permission from the Court of Special Appeals to proceed with an appeal," Welch noted.

In the application, she cited a number of errors that she believes Moylan committed.

"If the application is granted, the Office of the Attorney General will pursue the merits of the appeal itself," Welch said.

Judge Fred C. Wright III presided over Rezek's Washington County jury trial more than 30 years ago. Rezek was sentenced to life plus 15 years for first degree murder, robbery, grand larceny, and breaking and entering.

Moylan ruled in November that Wright gave improper jury instructions. Citing two Maryland Court of Appeals decisions, Moylan said Wright's instruction on the law to the jury should have been binding and not advisory.

Moylan noted in his ruling that Wright told the jury, "Anything I say to you about the law . . . is merely advisory and you are in no way bound by them. You may feel free to reject my advice on the law and arrive at your own independent conclusions as to what the law is."

Rezek and his codefendant, Richard Tichnell, had requested a change of venue

GC Commissioners Present Legislative Requests To Sen. Edwards, Del. Beitzel

The Garrett County commissioners presented their 2012 list of legislative requests to Sen. George Edwards and Del. Wendell Beitzel on Tuesday. About 75 residents attended the meeting, which was held at the courthouse in Oakland.

Issues that the county would like the local lawmakers to consider for possible legislation include collective bargaining rights for Local 1834, a new hotel rental tax limit, late fees for unpaid public utilities bills, animal control, and a bill of rights for local correctional officers.

By a majority consensus, the commissioners asked Edwards and Beitzel to draft a bill that would give them legislative authority to mandate collective bargaining for Garrett County Roads Department workers, who are currently represented by the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Council 67, Local 1834.

"You've created history by approving collective bargaining," union representative Jim Bestpitch told the commissioners.

The county has informally recognized the union since the 1970s. Numerous road workers were on hand to hear the commissioners' request.

Beitzel asked the commissioners why they felt the legislation was needed.

"We've conducted collective bargaining with the roads workers for years, and it's been on a voluntary basis," Commission chair Jim Raley said. "When you look at the state of the country and you look at some of the issues that have happened in other places, I think that the gentlemen and ladies in this room just probably want some form of protection that says no matter who the board of commissioners is, no matter who the county administrator is, no matter who the delegate and senator are, they will have the right to continue to bargain."

Commissioner Bob Gatto also favored the collective bargaining issue, while Commissioner Gregan Crawford opposed the idea.

Gatto said since taking office last December he has gotten to know the employees, the union's history, and the issues involved.

"I think they need the security to know that they have this right," Gatto said about the road workers. "We'll continue to sit down and work with them."

Raley noted that a local resolution will need to be written that talks about some of the "nitty gritty" details between the union and the county, including such issues as membership requirements and strikes.

The commissioners also asked for legislation that would give them authority to set the hotel rental tax rate limit at 6 percent. According to current state codes, the county may not set a hotel rental tax rate that exceeds 5 percent. The current rate is 5 percent.

County administrator Monty Pagenhardt said increasing the tax limit did not

Oakland Man Receives 25-Year Prison Sentence

A 22-year-old Oakland area resident was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court on Monday to a total of 25 years in the Division of Corrections for five counts of first-degree burglary. Joshua Eugene Tasker was also ordered to pay over $3,800 in restitution.

In a separate case, an additional year of incarceration was imposed for a possession of marijuana charge, which the court suspended.

Tasker was identified by Garrett County Sheriff's Office investigators as the person who entered a number of Oakland area residences and businesses in the fall of 2010. He was arrested in October, charged in four cases with burglary and in two cases with theft, and later posted bond. In April 2011, he was arrested and charged again with two burglaries and two attempted burglaries that occurred in March.

The drug charge was the result of an event that occurred in June 2010, where Oakland City Police sheriff's deputies responded to the drive-through of a local bank when personnel arriving for work located a vehicle in which both occupants were asleep. Tasker was the passenger, and officers speaking with him located a marijuana pipe with marijuana residue on his seat in the vehicle.

Tasker had pleaded guilty

Sen. Edwards, Del. Beitzel Hold Their Annual Prelegislative Forum

Sen. George Edwards and Del. Wendell Beitzel held their annual prelegislative forum on Saturday morning at Garrett College. More than 100 people attended the event, with about a dozen of them expressing their thoughts about the upcoming General Assembly session, scheduled to begin on Jan. 11, 2012, in Annapolis.

"We're dealing with some tough economic times, and that's having an impact on everything we do – not only legislatively but in our lives," Betizel said.

He indicated that the state's $1 billion structural budget deficit will once again have a major impact on programs and funding mechanisms that come through the county.

Edwards noted the state legislature works on a committee system. Bills that receive favorable reports from their assigned committees will most likely be approved by the House and Senate, while those deemed unfavorable are rarely approved. The senator stressed, therefore, that residents express their concerns about proposed legislation to the committees.

"You've got to work the committees," Edwards said about making an impact on bill passage/rejection.

The senator indicated he and Beitzel needed that help in "battling" for or against certain issues, such as the Chesapeake Bay Restoration Fee. He noted that some legislators want to double, triple, or even quadruple the "flush" fee, increasing it from $30 to

Two Sentenced In Federal Court For Distribution Charges

Two Oakland men were recently sentenced by Judge Benson E. Legg in U.S. Federal District Court of the Northern Division of Baltimore on distribution of narcotics charges. The charges stem from an investigation by Garrett County sheriff's deputies and agents of the Drug Enforcement Agency following the 2009 death of a 20-year-old Oakland man.

Brandon Mark Proudfoot, 25, was arrested and federally charged with distribution of methadone on Dec. 16, 2010, along with Deven Richard Brown, 28, who was federally charged with distribution of hydrocodone. Both pleaded guilty in federal court to distributing narcotics to the victim prior to his death.

Proudfoot appeared before Judge Legg last Thursday and was sentenced to three years of supervised release with one year of home confinement. Brown was sentenced on June 20 to one year of incarceration with three years of supervised release. The case was prosecuted by Ayn Ducao, U.S. Attorney's Office.

$1.9M Allocated For Jennings Randolph Lake Maintenance

U.S. Senator Barbara A. Mikulski announced Monday that $51.7 million for U.S. Army Corps of Engineers projects throughout Maryland has been secured in the fiscal year 2012 Energy and Water Development Appropriations Bill.

With a vote of 70-30, the bill was passed by the full Senate as part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act. The House also approved the act with a vote of 296-121.

The spending bill includes funding for the following U.S. Army Corps of Engineers projects:

• $1.9 million for the operation and maintenance of Jennings Randolph Lake in Garrett County, which provides flood control and recreation to western Maryland and water quality and water supply for Montgomery and Prince George's counties.

• $18.3 million for the C&D Canal for annual maintenance dredging of its shipping channels, which serves as a shortcut for vessels traveling between Baltimore and points north.

• $11.8 million for the continuation of the Poplar Island environmental restoration project, which is taking clean dredged materials from the shipping lanes leading to the Port of Baltimore and using it to stabilize the shoreline, create habitat areas, and restore the wetlands of one of the Chesapeake Bay's most valuable island ecosystems.

• $2.45 million for the Chesapeake Bay Oyster Restoration program to continue efforts to increase the oyster population in the Chesapeake Bay by restoring oyster habitat, creating new reefs, and planting disease-free oysters

Holiday Closing

Offices of The Republican will close on Friday, Dec. 23, at 3 p.m. in observance of the Christmas holiday. Offices will reopen on Tuesday, Dec. 27, at 8 a.m. News and advertising deadlines will remain the same.

WORDS ARE HARDLY NEEDED – indeed, this is a scene that speaks for itself, a lovely moment in time, a cold December evening, quiet except for the telltale light on in the house. Someone was busy. Making Christmas cookies, perhaps? Wrapping gifts? Signing cards? It certainly is the time of year for any and all. Here's hoping all our readers are enjoying the tasks of this holiday season, as they prepare for the big day. This was taken by Lisa Broadwater along Rt. 219 in Accident.

Woman Found Guilty On Theft Charges, Sentenced To Six Months

An Oakland woman was sentenced to six months suspended by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert in a recent Garrett County District Court hearing.

Larissa Kay Kitzmiller, 20, was found guilty on theft less than $1,000 and conspiracy to issue false documents charges. She was also sentenced to three years of supervised probation to be monitored by the Maryland Division of Parole and Probation. Kitzmiller reportedly had three checks cashed in her name after they had been stolen from the Mtn. Top Crisis Pregnancy Center, Loch Lynn. The checks were in the amounts of $500, $400, and $350.

She was allegedly given the checks by Holly Marie Anderson, 26, Oakland, who had reportedly stolen several checks and had Kitzmiller cash them in her name. She was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in August. She was not prosecuted on two counts of conspiracy to issue false documents, three counts of theft less than $1,000, conspiracy theft of less than $1,000, and theft scheme - $1K to $10K charges. Anderson has yet to be tried for the incident.

In other court news, Christopher Alexander Baumann, 21, and Derek Michael Papa, 18, both of Oakland, were each found guilty on a theft of $1,000 to $10,000 charge that stemmed from an incident investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies over the course of two months last summer. Each was sentenced to 60 days suspended and one year of unsupervised probation.

Both men were involved in the theft of several pieces of gold jewelry from an Oakland home. They then allegedly sold the jewelry to Helbig's Jewelers, Oakland, for the sum of nearly $2,000. Both were not prosecuted on first-degree burglary and conspiracy theft $1,000 to $10,000 charges.

A third suspect, Ashley Lynn Whitacre, 21, Kitzmiller, was charged and found guilty on a theft less than $1,000 charge that stemmed from the same incident. She reportedly sold a stolen bracelet to Helbig's under a false name. The bracelet was allegedly taken from the same Oakland victim. Whitacre was sentenced to 60 days suspended and placed on one year of unsupervised probation.

Austin Thomas Helm, 26, Arlington, Va., was given a probation before judgment (PBJ) verdict on a possession not marijuana charge that stemmed from a traffic stop by Maryland State Police in July. He was placed on 18 months of unsupervised probation and fined $500, with $250 suspended. Helm was reportedly one of four people in a vehicle stopped on I-68 for a speeding violation. A glass smoking bong, two pipes, and a quantity of marijuana, psilocybin mushrooms, and methadone pills were recovered in a search of the vehicle. Helm was not prosecuted on possession not marijuana, possession of marijuana, and possession of paraphernalia charges.

Joshua Todd Culp, 30, Mt. Storm, W.Va., was not prosecuted on first-degree burglary, fourth-degree burglary, burglary – fourth degree with tools, and malicious destruction of property plus $500 value charges. Culp was reportedly one of two suspects developed in numerous burglaries and thefts of electronics in the Deep Creek Lake area over the course of the summer months. Each break-in was done by forced entry through the front door, damaging each home in the process.

Melanie Gabrielle Cole, 20, Taneytown, was not prosecuted on a possession of paraphernalia charge that stemmed from a July traffic stop by Maryland State Police.

Betty Louise Dye, 22, residence unknown, was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a physical altercation in October, during which Dye had reportedly threatened to stab herself. When an adult female tried to get the weapon from her, both women were injured.

David Milton Canan, 30, Grantsville, was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a domestic dispute in May, investigated by MSP.

John Glen Wiland, 23, Frostburg, was not prosecuted on disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace charges that stem from an August incident at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Garrett County sheriff's deputies received a complaint of an intoxicated male striking livestock with a closed fist.

Christina Michelle Moon, 18, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a September domestic dispute investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

MSP Seeking Info On Burglary At Accident Home

Maryland State Police are seeking information concerning a burglary that occurred at a Teaberry Lane, Accident, home.

Sometime between Nov. 6 and Nov. 10, unknown suspect(s) entered the residence and removed several electronics, including game systems and multiple games. A large quantity of DVDs were also taken from the home. The house was reportedly rummaged through by the suspect(s).

Anyone with information is asked to contact Tfc. VonStein, MSP McHenry Barrack, at 301-387-1101. Callers may remain anonymous.

STATE LEGO QUALIFIER HELD AT NHS – A state qualifying round in LEGO competition was held locally for the first time Saturday at Northern High School, where 18 FIRST LEGO League (FLL) robotics teams competed for positions at the state contest, slated for next month. About 145 students and their coaches took part in the event, held in the school gymnasium and pictured above. Six local teams will move on to the state contest. See story.

State LEGO League Qualifier Held At Northern High School

Eighteen FIRST LEGO League (FLL) robotics teams competed at a Maryland state FLL championship qualification tournament hosted by Northern Garrett High School this past Saturday. Approximately 145 students in teams of six to eight members, from Garrett County as well as from across Maryland, participated in the event.

Garrett Container Systems Inc. of Accident, Constellation Energy Inc., and the Garrett County Board of Education sponsored the Garrett County qualifier The local team FIRST Robotics (#1629) was instrumental in making the event a success, a spokesperson said.

Of the 18 teams participating last Saturday, six qualified to go on to compete at the Maryland State FLL Championship at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County Campus (UMBC), on Saturday, Jan. 28, 2012 Six teams from Garrett County qualified for the state championship.

The Garrett County FLL tournament is one of 13 qualification events throughout the state of Maryland to be held between now and Jan 21 Out of more than 200 teams currently competing in qualifiers, 64 teams will compete at the state tournament.

Interim superintendent of schools Sue Waggoner gave opening remarks at the local event to welcome teams and extend best wishes. UMBC graduate student Kelly Roulette and Maryland state FLL judge advisor John Schnell attended the event to lend their support. Roulette has been tasked with coordinating the 13 qualification events across Maryland on behalf of UMBC.

Event coordinator Sandy Rodeheaver credited the success of the event to the many volunteers and to the students and coaches being ready

"The teams and their coaches were well-prepared for this event," Rodeheaver said. "All demonstrated gracious professionalism, which is the cornerstone of the FIRST philosophy."

Top honors went to Accident Elementary School's RoboPups, the team that received the first-place Champion's Award. The Fiery Snowbricks team from Northern Middle School was the second place finalist for the Champion's Award.

Other teams participating from Garrett County included the K-Town Fuzzballs from Kitzmiller Elementary, Beef Busters from Northern Middle, Pink Ice from Northern Middle, NeXT GEN 6094 and NeXT GEN 6095 from Southern Middle, Heart of the Wolf from Route 40 Elementary, Technominds from Broad Ford Elementary, and the Phantoms, a homeschooled team.

Pink Ice, NeXT GEN 6094, Fiery Snowbricks, Technominds, and the Phantoms will join the RoboPups to compete at the state championship next month.

FIRST LEGO League is a robotics program that targets students 9 through 14 years of age and is designed to inspire young people to pursue science and technology related fields, a spokesperson said. Garrett County students have been participating in FLL for the past decade as a school-sponsored extracurricular activity meeting evenings and weekends.

Local teams expressed thanks to their schools, mentors, and the Garrett County Board of Education for support in this endeavor.

For more information about the LEGO teams and activities, persons may to go to usfirst.org, or to the local team's site at www.team1629.com mean that the commissioners plan to raise the rate to 6 percent

The commissioners also requested legislation that would allow the GC Department of Public Utilities to assess a late fee on water and sewer quarterly bills. The county currently does not have the authority to impose such a fee

"We have a lot of problems with people not paying their water and sewer service," Pagenhardt said. "This (late fee) would be a little incentive to get people to pay"

He noted the fee would generate additional revenue and help offset the cost of producing and mailing past due billings

Edwards and Beitzel were also asked to introduce legislation to add Garrett County to the state's Correctional Officers' Bill of Rights. The amendment would provide local correctional officers with certain rights pertaining to employment, investigation, and discipline

Pagenhardt noted that the county is included in the Law Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights, but not the Correctional Officers' Bill of Rights.

The commissioners also requested that four items be added to state/local provisions that would strengthen the county's authority in dealing with animal issues. The proposed amendments were compiled from discussions between county attorney Mike Getty, GC Animal Shelter manager Bonnie Zimmerman, and GC Animal Issues Advisory Commission members.

"From a legal perspective, we need to make sure that our [animal] ordinance has a firm legal standing in statutory authority," said advisory commission member Rodney Glotfelty about the need for the legislation

One amendment would allow the commissioners, through the local animal [illegible] ordinance, to provide for the regulation, humane treatment, and keeping of domestic animals. That would include the ability to assess a penalty for an ordinance violation of imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding 30 days or a fine not exceeding $1,000, or both.

The second amendment would include Garrett County within the provisions of Section 10-609(b) of the state code. This would give the county animal control officer the authority to make an arrest under the circumstances set forth in the state code.

The third amendment would include Garrett County in Article 24, Section 11-504(i). This would give the county the authority to deal with animals at large.

A fourth amendment would give the county the right to deal with barking dog complaints.

Edwards said he and Beitzel will discuss all of the county's requests and confer with the commissioners and county attorney once the bills have been drafted. The senator asked that if anyone has any other legislative issues they would like addressed to contact him or Beitzel before the end of January.

The 430th General Assembly session begins in Annapolis on Jan. 11, 2012.

Report Says Maryland Falls Down In Providing Smokers Resources To Quit

by Emily Hooper
Capital News Service

Smokers in Maryland aren't provided enough help to quit, according to a new report by the American Lung Association.

Maryland ranks third from the bottom of all states in providing resources to help smokers quit, according to the association.

The findings came as a surprise to Maryland health officials, said Frances Phillips, deputy secretary for Public Health Services at the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene

"We don't think it projects the whole picture of what's going on in Maryland by any means," said Phillips. "Maryland is doing really well, particularly compared to other states."

Maryland has cut the smoking rate more than 30 percent over the last 10 years – double the national average, according to Vincent DeMarco of Maryland Citizens' Health Initiative. It now has the fifth-lowest smoking rate in the country – significantly lower than some of the reports' highest ranking states.

For example, Oklahoma, which ranks fourth from the top in resources, has one of the highest smoking rates in the country at 24.7 percent of the adult population. Only 15 percent of Marylanders smoke, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

However, the report didn't consider smoking rates. The rankings were largely based on state-funded tobacco prevention and cessation programs, which Maryland lacks.

Smoking has been proven to greatly increase the risk of strokes, lung cancer, and coronary heart disease, the leading cause of death in the United States.

DeMarco points to the state's tobacco tax and smoke-free law as examples of its commitment to reducing the number of smokers.

While these measures have encouraged people to stop smoking, "what they need is help with cessation advice, an active line to call and low-income individuals need help with patches and accessories to help quit," DeMarco said.

Maryland is one of two states without tobacco cessation benefits for state employees. The other state is Louisiana.

"I don't understand it personally because Maryland has a vast interest in public health," Williams said.

Tobacco prevention programs are another area where "Maryland isn't doing great," she said.

Funding for such programs has fallen significantly in the last few years. Of an estimated $550 million in tobacco-generated revenue from settlement payments and tobacco taxes, only .8 percent is spent on tobacco prevention programs, according to a report by the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids

The Real Culprit...

For the past month or so our circulation manager has been fielding call after call from our subscribers whose copies of this newspaper are either arriving two or three weeks late, or not arriving at all. Despite the fact that our newspapers almost without fail leave our pressroom at exactly the same time every Thursday, for a host of reasons that we don't understand, they are not being delivered by the U.S. Postal Service in a timely manner.

The delivery problems are not – are not – the fault of the personnel at the Oakland Post Office through which our paper is mailed each week, but lie somewhere farther down the USPS chain, with the most recent bottleneck apparently being caused by the closure of the Frederick postal distribution center. One can only imagine what will happen when the Cumberland center also closes this coming spring as proposed. These closures are among the drastic steps being taken by the USPS, which is on the verge of bankruptcy.

However, the purpose of this column today is not to continue to sling criticism at the USPS, for according to consumer reporter and author Bob Sullivan, the real culprit in this mess is Congress. (Note the look of surprise on this typeface.)

Sullivan contends that, while it appears that the Postal Service is in dire need of a U.S. Government bailout, in fact, the Postal Service is currently bailing out the government. He alleges that politicians have been raiding Postal Service revenues for years, using them to make the federal deficit appear smaller than it really is. "The fiscal gyrations are so twisted that the Postal Service is right now forced to prepay health care benefits for employees the agency hasn't even hired yet – in fact, for many future employees who haven't even been born yet – all to artificially shrink the federal deficit," Sullivan writes.

While Sullivan acknowledges that the Internet is taking a significant toll on USPS revenues, he alleges that it is the "crushing accounting tricks, not the cost of delivering mail, that have pushed this 200-year-old institution to the brink."

He reports that the real reason for the huge red numbers is that the Postal Service is being forced to pre-pay health benefits for the next 75 years, but pay the full amount within a span of just 10 years. In the past four years, those prepayments have totaled $21 billion, while the agency's deficit during that time is about $20 billion. Obviously, without these prepayments, the Postal Service would be in the black, and the various cutbacks and proposed cutbacks in service would not even be necessary.

"An entirely manufactured crisis" is how Ralph Nader described the situation. Jim Sauber, chief of staff of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said that the Postal Service would have no trouble balancing its own budget if Congress and the Treasury Department stopped adding billions to its annual expenses through "fiscal maneuvering."

There is not sufficient space here to provide the details as to why and how the Postal Service got in this jam, but persons can get those by reading Sullivan's entire article online at http://redtape.msnbc.msn.com/_news/2011/10/07/8191425-twisted-government-accounting-behind-postal-service-woes.

Just one more reason that the current general public opinion of Congress is at an all-time low.

To the Editor:

These are challenging times for many families throughout our region. A poor economy has robbed many people of their homes, jobs, and basic necessities. This holiday season please think of your personal blessings and consider helping those less fortunate right here in our community.

Think about the "power of your dollar." Each pay day, your $1 could buy a soda, a coffee, a bag of chips, or a lottery ticket.

Or your $1 per pay could make life-altering changes: provide after-school and summer mentoring programs, provide food for two families for more than three days, and/or provide life-saving medications.

Your gift to United Way is more powerful than you can imagine – 99 cents of every dollar goes to work where you live – addressing major needs in our community – and your gift is tax deductible.

Please consider sending a tax-deductible contribution or pledge to United Way of Garrett County, P.O. Box 394, Oakland, MD 21550. Or if you have payroll deduction, $1 per pay can make such a difference. If everyone would give just $1 per pay, we would meet our need and make our goal. It's that easy.

If you have already given or made a pledge, please accept our heartfelt thanks and appreciation.

Sincerely,
Robin Murray,

To the Editor:

The holidays are about memories, reliving old ones and making new.

Think back to your childhood. Can you recall receiving what you thought was the perfect gift? You may still have it or it might be long gone. Although it's a happy memory, was it the perfect gift?

Ask a cancer survivor or a trauma victim to describe the perfect gift, and many would tell you the perfect gift doesn't come in a box. It's a lifesaving blood donation.

Blood is often needed for traumas, heart surgeries, joint-replacement surgeries, organ transplants, premature babies, leukemia, cancer treatments, and much more. Since there is no substitute for human blood, these patients rely on volunteer blood donors like you to provide the blood products they need to survive.

When you donate blood, you give the perfect gift – another hug, another laugh, another smile, another chance – to someone in need of blood.

Think outside the box this holiday season. The perfect gift is at your nearest American Red Cross blood drive or blood donation center. And, unlike the latest fashion trend, video game, or golf club, the perfect gift costs nothing but an hour of your time.

Give the perfect gift and help a family member, friend, or someone you've never met unwrap a lifetime of memories.

For more information or to make an appointment to donate, please go online to redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS.

Sincerely,
John A. Hagins, CEO

To the Editor:

I am pleased to share more great news about Maryland public education! A few days ago, the federal government announced that Maryland has been was awarded a very competitive Race to the Top Early Learning Challenge Grant (RTTT-ELC) to further strengthen its acclaimed early childhood programs. The award is designed to narrow the school readiness gap for children in poverty, English language learners, and those with disabilities.

Maryland is one of only nine states awarded the grant. The others are California, Delaware, Massachusetts, Minnesota, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, and Washington. Thirty-five states, plus D.C. and Puerto Rico, sent in applications.

I want to recognize and thank the scores of early childhood and K-12 education stakeholders who collaborated on this successful grant proposal. Maryland is very fortunate to have had so much support from so many state and local agencies, associations, and others interested in early childhood education.

Maryland will receive $50 million over four years. The new award builds on the success of Maryland's Race to the Top program. In August 2010, Maryland was awarded a federal Race to the Top grant, which carried with it $250 million over four years to boost our school reform efforts.

Maryland has a nationally recognized early childhood development program, providing unique early learning opportunities, strong oversight of childcare, and other programs designed to give the state's youngest learners a leg up in school. This newest grant award will build an even better academic foundation for our children. When students enter kindergarten with strong learning habits, the stage is set for future success.

Maryland remains the nation's #1 public school system, and it's our goal to continue implementing strategic reforms. Working together, we will deliver a world-class education that prepares our students for global competition and success in the world of work and beyond.

Sincerely,
Bernard J. Sadusky,
Ed.D.
Interim State Superintendent of Schools

To the Editor:

I am the parent of a child who attends Yough Glades Elementary School. Monday I tried to attend my child's Christmas program and was very upset with the arrangements of the school's parking and seating. I missed the beginning of the program as I had to park at the veterinarian's office up the street from the school. I did not have a place to sit down. I was forced to stand next to another upset parent who had trouble seeing around me and the crowd of people. I could not see the stage because of the number of people attending.

My little girl was excited to know her mother was going to take time from work to attend the program. I was so uncomfortable and could not see any of the performance, so I left, wondering if she would know I was there or not. I knew I would not be able to tell her what her role was in the program since I could not even see her when she came on stage. I left, crying and disappointed. I'm sure my child felt the same way when she tried to look for me and could not see me. I am only asking if there could be some improvements so that everyone can attend and can physically see the performances.

My suggestions are as follows: Make it an all-day thing, split up between grades (K-2)(3-5). Have it on a Saturday at the high school. Have it over a period of days. How about buying the empty lot and making it extra parking?

Then your talking of closing other schools in the county. Where are you going to put those children? It's unfair! Unfair to all in the county, children and parents. There is no room the way it is now and you're going to squeeze more children into already crowded schools.

Not a good thing at all!

This letter was sent to the board of education and the commissioners' office. If you feel the same, do the same!

To the Editor:

Thoreau said, "Simplify!" Let's try it.

Think of America as one gigantic chessboard. On the front lines of either side are the pawns, the first to be sacrificed in the game. There are bishops ready to strike as needed, knights, who some think of as defensive, even though they are often used offensively. Rooks (castles) that range horizontally and vertically over unobstructed terrain. A queen that rambles all over the board. A king that can move slightly to the right, left, or back, and on rare occasions forward.

With a bit of allegorical thinking we see that pawns are the people, the first to be used (literally) and eliminated. The knights represent the New Pinkertons, i.e., police, FBI, Homeland Security, CIA, the military, various and sundry so-called "intelligence agencies," and other mendacious schemers whose main function is protecting big business, politicians, and other crooks. A caveat – they're not all crooks; it just seems like it because of their disproportionate power. The game is rigged!

The bishops represent organized religion – all of it. Castles are all of the military installations that the U.S. maintains throughout the world. The queen can be viewed as a roving ambassadoress.

The king doesn't do much of anything, not unlike a CEO, president, or any other high ranking person. He needs protection while he has intercourse (conversation) with the people.

This country needs a new game with new rules. One that everyone can play and enjoy.

We need construction, not destruction; sharing and caring, not greed and aggression.

Games of laughter instead of footbrawl and basketbrawl.

We need to excavate until we reach our original foundation.

"Truth and love must prevail over lies and hatred." –Vaclav Havel.

Facts for a nonsensical clown.

Dear Santa, Could you please replace the sugar plums in Mr. Kauffman's head with these facts!

Fact – Newt Gingrich admitted adulterer!

Fact – Newt Gingrich reprimanded and fined $300,000 by U.S. House of Representatives!

Fact – Newt Gingrich proposed several times to have poor (meaning black) kids to be janitors in their schools!

Fact – Herman Cain serially accused of sexual abuse, including a cash settlement!

Fact – Herman Cain documented 13-year affair and dropped out of the presidential race!

Fact – Tom DeLay (R-Texas) convicted and sentenced to three years for money laundering.

Santa, if you can't get the sugar plums out of Mr Kauffman's head, could you use your "Santa Magic" to delete my letters to the editor from Mr. Kauffman's edition of The Republican? I don't want him to get upset, because it seems he is like a moth drawn to the light when he reads some of my letters, and he gets burnt by facts he doesn't like. I don't want to upset him with factual information, so could you put a cartoon of Goofy in place of my letters?

I have an idea for a bumper sticker: "It takes malarkey to be a Republican in Garrett County."

Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year to all!

Pictured below, from left, are fourth grader Katelynne Field, first graders Olivia Miller and Anna Robinson, and Anna's mother Sandy hard at work on some peanut butter blossoms.

CHRISTMAS FRUIT DONATION MADE – Red Rock Enterprises, Friendsville, recently donated 14 cases of oranges, tangerines, and tangelos to the Goodwill Retirement Community. Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

It is quite confusing to get ahold of what the Republican Party stands for anymore. One of the best things about keeping national spending on health care is to allow more elderly people to stay in their own homes and not go into nursing homes. They do need some help, and since most home care workers are paid less than minimum wage, even those working 70 hours every week are not eligible for overtime pay

I need that kind of help, and I am very lucky that I qualify for a Maryland state Social Services program that pays my part-time house work helper, Naomi Beitzel, She is worth the pay She is a valuable part of my life. Since she works only three hours most weeks, I guess I could just barely pay her wage.

We need many more people like Naomi, and they are around. But the program she works for does not pay for personal care, like help with bathing. For that, I rely on a few helpful friends. It is not a hard job to help me get a bath. It does not involve heavy lifting.

Another thing that I really need help with is finding a driver to take me wherever I need to go. That is obviously much harder during the winter. But I could not live in either an assisted living facility or a nursing home, and I don't need that much help.

Both sets of my grandparents were very lucky because they had help from family members. Nannie and Pap were able to live the last few years in the home of their daughter Jane Adam, an RN in Cumberland. Their failing health required that type of qualified assistance.

My Glotfelty grandparents lived with their youngest son Dale with a live-in housekeeper, a fairly elderly Amish lady named Alma Orendorf. But it gave her a comfortable home, and she became part of our family When it was necessary, I helped my grandmother get a bath. And a couple of aunts regularly came up and did some of the extra heavy work. That worked perfectly My siblings and I regularly stopped by almost daily. One time my grandfather took a fall in the bathroom, and I was able to get him up and into his wheelchair.

I am listening to a discussion about what American people expect in a president, and that their relationships with their spouses matter. Many Americans seem to accept divorce, but the problem with Gingrich is that he divorced a couple wives. Everyone has known for a long time about the history of Gingrich as a husband, but many voters seem to be able to ignore it, even those "Family Values" voters. Why? Do they believe that the essential quality of character doesn't matter in a leader?

I believe it does matter. With such inability to keep sacred vows, do they think they would be more likely to live up to their oath of office?

I'm sure you've heard the expression about a "pain in the neck." That is what I am now dealing with between the back of my neck and the top of my back. That is on top of the relentless pain from where the surgeon cut my Achilles tendon. It is relentless, and it is hard to focus on anything except the pain. It is not a good way to start your day It is just before 7 a.m., and I can barely turn my head. I try to find a comfortable position for both painful places, and I endlessly take some non-prescription pain relievers, but nothing makes much difference.

I made it very clear before my girls left for college that they should stay away from fraternities. That is because of the way some use alcohol to get girls to be unable to adequately resist any sexual advances. That is inevitable after those drinking fests called frat parties.

I had a good experience at a single frat party. It did not really include a date with my brother Rodney's first roommate. He talked me into being his date to his frat hay ride. It was not terrible, but I did drink much too much Boone's Farm wine. He was a perfect gentleman, though. It did not spark any romance. I think he is now a doctor. He wasn't my type, although he was a "nice guy"

My feelings about some fraternities were confirmed by a news story this past week about one at a university in Vermont, where they circulated a survey among new membership and asked them to list the girl or girls they would like to rape. That is pretty sleazy

Fraternity row was not a great place to spend my time – especially not since I was in a nice, large coed dorm, with quite a diverse group of students, including Tom from Grantsville, who shared the celebration of the 1971 World Series victory of the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Baltimore Orioles.

In my memory, that was perhaps the best game by Roberto Clemente. I remember virtually endless runs batted in and many great outfield plays. It almost seemed that the Pirates were a one-man (Clemente) team. He reached the mark of a 12-game World Series hitting streak. Very few players equaled that, and it stretched over two decades. It began in his early year of Major League baseball and ended close to the end of his career. Sadly, it was cut short far too soon in 1973, soon after he got his 3,000th hit. That was his last at-bat appearance.

There is one Christmas carol that should be played more than any other. "Do You Hear What I Hear?" It talks about a child crying in the night. But the tragedy is that there are millions of American children who are homeless. There are some who are slightly luckier, who live in a family in poverty or very close to poverty Many of the letters to Santa Claus that go through the U.S. Postal Service ask not for more toys, but instead for a warm winter coat.

This is not to mention the huge number of worldwide children who are not just living in poverty, but actually starving to death. They are also without any drinkable water But do many American Christians hear their cry?

It is not just the outrageous commercialization of Christmas that is shameful. Far worse is the number of Christians who fail to do what their Lord and Savior commanded them to do: Help the helpless.

A useful warning from the federal government. There is a growing spread of whooping cough. So if you have infants or small children who are not vaccinated for it, you must beware if you come in contact with small children who show symptoms of it.

It is a serious disease, and it is unreasonable and senseless to not get children vaccinated against it. My generation was always fully vaccinated, and we did not suffer any ill effects. Nor did my little ones. Thousands of children previously died before the preventive vaccines were available. It was tragic that children got polio and were permanently crippled

Not many children like needles, but it is not that bad. When my Claire was about 2 or 3 years old, she had to get blood drawn. After the doctor pulled the needle out of her little arm, she beamed at him and said "thank you" in a sweet voice. She was adorable in every way.

Last weekend, she took a quick trip to New York City It seems that lots of people are doing that. I envy them, but I would not be able to get around well these days.

We used to have a really old-fashioned record player with a bunch of old 78 records, and one of my favorites was "Silver Bells," about the ringing of bells in a city around Christmas.

The Big Apple is simply wonderful around Christmas. The fancy Fifth Avenue shops have the most wonderful Christmas displays in their windows. And the Rockefeller Center Christmas tree is really something to see.

There is a nice ice skating rink close by where I saw my college costumes professor performing some amazing moves while wearing a long purple cape I did not get a chance to talk to him, but I'm sure he would have been thrilled to know what I was working on.

I remember one day the following spring, on a page of the New York Times displaying all the current Broadway shows running, I had four important shows that I worked on during their production period, including Evita, Sweeney Todd, and Peter Pan.

Well, there was a small piece of good news for the Pittsburgh Steelers: a loss by the Baltimore Ravens on Sunday Now the Steelers will play this evening's Monday Night Football game. Hopefully they can pull out a win, in spite of the fact that it is questionable whether Big Ben Roethlisberger can play because of a high-ankle sprain. I know how bad those can be, just getting around ordinarily, let alone with all the physical actions needed by an NFL quarterback. We will see.

It is amazing that Lesa Whittemore's brother Mark will be in San Francisco to watch the game. Lesa said there are many Steelers fans in Las Vegas I can understand why Lesa's father Bob King, formerly of Oakland, recently celebrated his 50-year Southern High School class reunion. Like many Garrett County locals, he roots for Pittsburgh's team.

My young hound Jackson is nearly beside himself because his former owner (Mommy) Lauren is visiting Meredith. He viewed Meredith as his favorite aunt, and, of course, his current "Mommy" (me) is in the next room. He is thrilled. Perhaps his best friend Rock, another male dog belonging to Sandy Glotfelty, will visit soon. She plans to come as usual to watch the Steelers game. Rock and Jackson get pretty wound up together. I have put away all of Jackson's favorite toys. If I didn't, they would squabble about them.

My Meredith is desperately searching for a tiny ceramic Baby Jesus for my nativity set. Jackson grabbed it and ran off. He was dashing here and there like the little dog on one of my favorite movies, Bringing Up Baby, starring Katherine Hepburn and Cary Grant.

Hurray! Mere found Baby Jesus on top of my bed! Or perhaps, "Hurray in the highest!"

There was a power outage 20 minutes before the kickoff, then the power went out again late in the first half Although Roethlisberger is playing, he is not up to his standard, and the 49ers are really hammering the Steelers. I can't believe that the Steelers could look this hopeless.

Candlestick Park is one of the oldest football stadium still in use. It was built in 1960, and like many things dated from that hopeful time. it shows its age.

Maybe that's like me. When a surgeon cut my ankle's tendon, two or three years later the pain is beyond simply bad. It is dreadful. It makes the pain in my neck seem like a minor ache. They told me that if I did not get the surgery done, then I would end up in a wheelchair.

Well, that is where I ended up with the surgery I could not walk eight feet with this level of pain in the problem tendon. I can understand why Big Ben couldn't play as well as usual with one of the worst injuries around, unheard of for his career.

Well, it doesn't look like the Steelers are heading to the Super Bowl – at least not as one of the top seeded teams

I admit how fabulously fresh, ice-cold, unpasteurized milk tastes. But only because I sometimes went over to our milk house and dipped some milk from the high-tech stainless steel milk tank. I know how high the standard of herd health and care was in our excellent herd of well-treated Holstein cows. They had the best possible lives, spending most of their time in good pastures with a good water supply, lots of good grass to graze on, and access to the essential supply of mineral supplements. They were milked twice a day in a very clean environment. If they needed it, they got excellent veterinarian care.

PICKED UP NEAR ALTAMONT recently were a female boxer mix (above left) and a male black Lab (center). Also currently housed at the Garrett County Animal Shelter are a male boxer mix (right) that was picked up as a stray along Sand Flat Road, and the recently featured very friendly female coon hound (below) is still here. "Last week a few dogs were adopted, and this week a few are going to rescue via HART, making much needed room at the shelter for the holiday weekend," noted a GC Humane Society spokesperson."If you are interested in any of these dogs or others featured last week or those you see on Petfinder.com, please call or come to the shelter There are also plenty of nice cats needing homes, including a pair of sister cats – a black/white tuxedo and a tabby. They would love to lie under your Christmas tree. Straw is now available at the shelter for dog boxes. Please only take a 'flake,' not a whole bale, so there is enough for everyone. The straw is provided for free courtesy of the GCHS." For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553. Located along Oakland Sang Run Road, the county-operated facility is open Monday through Friday. Photos courtesy of the GC Humane Society, a nonprofit volunteer organization.

My father produced excellent milk because he believed in the best practices in his business, and also because the Department of Agriculture had strict standards. Our dairy operations were regularly inspected by professionals to ensure that our milk was produced in a way to be safe and healthy.

Not all dairy operations are run with that level of excellence. Sometimes, people even allow dead carcasses to remain for a long time in the same area where milk is extracted from cows.

But my father did not get higher prices for his perfect product. He got the same payment per gallon as producers who just barely reached minimum standards. The American economic system does not often reward excellence for grassroots work.

Federal support to our universities like the University of Maryland and West Virginia University played many important roles in our highest standard of agricultural excellence. It was a little strange to have a dairy operation on the College Park campus, but it was a good thing. We had a wonderful dairy shop on campus that sold the most fabulous ice cream. Visits to the creamery were one of the greatest treats for many University of Maryland students. And those universities provided a very important education structure for our nation's 4-H programs.

One of the most important parts of my growing up was participation in livestock judging competitions, both dairy and horse judging. Maryland dairy judging teams were always among the top contenders in national competitions. It was hard to get on that team. I felt very lucky if I got any ribbons in the statewide competition at our state fair. Just being on the Garrett County dairy judging team required a huge amount of time and effort: visiting many farms where people like my father and other top local dairy people taught us how to evaluate a dairy cow. I had a clear idea about the perfect Holstein cow, because on our farm many national dairy judges called them as close to perfection as they had ever seen.

GCAC DISTRIBUTES GRANTS TO ARTS ORGANIZATIONS – The Garrett County Arts Council annually provides funding for several area arts groups and organizations through a granting process. Members of the arts council recently met with representatives of community organizations that received this funding support this year. The group discussed the granting process and networking opportunities, and met fellow grant recipients. See story. The Arts

GLAF Announces 26th Season Of Concerts, Workshops, Dance

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) has announced its 26th season of arts performances and education, which will include concerts, workshops, and dance performances.

The season will kick off with the Tamburitzans from Duquesne University in nearby Pittsburgh, Pa. The dancers will arrive on the campus of Garrett College on Friday, April 20, to present a public performance at 7:30 p.m. in the college gymnasium.

A "Meet the Performers" event is scheduled immediately following the show in the college's Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex. The Tamburitzans will also provide a workshop to Garrett County elementary students.

The Duquesne University Tamburitzans is an ensemble of young folk artists dedicated to the performance and preservation of the music, songs, and dances of Eastern Europe and neighboring folk cultures. The performers are full-time students who receive substantial scholarship awards from Duquesne University, with additional financial aid provided by Tamburitzans Scholarship Endowment Funds.

Making a return to Wisp Resort as GLAF's second show of the season will be Beatlemania Now on April 28 at 7:30 p.m. The group presents famous Beatles music and nostalgia of the '60s.

The third event will be a performance by the Clipper City Brass Quintet, set for May 18 at Garrett College, 7:30 p.m. The Clipper City Brass comprises five virtuoso brass players who have performed with some of America's most esteemed orchestras, a spokesperson said. Although CCBQ regularly performs masterworks of the brass quintet repertoire, the ensemble also performs arrangements of popular songs, jazz, dixieland, and other styles.

CCBQ performs recitals throughout the mid-Atlantic region as well as at a variety of services and ceremonies. In addition to performing, CCBQ members maintain private teaching studios and faculty positions throughout the region. The players will present concerts and clinics to Garrett County middle and high school students on May 17 and 18.

GLAF will again offer voice and art workshops for area young people in the summertime. A voice clinic will be held in June for middle and high school students who are interested in furthering their music education. Laura Stutzman, renowned commercial artist, will again teach the Young Artists Workshop, this year set for July 16-20 at the art gallery at Garrett College. Scholarship opportunities can be pursued by contacting the GLAF office.

The Cashore Marionettes will be the season's fourth stage show. The program, which consists of a collection of pieces encompassing a broad range of themes, will be held in the Garrett College auditorium on June 23 at 7:30 p.m.

There will be another Meet the Performers event following the show. (This performance is not recommended for children under age 8.)

The 4th of July will be celebrated again under the "big tent" on the lawn of the college with the annual performance by the Garrett Community Concert Band and the Garrett Choral Society.

This annual patriotic event, which is followed by fireworks on Marsh Moun-

SPIKER TEAM SUPPORTS GLAF – The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival wished to express gratitude to the "Spiker Team" of Long and Foster Real Estate for its support to the arts organization in 2011. The Spiker Team pledges a percentage of its net sales to a non-profit organization every year. In 2011, the team, which consists of Bob Holcomb, Kathy Johnson, Betsy Spiker Holcomb, Karen Doerr, and Andrew Elswert, (pictured from left), contributed over $2,900 to GLAF to help the arts group fulfill its mission of bringing high quality arts and arts education to Garrett County, according to Mary Callis, executive director of GLAF.

GCAC Distributes Grant Funding To Area Arts Groups

Members of the Garrett County Arts Council recently met with representatives of community organizations that receive funding support through the arts council. The purpose of the meeting was to review the granting process, share ideas, discuss networking opportunities, and learn about fellow grant recipients.

According to Karen Reckner, executive director, one of the main missions of the Garrett County Arts Council is to support community arts development and the public presentation of local arts programs through the organization's grant program. Primary support is provided by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council. During the current year, GCAC provided $45,350 in community arts development funding, Reckner said. (See accompanying photos of recipient representatives.)

After the beginning of 2012, GCAC will begin accepting applications for funding support for public arts programs and projects scheduled in Garrett County between July 1, 2012, and June 30, 2013. The deadline for applying for grants in amounts of $500 or more is March 21. More information will be available in January.

The Garrett County Arts Council is supported by Garrett County government, membership sponsorship, and the Maryland State Arts Council.

RECEIVE UNITED WAY COMMUNITY CARING AWARDS – Former Garrett County commissioner Ernie Gregg and the Garrett Partnership for Children and Families recently received Community Caring awards from the United Way of Garrett County. Gregg was recognized for his long-time commitment to volunteering. The partnership was honored for making Garrett County a "better place to live and work." See story. Gregg (center) is pictured above with his award with Robin Murray and Phil Rodeheaver, representing the First United Golf Tournament Committee, last year's recipient of the Community Caring Award. Below, Sherri Padovini, project coordinator for Garrett Partnership, accepts the Community Caring Business Award from Don Sincell, Sincell Publishing, last year's recipient.

United Way Presents Caring Awards To Garrett Partnership, Ernie Gregg

County United Way Inc., which supports United Ways in Garrett, Allegany, Mineral, and Hampshire counties, recently held its annual awards banquet at Frostburg State University. The Garrett County Partnership for children and Families and former GC commissioner Ernie Gregg were recognized during the event by the United Way of Garrett County.

"Garrett Partnership for Children and Families has been credited with making Garrett County a better place to live and work by being honored with United Way's 2011 Community Caring Business Award," noted County Way executive director Mary Beth Pirolozzi.

The award is given to a company or organization that invests and fosters volunteer opportunities, providing time off from work for employees to volunteer, and donates financially and with various in-kind contributions to United Way

"This is the first-time a community partner has been recognized for its efforts in this arena, but given the tremendous impact to the community with so many efforts, the Executive Committee of the United Way of Garrett County believes that Garrett Partnership is the perfect demonstration of collaboration to achieve the ultimate result," Pirolozzi said.

The after-school program supported by the United Way of Garrett County is a partnership with University of Maryland Extension, Potomac Council of Boy Scouts, and Girl Scouts of Black Diamond Council.

Pirolozzi noted that the program provides a safe, secure, and nurturing environment for children during after-school hours. The programs support school-day learning while operating in a more informal setting with academic and cultural enrichment activities, homework help, tutoring, service learning, and recreation.

Garrett Partnership sponsors, supports, and coordinates many other opportunities in the community, including the following:

- The Garrett County Early Care System of Care Nurse-Family Partnership program, which serves first-time, low-income mothers.
- The Healthy Families Maryland program, which serves other high-risk mothers.
- An Early Head Start home visitation component.
- The Healthy Communities/Healthy Youth program;.
- The Northern Garrett Child Care program, which provides wrap-around child care for working parents after school during the school year and on days that schools are closed.
- The Local Access Mechanism strategies, which ensures that families are linked with appropriate services The Western Maryland 211 call center maintains a comprehensive database and provides 24/7 information for human service resources in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties, for which the Garrett Partnership provides updated database information.
- The Juvenile Review Board, which serves first-time non-violent offenders at risk for the juvenile justice system.

"These worthwhile projects do so much for so many and that is why their distinction has set the Garrett Partnership aside as the recipient of the Community Caring Business Award for 2011," Pirolozzi said.

Former Garrett County commissioner Ernie Gregg was the recipient of the 2011 Community Caring Award from the United Way of Garrett County. This honor is given annually to an individual from Garrett County who has made a long-time commitment to noteworthy volunteering, selfless acts.

The Mtn. Lake Park resident is the longest serving commissioner in the county's history and owner of Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland. Husband to Teresa, father of three children, stepfather of three, and grandfather of five, Gregg has been a pharmacist for 50 years.

He is the immediate past chair of the board of directors and Executive Committee of the United Way of Garrett County, and has served for numerous years on the Community Response Committee, as well as being an active participant with the Day of Caring and Sharing.

Gregg has also chaired the annual United Way campaign and been actively involved in such fundraising events as Food, Foolishness, and Fun.

"Ernie has used his many skills to make countless contributions to the citizens of Garrett County through his participation with many worthy organizations, which also factored into the selection as this year's award recipient," said Pirolozzi.

Gregg has been actively involved in the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, Southern Garrett Athletic Association, and as a board of directors member of both the GC Historical Society and the Mountain Laurel Medical Center.

Car Hits Bus When Driver Fails To Yield

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a minor three-vehicle accident involving a Garrett County school bus that occurred last Thursday afternoon.

Investigation revealed that Cynthia Lou Frantz failed to yield right of way to a northbound bus driven by Rence Lynn Jones at the intersection located at the Pilot Station along Chestnut Ridge Road. The two vehicles collided, but no injuries were reported. Frantz was charge for failure to yield when making a left turn.

Southern Takes Two Of Last Three, Ready To Host Snowflake Classic

Edged by visiting University High, 46-40, last Thursday, the Southern High School girls' basketball team then downed its next opponent, Frankfort, 49-34, in a road win on Friday. The Rams went onto make it two straight on Tuesday, besting Tucker County, 40-38, in Oakland.

In the loss to University, Southern found itself in a defensive struggle for the majority of the contest. Both teams were in single digits at the end of the first quarter. University led 16-12 at the half.

The Hawks extended their lead slightly in the third, taking a six-point advantage, 30-24, into the final period. University matched the Rams' 16-point fourth quarter output and held on for the victory.

Alycia Horner had 10 points and eight rebounds for Southern and Mandy Sweitzer scored six points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

University won the junior varsity game, 41-20, with an effort led by Courtney Mercer, who scored 12 points, and by an 11-point game from Anna Cunningham.

Alicia Roth led the Ram jayvees with 12 points.

At Frankfort, Horner would go on to score 18 points in the Southern win. She netted seven field goals, including one 3-pointer and all three of her free-throw attempts. Freshman teammate Kambrie Bosley hit three 3-pointers and scored 11 total for the Rams.

SOUTHERN OVERTAKES TUCKER – The Southern High girls' basketball team won a nail biter, 40-38, hosting Tucker County on Tuesday, thanks to a final offensive drive by junior Hannah Horne. With 6½ seconds on the clock, Horne drove the lane and put up a successful layup to seal the deal for the Rams. In the photo above, senior Alycia Horner (#3) breaks by a Mountain Lion defender on her way to the basket. In the background, from left, are Rams Horne (#14) and Raeslee Welmer (#13). Unfortunately, the contest with Tucker County may be Welmer's last game for some time. The junior starter suffered an injury and is out indefinitely. In the photo below, Horne is seen attempting a one-handed layup. Freshman Kambrie Bosley (#4) is at Horne's right, ready to snag a rebound. See story for details. Photos by John McEwen. To see this photo and others from this event in color, readers are invited to go online to www.therepublicannews.com and click on the blue button.

Southern took an 18-6 lead at the end of the first period, led 29-12 at the half and took a 41-20 lead into the fourth quarter.

Frankfort was led by Stephanie Bills, who had 11 points.

The junior varsity win belonged to Frankfort, 37-25. Ashley Noah scored 16 points for the Falcons, while the top Ram scorer was Roth with 11 points.

With Tucker in town, Hannah Horne would step it up in the final 6½ seconds of the contest and make a tie-breaking basket for the win.

Horne, who finished top scorer for Southern with nine points, drove the lane before those final ticks of the clock for one last play, putting up a decisive layup.

The Mountain Lions, who seemed to have the edge through most of the game, were suddenly forced to send up a prayer from beyond halfcourt. That desperate response to Horne's final basket fell well short of its mark.

Before the late-game heroics, Southern had trailed by eight points early on. Tucker held a 12-4 lead entering the second quarter. In that period, however, the Rams rallied to pull within three, 22-19, by the break, and ended the third quarter up 30-28.

Southern freshman Bosley and junior Raeslee Weimer both had eight points. Caitlin Maxwell led the Tucker offense with 12 points scored.

Two Rams are currently on the injured list. Alli Shaffer, who is dealing with a leg injury, will probably be out a few more weeks. According to her coach, she is working hard for a full recovery. Also injured is Weimer, who has a broken wrist and is out indefinitely.

"Although these are two of our original starters, we are fortunate to have a deep bench of skilled players," explained Southern head coach Angie Bosley. "We plan on regrouping and depending on our whole team for support."

Southern, now 4-2 overall, will next play host in the Snowflake Classic. That tournament is scheduled to kick off Monday at 6 p.m.

Huskies Drop Four Straight Games, Still Hungry For Season's First Win

Losses to Frankfort, 70-32, and Keyser, 61-30, last Thursday (Dec. 15) and Friday, respectively, led the Northern High girls' basketball team into Allegany on Monday hungry for a win.

The Husky appetite went unsated, however, when that try resulted in the team's third-straight defeat, 49-31. Wednesday's home matchup against Fort Hill went no better, as Northern fell behind early and was unable to recover, losing 57-30.

The home-court advantage held by the Huskies last Thursday did little in the way of hindering Frankfort's Stephanie Bills, who racked up 18 points on Northern's defense. Bills made eight baskets and was perfect on two attempts from the foul line.

By the end of regulation the Falcons had four players in double figures, as Bills' offensive production was complemented by Saydi Whiteman (16 points), Mikala Miller (14 points), and Stephanie Cornachia (10 points).

Junior Kirsten Rayner led the Huskies, matching the game's high score total with 18 points of her own. Rayner hit seven field goals and four free-throw shots on seven attempts. Teammate Allison Yommer finished with eight points total. She also boasted the game's only 3-point shot.

The contest began with Frankfort pulling away early, leading 22-8 after the first quarter. The Falcons carried their lead into the half, 34-16, and into the fourth period, 52-25.

Northern was able to come away with a win in the junior varsity contest, behind sophomore Rhiannon Dodge's 10-point effort. The final score of that game was 39-24. Ashley Noah had nine points for Frankfort.

At Keyser, the Huskies found themselves down 16-5 after one quarter of play and struggled to find an answer for the Golden Tornado's Carley Grady, who went on to score 26 in the game.

Behind Grady, Keyser surged to a 31-9 lead at the half, before taking a 50-18 advantage into the fourth quarter.

Jasmin Redman scored 11 points for Keyser, and Katelyn Hoban had 12 rebounds.

Northern took another jayvee win by a final score of 31-23. Natalie Johnson led the Huskies in that matchup with eight points. Katie Tasker led the Tornado with 12 points.

In Cumberland, against Allegany the Huskies trailed the whole way – 11-1 after one, 27-11 at the half, and 41-19 to enter the final period.

Northern began to click in the fourth quarter, outscoring the Campers 12-8, but it was too little, too late as the Husky squad was unable to climb out of the hole that a balanced Allegany attack and stingy defense had dug for them.

Northern's Allison Yommer had a game-high 10 points, and Kiersten Butler finished with nine, all from 3-points shots.

Allegany was led by Lindsie Linaburg and Courtney Landis, who each scored nine points, and Aimee Conley scored eight points. Linaburg added 12 rebounds to her stat sheet, while Landis had six steals and six assists.

The Husky jayvees came away with a win, 27-20. Dodge led Northern with 11 points. Brianna Banco led the Campers with six points.

Hosting Fort Hill, Northern allowed the Sentinels to construct a quick 12-point lead, a 16-4 advantage within the first seven minutes of regulation. That margin was extended to 28-13 before halftime. By the end of the third quarter Fort Hill was up 41-21.

The Huskies were led by an Allison Yommer double-double (11 points and 10 rebounds). Kiersten Butler added 6 points.

Alyssa Twig and Mariah James both scored in double figures for the Sentinels. Twigg scored a game-high 18 points and James pitched in with 12. Sarah Lowery put up nine points.

The losses set the Huskies' overall record at 0-5, with all of their losses in conference play (AMAC). Northern will next play in the Southern Hagerstown Christmas Tournament which begins on Wednesday.

HUSKIES TUMBLE TO FORT HILL – Hosting Fort Hill on Wednesday, the Northern High girls' basketball team was dealt its fifth-straight loss, 57-30. The 0-5 start to the season comes as an unwelcome change for a team that reached such heights last year. The effort displayed by the Husky squad is undeniable, however. In the photo above junior Kirsten Rayner (#3, far left) hits the jets on her way around a pair of Sentinel defenders. Also visible in the shot is Husky Kayla Porter, (#5) after setting up the screen for Rayner. In the picture below, senior guard Kiersten Butler (#10, center) battles to keep possession while Fort Hill swarms. Coming to her teammate's aid is junior forward Caroline Bergstrom (#23, right). NHS GRAD FRATZ CONTINUES WINNING WAYS – Katelyn Fratz, last season's Northern High girls' basketball standout and resident offensive-record smasher (she is Garrett County's all-time leading scorer for both boys and girls with 2,103 points), has transitioned to the collegiate level without missing a beat. The freshman guard, who now plays for the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown (Pa.) was recently named West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Player of the Week. Fratz earned this honor after guiding the Mountain Cats to their first win of the 2011-12 campaign, a 67-64 victory over rival Shepherd University (W.Va.) on Dec. 17. In that contest, the rookie from Accident netted 28 points to complement her five rebounds, four assists, and three steals. With her team ahead by just three points in the closing minutes, Fratz had a hand in the last six points scored. In that effort, she made an assist to a teammate who drained a 3-point shot and then sunk three free-throws in the final 53 seconds. Her final two free-throws pushed the margin to three.

DRIVE ONE 4 UR SCHOOL BOOSTS NHS ATHLETICS – The Drive One 4 UR School event, sponsored by Diehl's Ford, recently raised $3,470 for Northern High School Athletic Boosters, as well as an additional $1,800 for associated extracurricular groups. The Athletic Boosters plan to use the money to make "much needed improvements to the football/soccer field before next fall." Diehl's Ford has sponsored three Drive One events, in which the business makes a donation in exchange for individuals participating in a test drive of one of its vehicles. Together those events have raised over $20,000 for Northern High athletics. According to the Ford Motor Company, this fundraising program, established in 2007, has raised in excess of $3.5 million for high schools throughout the region. The Athletic Boosters have expressed their appreciate for the "continuous support" of Diehl's Ford, and its owners Greg and Vivian Diehl, who are pictured above, left to right, with Gary Reichenbecher, NHS principal, Sandy Derato, Boosters president, and Phil Carr, athletic director.

Firearm Season Harvest Of Deer Higher This Year

Maryland deer hunters experienced a range of weather for the two-week firearm season and harvested an estimated 41,421 deer – a 2 percent increase from last year's harvest of 40,694 deer for the same period. This year's total included 14,302 antlered deer and 27,119 antlerless deer. Sika deer totals were 455 antlered and 549 antlerless.

"Nearly half of the annual deer harvest occurs during this two-week period and a large portion of the harvest consists of female deer," said Brian Eyler, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) deer project leader. "Harvesting a sufficient number of female deer is a critical part of our deer management plan."

Region A (Garrett, Allegany, and western Washington counties) deer hunters reported a kill of 4,960 deer for the two-week season, up 12 percent from last year's harvest of 4,422. The antlered harvest increased 12 percent, from 2,528 deer last year to 2,830 this year, while the antlerless harvest increased 13 percent, from 1,894 to 2,130 deer.

The total kill for Garrett County alone was 2,201, of which 1,166 were antlered. Of that total, 393 were taken by junior hunters. Allegany County's harvest totaled 1,917, while the kill in Washington County was 3,179, and in Frederick County, 3,922, which led the state's 23 counties.

Deer hunters harvested 3,952 deer (1,467 antlered, 2,485 antlerless) on Sundays during the two-week season. Deer hunting is currently permitted on the first Sunday of the two-week firearm season in all counties, except Baltimore, Howard, and Prince George's. Sunday deer hunting is also permitted on the second Sunday of the two-week season in Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's counties. Carroll County deer hunters took advantage of new legislation that permitted Sunday hunting for the first time this year and harvested 298 deer for the day.

Junior deer hunters enjoyed a weekend-long firearm season in most counties and harvested an estimated 3,014 deer. The official Junior Firearm Deer Hunt traditionally had been a Saturday event, but legislation passed last year expanded the hunt to Saturday and Sunday in 20 of the 23 Maryland counties. The extra day of hunting resulted in a record harvest, which was up approximately 47 percent from last year's 2,053 deer. Included in the total were 1,754 antlered deer and 1,260 antlerless deer.

"Junior hunters are the future of deer hunting and effective deer management in Maryland," said Eyler. "Without deer hunters, conflicts between deer and humans would continue to grow. Special seasons such as the junior firearm weekend are invaluable in recruiting and keeping the interest of younger hunters."

Junior hunters are reminded they may obtain an official DNR Junior Hunter certificate for the deer they harvest this year. The certificates are available from participating retail agents. Junior hunters can also have their picture posted on the DNR web site at dnr.maryland.gov/huntersguide/yhcertprogram.asp.

Maryland's two-week late muzzleloader season opened Saturday and will remain open until December 31.

A chronic wasting disease (CWD) management area (land code 233) has been established in a portion of Allegany County, with regulations designed to prevent the unintentional spread of CWD to other locations. Hunters wanting more information regarding CWD and the regulations pertaining to the disease management area are advised to go online to dnr.maryland.gov/wildlife/Hunt_Trap/deer/disease/cwdinformation.asp or consult the 2011-2012 Maryland Guide to Hunting and Trapping.

Undefeated Rams Trail Knights At Halftime, Then Cruise To 71-53 Win

It took most of the first half for the Southern High School boys' varsity squad to "wake up" when the Rams played at Preston County High in Kingwood last Friday, but once Coach Jon Hegeman's team woke up in the third quarter, the tide quickly turned in favor of the Rams, who went on to record a 71-53 victory.

Southern was down 12-0 in the first several minutes of the first quarter, trailed 19-8 at the end of the period, and were down 39-31 at halftime. But they caught fire in the second half and outscored the stone-cold Knights by a 19-2 margin in the third quarter to take a 50-41 lead into the final period.

Kurt Gangler hit a game-high 25 points for the Rams, Wyatt McBee recorded 19, and D.J. Ritchie finished with 16 points.

Leading Preston's scoring effort were Mitchell Koch with 15 points and Jimmy Galusky with 14.

The Rams finished with a 25-20 edge in field goals and converted nearly 87% of their free throws (13 of 15).

The Southern junior varsity also remained undefeated (4-0), eking out a 41-39 win in the preliminary game. Lucas Ritchie and Reese Haskiell led the Rams with 15 and 14 points, respectively, with Ritchie draining a winning 3-pointer with just 10 seconds left in the contest. Haskiell also had nine rebounds. L. Nolan led Preston with 11 points.

As reported in last week's issue, the Rams also recorded an easy 69-38 win over host Keyser on Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Gangler was also the leading scorer in that game, as he finished with 18 points, while Ritchie netted 16 and McBee hit 11 points. Gangler and McBee each hit three long-range buckets.

Coach Hegeman played his entire roster, with nine Rams getting into the scoring column.

Leading Keyser (0-4) offensively was J.R. Flint with 10 points.

Southern's junior varsity squad won the first game, 41-29, behind a 20-point scoring performance by Lucas Ritchie. Wes Nelson led the Golden Tornado jayvees with eight points

The Rams will play at Allegany this evening and then return to action in their annual Snowball Classic Dec. 28-29.

David Brinkley Running For U.S. Congress

State Sen. David R. Brinkley, Republican, District 4, Carroll and Frederick counties, recently announced his candidacy for the U.S. House of Representatives in the newly redrawn 6th Congressional District.

"Garrett and Allegany counties have always been among the most reliable conservative counties within the 6th Congressional District," said Brinkley. "Just like Route 68, the road to the Republican nomination runs right through Mountain Maryland."

He announced on Monday that Del. Wendell Beitzel would be his campaign chair for Garrett County. Beitzel, Sen. George Edwards, and Del. Leroy Myers were among the first to support his candidacy, according to Brinkley.

He added that endorsement by the western Maryland legislative leaders is evidence of the growing support for new leadership in Congress.

"I believe Sen. Brinkley is the best candidate to represent the new 6th District in Congress as the nation struggles to regain its footing from economic decline and social unrest," Beitzel said.

Brinkley was elected to two terms in the Maryland House of Delegates representing Frederick County, and was recently re-elected to his third term in the State Senate, representing Frederick and Carroll counties.

He is a Charter Life underwriter, a Charter financial consultant, a financial planner, and a small-business owner.

He is also a former volunteer EMT and firefighter with the New Market District Volunteer Fire and Rescue Company.

Brinkley was born in the city of Frederick and has an undergraduate degree from the University of Maryland. He has two children and lives in Frederick County. He is a member of Grace Episcopal Church.

The season will come to a close with tradition bluegrass music by Johnny Staats and the Delivery Boys, who will perform on Aug. 11 at Garrett College.

on the reefs.

• $700,000 million for Assateague Island in Worcester County for restoration efforts that will protect the northern end of the island and its fragile habitat.

• $1.5 million for the Wicomico River to dredge the upper river where the Port of Salisbury is located, the second largest port in Maryland handling petroleum products and grain. This waterway also supports barge traffic crucial to maintaining adequate fuel supplies for the Delmarva Peninsula.

• $58,000 for the Mid Chesapeake Bay Island, to design the restoration of James and Barren islands in Dorchester County using clean dredge material from the Port of Baltimore's shipping channels.

• $176,000 for the Susquehanna River to dredge the channels in Havre De Grace that serve rock quarries.

• $13.6 million for annual maintenance dredging of the Port of Baltimore shipping channels.

"This bill is a jobs bill," Mikulski said. "This federal investment in the lives and livelihoods of those who depend on clean and open waterways will keep businesses open and keep Marylanders working. I will continue to fight to keep the Port of Baltimore and Maryland's waterways a priority in the federal checkbook."

Mikulski said she has been a longtime advocate of promoting job growth through Maryland's ports and waterways. She noted that the Port of Baltimore shipping channels, a major economic engine for America and Maryland, supports more than 50,000 jobs across the state – including 16,700 direct jobs. Among U.S. ports, Baltimore receives the top rank for handling roll on/roll off cargo, trucks, imported forest products, and imported gypsum and sugar. It is also the second largest automobile exporter and importer in the country, according to Mikulski.

Offshore Wind Debate To Continue

by Greg Masters
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland lawmakers are preparing to resume debate on one of Gov. Martin O'Malley's major green initiatives, an offshore wind energy bill that stalled during the last legislative session amid concerns about the cost to utility companies and their customers.

The bill would have subsidized the construction of between 80 and 200 wind turbines 12 miles off the coast of Ocean City by obligating the state's four investor-owned utilities – Baltimore Gas and Electric Co., Allegheny Power, Delmarva Power, and Pepco – to buy offshore wind energy for 25 years.

As a potential alternative, Maryland officials have studied the approach adopted in New Jersey, which will meet its renewable energy mandate through "offshore wind renewable energy certificates," paid for by utilities and awarded to offshore wind farms for the electricity they produce. This approach is similar to the incentive system Maryland has in place for solar energy.

"I'm pretty sure the decision hasn't been made yet, but that model certainly has some appeal to people, partly because ... it's a little less prescriptive. It doesn't say that the energy companies must enter into these long-term contracts," said Delegate Tom Hucker, D-Montgomery, who was the offshore wind bill's lead sponsor in the House of Delegates.

Hucker said the New Jersey model could also be more attractive to Republicans in the state legislature.

"It's been championed by a Republican governor in New Jersey close by, so you know, we hope it will have some bipartisan appeal if we do go that direction," he said.

Sen. Paul Pinsky, D-Prince George's, who was the bill's lead sponsor in the Senate this year, said the New Jersey model has "moved more to center stage" in discussions, but added the legislation is "clearly not set in stone."

Whatever the eventual approach, proponents of the legislation argue the wind off the Atlantic Coast is an untapped, clean energy resource that can reduce reliance on coal, create jobs and bring long-term stability to electricity prices. Offshore wind farms have been planned in New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Delaware, though none have commenced.

Ross Tyler, a project director at the nonprofit advocacy organization Clean Energy Group, said offshore wind development could bring jobs to many different sectors in Maryland.

"These turbine towers will require ladders. There's lighting equipment, there's welding needed, there's specialized diving that's needed. So there's a whole range of different skills and different industry sectors that will be required for offshore wind," Tyler said.

For O'Malley, offshore wind is a critical component of his goal for Maryland to have 20 percent of its electricity supply come from in-state renewable sources by 2022. Such sources currently account for less than 7 percent of electricity supply.

But offshore wind farms are expensive to finance and develop, and many people are concerned that the costs might overburden ratepayers.

"What's important to me is that we do it right," said State Sen. Catherine Pugh, D-Baltimore, while speaking Nov. 30 at a town hall forum organized by the Marylanders for Offshore Wind Coalition in Baltimore.

"One of the things I asked a year and a half ago is that we would go out and educate the community in terms of not only what this means, but what the cost would be to all of us, recognizing that 25 percent of the population of this city, for example, lives below poverty," Pugh said.

The bill stalled in both the House and Senate last session after the state estimated the cost to consumers could be up to $8.70 a month, and despite a late amendment to cap the rate increase to $2 a month. Legislators decided to hold the bill for study in the Senate Finance Committee.

Among other questions, the state is studying whether the New Jersey model would have less of an impact on ratepayers, Hucker said.

"It's a competitive process where the utilities would be able to buy offshore wind energy from wherever, so in that way it's a little less prescriptive and hopefully will let the market pressure drive the cost down as much as possible," he said.

But changing the bill's mechanism may not be enough to ease energy consumers' concerns about the possible increases in electricity costs.

"Unless there's a fairly significant change in the way that it's structured, I would still expect it's something that would raise rates," said Todd Chason, counsel for Maryland Energy Group, which is made up of large energy users such as hospitals, universities and manufacturers.

Maryland Energy Group filed a statement against the bill when it was last being debated. The Maryland Chamber of Commerce, Maryland Conservation Council and Maryland Farm Bureau were also opposed.

Additional funding comes from the federal government, since 30 percent of people who call the Quitline are enrolled in Medicaid, a program equally funded between state and federal government, said Phillips. The state was one of the first to receive federal money for the Quitline.

Despite its low funding, Williams applauded Maryland for supplying patches or gum to Quitline callers free of charge.

And the Quitline, staffed by professional counselors, never has a busy signal, said Phillips.

M.Y. Voice, Featuring Stories, Art By Md. Middle Schoolers, Debuts

M.Y. Voice, the first Maryland magazine with content created by middle school students, was to arrive in Maryland's public middle schools this month. The first issue features news and opinions – all authored by middle school students – about cyber bullying, the physics of skateboarding, Maryland's "stinkbug problem," and other stories.

M.Y. Voice, which is published by Maryland Life magazine, is produced in partnership with the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) and educators and principals across the state. M.Y. stands for Maryland Youth.

There are more than 180,000 middle school students in Maryland. Each student will receive a free quarterly copy of M.Y. Voice through his or her school. Additional copies will be distributed to public libraries so that privately schooled and homeschooled students, will also have access. The inaugural issue was sponsored by Baltimore Gas & Electric and Lockheed Martin, companies who encourage students to engage in smart energy practices and STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Math) initiatives, respectively.

"We're very excited about M.Y. Voice," said Dan Patrell, president of Great State Publishing LLC, and publisher of Maryland Life and M.Y. Voice. "Because of Maryland Life's role in celebrating Maryland's history and culture, we've wanted for some time now to provide an outlet to extend this love and appreciation of the state to Maryland youth. That we're working directly with Maryland middle school students to make this happen makes this even more compelling."

The origins of M.Y. Voice date back to conversations between Patrell, frequent Maryland Life contributor and children's book author, Jennifer Keats Curtis, and Marlene Young, honorary chair of Maryland Life's Maryland board, and a founding member of the board of managers of the parent company, Great State Publishing LLC.

"Our sixth, seventh and eighth graders are talented and opinionated. And they have a need to be heard about ideas and topics that are important to them. A publication written by them for their same-aged peers is a great means of achieving this goal," Curtis said.

Guiding the creation of every issue is an advisory board made up of educators and principals (including many from Maryland's Blue Ribbon schools) and key personnel from MSDE. At regular meetings, story ideas are vetted to make sure they conform to Maryland curriculum standards for middle school youth. With the stories set, Curtis works with teachers and students to produce professionally written stories – with photography and art – suitable for statewide publication through Maryland's middle schools.

"We're very proud of this partnership," said Dr. Bernard Sadusky, interim state superintendent of sSchools. "The publication showcases the talents of some of Maryland's finest students."

"I'm so happy to see this magazine come to fruition," said Grasmick. "Maryland's status as first in the nation for education is predicated on creative endeavors such as this one. I'm so proud to have played a role in its initial development."

"Personally, I can't wait to see what future issues hold," said Strouse, Partnership and Recognition Programs, MSDE. "This first issue is packed with great stories from cover to cover – it's a great read for parents, as well as students.

St. Mark's To Host Christmas Eve Candlelight Service

St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland will host its annual, traditional Christmas Eve candlelight service on Dec. 24. A prelude of sacred traditional and contemporary music will begin at 9:30 p.m., and the worship will start at 10.

The prelude will feature various vocal ensembles, solos, and instrumental pieces. Some of those presenting are tenor Michael Horton, Pastor C. Scott Robinson and Susan Peterson in a duet, oboist Jacki Skeweris, alto Mary McEwen, tenors Jim Tong and Dwight Coots, and a brass quartet with players Royce Warnick, Don Sincell, Joe Ashby, and Michael McEwen. Aurora Celtic, a trio with Michael Broderick on fiddle, Alice Fleischman on Irish penny whistle, and Aaron Martin on guitar, will also play.

St. Mark's handbell choir and handbell quartet, both under the direction of Lynn Grimm, will present pieces throughout the service, and the choir, directed by Peterson, will sing an anthem accompanied on dulcimer by Grimm. Broderick is the church organist/pianist.

The service will include Holy Communion, as well as a candlelight ceremony This is traditionally a well-attended service, and persons are advised to plan accordingly.

"Christmas is always special at St. Mark's," said Pastor Robinson. "And this year will be no exception."

On Christmas Day, the church will hold a service of carols and scripture reading at the regular time of 10 a.m. Sunday school and the adult forum, normally scheduled at 8:45 Sunday mornings, will not be held on Christmas or New Year's days.

Robinson noted that the forum is currently studying the books of the Bible, focusing on who probably wrote each book, when, where, and under what circumstances.

The public is invited to all events at St. Mark's, which is located at the corner of Second and Center streets in Oakland, across from the library. For more information, persons may contact the church office at 301-334-2668, or visit the web site at www.stmarksoakland.com.

President/CEO Nicole Christian, Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, asked the local lawmakers to support tourism statewide, increase the state's travel marketing budget, expedite the Marcellus Shale Committee's study, restore/protect Highway User Fund allocations, oppose gas tax increases, rally support for the Deep Creek 2014 Canoe Slalom World Championships, and introduce legislation that would start the public school year after Labor Day.

"The state of Maryland needs to look at all opportunities for growing the critically important segment of tourism and that's critically important to our economy," Christian said. "One opportunity is for Maryland to establish a summer school break that lasts through the month of August."

She said schools have to [illegible] impacting [illegible] have to [illegible]

"[illegible] Northern [illegible] competitive [illegible] tions [illegible] that [illegible] not [illegible] tourism, [illegible]

She noted that Maryland has seen a 25 percent boost in tourism revenue since it enacted its school calendar law in 2009.

"A post-Labor Day start date will also generate utility savings for our schools, which are suffering major budget deficits," Christian said.

UniServe director Evan West, Garrett County Education Association/Allegany County Teachers Association, asked the local lawmakers to look at ways to lower the county's "wealth" factor.

"When allocating education funding, the state uses a complex formula based in part, on a county's assessable [illegible] and [illegible] may soon be ranked the fifth wealthiest county in the state. As a result, the local Board of Education is expecting a budget deficit between $1.5 and $3 million and is contemplating the closure of several elementary schools."

West noted the positive impact of public money spent on public education.

"For every dollar that's spent on public education," he said, "it has a multiplier effect into the local economy of about $1.5 to $2 more than what was spent."

He noted that Friendsville Elementary, one of the schools that may be closed, [illegible] employs 27 people who [illegible] publicly funded income [illegible] directly [illegible] economy.

"I do [illegible] Superintendent [illegible] that [illegible] very difficult [illegible] our county [illegible] going [illegible] with very few options. So I'm not quibbling with that. It's a simple fact of life."

He told Beitzel and Edwards that his organization would be there "every step of the way" to lobby for whatever needs to happen to reduce the impact of the state funding formula.

American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Council 67, representative Jim Bestpitch asked for legislation that would recognize the legality of Local 1834, Garrett County Roads Department workers, and allow members to participate in collective bargaining.

"All we're asking is to [illegible] right to a union since they've been in existence," Bestpitch said about the 1834 members.

He added that there have been "good commissioners" in the past, but in the future there may be "bad" ones who will take the union away.

"That has happened before down in Washington County," Bestpitch said. "We were lucky enough to get it back through legislation."

He indicated legislation recognizing the local union would protect it from "unscrupulous politicians."

Eric Robison, Citizen-Shale, asked for a Fair Energy-Leasing Act. The proposed legislation would require licenses for leasing agents and those who represent energy corporations and would establish a registry of Marcellus shale leases.

Part of the group's goal in seeking this legislation is to provide land owners with information about leasing and help protect them from unscrupulous "land men" and companies

"We want people to know what's going on," Robison said.

Lifelong Garrett County resident Richard Helbig wanted legislation that presented factual information about Marcellus shale issues He noted that his land is not leased.

"I don't want legislation based on sensationalism, hype, exaggerated claims, as I've heard in many meetings," he said. "I want legislation on factual things, with both sides of the industry present."

He said it amazes him when he sees all the negative publicity about Marcellus shale drilling.

"I'm surprised that Pennsylvania and West Virginia havn't merely sunk into the ground," Helbig said about drilling in the neighboring states.

He added that Maryland is a well-regulated state.

"I think it's imperative that we look at this in view of the economic conditions that we have today," he said regarding drilling.

Edwards encouraged constituents to keep in touch with him and Beitzel through phone calls, e-mails, and face-to-face meetings.

"Please contact us," the senator said.

His phone number in Annapolis is 800-492-7122, ext. 3565. Beitzel's is 800-492-7122, ext 3435.

Maryland One Of Nine States To Win Race-To-The-Top Major Grant

Maryland has been awarded a multi-million dollar federal grant that will allow the state to further strengthen its acclaimed early childhood programs.

The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE), on behalf of the governor and his Advisory Council of Early Care and Education, was notified last week that a Race to the Top Early Learning Challenge Fund Grant (RTTT-ELC) had been awarded. The program, co-managed by the U.S. Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, is designed to narrow the school readiness gap for children in poverty, English language learners, and those with disabilities.

Maryland is one of nine states awarded the grant. The others are California, Delaware, Massachusetts, Minnesota, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, and Washington

The final tally on the funds the state will receive is not yet available, but Maryland was eligible for $50 million over four years. The grant program builds on the success of the U.S. Department of Education's Race to the Top program. Maryland in August 2010 was one of a handful of states to be awarded an RTTT grant, which carried with it $250 million over four years to boost the state's third phase of education reform.

Interim Maryland state superintendent of schools Bernard Sadusky said the newest Race to the Top grant meshes with state's ongoing efforts to improve student performance.

"Providing high-quality programs to our youngest learners offers us our best chance at eliminating the achievement gaps that plague every education system," Dr. Sadusky said. "The new project builds for our children a better academic foundation. When students enter kindergarten with strong learning habits, the stage is set for future success."

Maryland developed an ambitious slate of projects in its RTTT-ELC application, according to an MSDE spokesperson. They range from strengthening the Maryland EXCELS child care rating system to revising the early learning standards to align with the Common Core to refining the state's assessment system for pre school children.

Those efforts combine with other work already taking place in the state, the spokesperson said. Maryland has a nationally recognized early childhood development program, providing unique early learning opportunities, strong oversight of childcare, and other programs designed to give the state's youngest learners a leg up in school.

MSDE's development of its RTTT Early Learning Challenge proposal was the result of the Division of Early Childhood Development's collaboration with partners.

"Scores of early childhood and K-12 education stakeholders collaborated on this successful grant proposal," said Dr. Rolf Grafwallner, assistant state superintendent for the Division of Early Childhood Development. "Maryland is very fortunate to have had so much support from so many state and local agencies, associations, and others interested in early childhood education."

Over the past 10 years, Maryland has demonstrated that children starting their formal school career have improved their school readiness skills over time. In 2001, 49 percent of all children entering kindergarten were assessed as being ready for school, while 81 percent were kindergarten ready in 2010.

"Our goal is to provide every child with the best start possible, and the data we have gathered over the past decade tell us that we are making significant progress," added Grafwallner. "This grant allows us to take the next step."

Maryland's winning application can be found online at: http://www2.ed.gov/programs/racetothetop-earlylearningchallenge/applicant.html.

AUGGIE DOGGIE'S TRAINS – That would be Auggie Mamolito of Swanton, who has been enjoying model trains for most of his 61 years of life on this Earth, having "inherited" the hobby from his late father. His daughter Angie, with whom he and Mrs. Mamolito reside, submitted this photo of his current Christmas train layout on display in their living room, hoping to have it published in this newspaper as a holiday surprise. So, Auggie, here it is. Merry Christmas to you and yours, and happy railroading!

GCCAC Advising Residents To File, Claim Tax Credit

Garrett County Community Action Committee wants to make low- to moderate-income workers aware that they may be eligible for up to $5,751 extra in their federal tax refunds through the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). According to last year's statistics, the average credit boosted refunds for eligible workers by $2,100.

"This money can make a real difference to workers struggling in this recovering economy," said an agency spokesperson. "Many people think they have to have children to qualify for the credit, but that is not true. Families and individuals who do not have children may also be eligible."

Anyone earning $49,078 or less in wages, self-employment, or farming in 2011 should see if they qualify. Eligible workers must file federal income tax returns (even if they are not required to file) and specifically must claim the credit to get it. It is predicted by the IRS that many people will qualify for the first time this year because of economic changes in their income, marital, or parental statuses. The agency estimates four out of five eligible workers currently claim their EITC.

"We want to raise that to five out of five," said the spokesperson. "They earned it. Now they need to file, claim it, and get it."

Encouraging families and individuals to file for EITC is one way GCCAC seeks to fulfill its objective of increasing wealth for low-income families and individuals, bringing them one step closer to financial self-sufficiency. For more information about EITC, persons may contact the GCCAC at 301-334-9431, ext. 147, or visit the web site at www.IRS.gov.

Important news for Shentel® TV customers

December 12, 2011

Dear Shentel customer:

Cable operators are required to pay Retransmission fees (shows up on your bill as Broadcast TV Surcharge) for the right to carry the Big Four stations (NBC, ABC, CBS and Fox). These are the same channels that consumers, if close enough to the station, can pick up on an antenna for free. As a result of outdated laws and regulations governing Retransmission fees, many stations are demanding excessive price increases (some exceed 10 times) from companies like Shentel. In turn, we will be forced to pass on these higher fees to our customers. We believe this is unfair and unreasonable.

As your advocate, Shentel will not allow unreasonable station owners to force these dramatic rate increases that impact the overall prices to our customers. If we are unable to reach a fair compromise with station owners, Shentel will be required to remove those stations in January 2012.

Why are the programmers able to demand such high price increases? It has been nearly 20 years since the laws and regulations governing broadcast television have been updated. In most markets broadcast stations have monopoly powers over network and syndicated programming. Their excessive demands for rate increases have dramatically driven up the cable and satellite rates.

Please visit our website at www.shentel.com/Explore/Programming to learn more about this issue and see which channels may be removed and what the timeframe is going to be. We apologize for any inconvenience or service interruptions these negotiations may cause. We appreciate your business and will provide updates as we progress with the negotiations. We are working hard to keep your bill for television programming affordable.

Sincerely,
Chris Kyle
VP, Industry Affairs and Regulatory

Ask The Everyday Scientist

REDUCTIONISM AND HIGHER REALITY

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. In this age of science, is there a good "scientific" way to look at the story of Christmas?

A. In around third grade we learned that when multiplying a number by zero, the answer is always zero, no matter what. The original number is lost forever after that. You can't get it back by any mathematical means; that's why dividing by zero is an impossibility. What has happened is a reduction from one level of meaning to a lower level.

Throughout the sciences, the step of reducing to some lower level is always possible, but something is lost whenever that reduction takes place. Can biology be reduced to chemistry? Yes, if you don't mind that everything that makes biology a "life science" has vanished. Can chemistry be reduced to physics? Yes, but in doing so you reduce your focus from the interactions of countless trillions of molecules to a mere two or three at a time. Those downward steps often help in learning important principles governing the higher-level science, because then we can go back in and apply the underlying principles to understand a more complex process.

Still higher levels of reality also are subject to the strategy of reduction. Consider an example from the field of music: Suppose I point to this string of digits – 1011010101 0100101100101010101011011010101010 – and tell you, "That is Beethoven's Fifth Symphony." You'd say, "Baloney!" But I would come back and draw attention to the digits embossed on the very first track of a CD. (This would only produce the first couple of notes, but you get the idea.) What I've done here is reduce the reality of the music down down down through several consecutive levels of reality to the simplicity of 1's and 0's. I've reduced away a lot of meaning along the way, and no one would call this the "real" Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

Fortunately, there is a way to rebuild from the raw digits to the original symphony. I'm not stuck trying to divide by zero. I start by putting the CD into an electronic reader that is hooked to an amplifier and loudspeakers, and soon the sound fills the room. But to achieve that revival from the very primitive level of 1's and 0's, I rely on over a century of scientific innovations and engineered technological products to make it happen. Proceeding further upward requires the use of human capabilities. The pathway back to the original involves the consecutive sciences of electronics, acoustics, human hearing, neurology, perception, and appreciation. Each of those is a higher reality that must be added back in.

But still, have I truly captured the symphony this way? Given enough loudspeakers, the sound filling my room adequately matches the concert-hall sound. But what CD could bring back the human experience from half a century ago, of sitting in Cleveland's Severance Hall alongside my college girlfriend listening to George Szell conduct the orchestra's magnificent performance of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony? Furthermore, my experience is quite different from the WWII veteran who hears in the opening notes the Morse code for "victory."

The point of this illustration is to explain reductionism from one level to a lower level, and to underline that human experience is far more than just the simple reduced end-point of science alone.

A very important distinction needs to be made between scientific reductionism and philosophical reductionism. Every scientist engages in the first every day – it's what we do; but the second is a mistake made by those who cannot or will not recognize the increasing levels of true reality

In our world today, there are spokesmen regularly appearing on TV who contend there is no higher reality than man. Their contention continues that a human being is nothing but atoms and molecules, and there is no such thing as a mind, a soul, an intellect or free will. Just step downward through the consecutive sciences until it's all gone, multiplying each "extra something" by zero a lot of times to get there. This is the realm of philosophical reductionism. To hold this position is basically incoherent, because it requires using the properties of the human mind to deny the existence of the human mind.

On the other hand, accepting the notion that a human includes a spirit which accesses higher reality leads to a far different outlook on life. In reaching upward toward those higher levels, we make use of human language, thought, and culture to climb the ladder. And somewhere along the line, we leave the world of science behind and advance into the realm of belief. From that vantage point, we can look back and judge how our accumulating scientific knowledge influenced that climb.

Unfortunately, the limitations of sensory perception and human language get in the way of grasping higher realities. In written books that go back thousands of years, conventional words often were unable to express the intended meaning of the author. Consequently, supplemental interpretation and expansion was necessary. The ancient Hebrews used the Torah as the basis for their way of life, but supplemented it with the Talmud and a rich collection of narratives known as the Midrash. Here there are stories – myths – that are intended to convey a higher truth than any words appearing on the page.

Much of the Bible was written not as history, but as witness – the awkward struggles to convey a higher meaning by an author who is locked into the confining space of ordinary language. It's like having to multiply by zero in the middle of describing a scientific calculation. Something significant is going to be lost in any downward reduction from an inner understanding to the written language.

Faced with this impediment, it is plausible that writers sometimes turned to mythology to express their ideas. The New Testament narrative of the Three Kings fits rather well the profile of a Midrash: the essential message conveyed is that the salvation brought by Jesus is for all people, not just His own nation.

As centuries passed, that literary style led to embellished stories of the generosity of St. Nicholas, which eventually morphed into the custom of gift-giving and the Santa Claus tradition. The editorial from 1897 in the New York Sun titled "Yes, Virginia" presents an excellent explanation of the spiritual meaning of that narrative: http://www.nysun.com/editorials/yes-virginia/68502/.

I think the best reason to study science is to learn the limitations of science, and to be able to see how reductions take place. Armed with that understanding, it's easier to recognize the higher realities that make life meaningful.

First Day Hikes Campaign Noted By Park Service

The Maryland Park Service (MPS) will sponsor free guided hikes in 17 state parks on New Year's Day 2012 as part of America's State Parks First Day Hikes. This nationwide initiative is designed to offer participants an opportunity to get outside, exercise, enjoy nature, and welcome the New Year with friends and family.

"We are excited to host First Day Hikes as part of this national effort to get families and friends outdoors and into our parks," said MPS superintendent Nita Settina. "Starting off the New Year with an invigorating walk or hike in one of our beautiful state parks is a way to cure cabin fever and burn off those extra holiday calories."

First Day Hikes in Maryland include family-friendly, easy to moderate, guided hikes that let adults and youth alike reconnect with nature after the busy holidays, according to Settina. Hikers may bring pets on a leash for many of the guided hikes. A complete listing of all First Day Hikes in Maryland, including locations, difficulty, and length, can be found online at dnr.maryland.gov/publiclands/firstdayhikes.asp.

America's State Parks is an alliance of state park systems in all 50 states. Represented by regional board members of the National Association of State Park Directors, America's State Parks is a collaborative effort to strengthen the importance of more than 6,000 state park systems across the nation and showcase how state parks enhance and contribute to one's quality of life.

First Day Hikes originated more than 20 years ago at the Blue Hills Reservation, a state park in Milton, Mass. The program was launched to promote both healthy lifestyles throughout the year and year-round recreation at state parks. Many other states have offered outdoor recreation programs on New Year's Day; however, this is the first time all 50 state park systems have joined together to sponsor First Day Hikes. More information can be found online at americasstateparks.org.

Rush Is Among Graduates Of Leadership Md.

Jason B. Rush, senior vice president, chief risk officer, and director of operations for First United Bank and Trust, Oakland, recently completed an eight-month leadership development program sponsored by Leadership Maryland.

Leadership Maryland, celebrating its 19th graduating class, honored Rush, a McHenry resident, along with 51 statewide classmates at a black-tie reception and banquet held December 6 at the Renaissance Harborplace Hotel in Baltimore.

Leadership Maryland, an independent, educational leadership development organization, informs top-level executives from the public and private sectors about the critical issues, challenges, and opportunities facing the state of Maryland and its regions. After participating in a broad range of experiences, these leaders are prepared to address these issues and serve as important participants in the unified effort to shape Maryland's future.

It's the season of gift giving...to friends, to family, to strangers. We can give without loving, but we cannot love without giving. A loving gift may be material or something as simple as a smile, a hug or a listening ear. God's gift of His Son, Jesus Christ, was the greatest gift of love and sacrifice; when we accept God's gift we have everything, without it we are the poorest of the poor. Thank God for His wondrous gift; praise Him as you worship this season of joy.

A Plea for Civic Virtue

We live in a time when partisan politics threatens to make us feel like half the country is our sworn enemy. That friends and families can be divided by something as superficial as whether they identify themselves as Democrats or Republicans is unfortunate. It may not be as bad as it was during the Civil War, but the rhetoric on both sides certainly makes it feel divisive and engenders enmity rather than kindness and fellowship. It may be necessary and even a good thing for politicians to argue forcefully for their sides. That is what a representative democracy entails. But, we should do our best to get along with our fellow Americans, whichever party they belong to. One way to advance that goal is to avoid demonizing the other side. Trust that the men and women working in government are not evil, self-serving despots (and if you truly believe they are, then vote against them). And don't assume that members of the other party are ill-intentioned or stupid. We should all do our best to contribute to society what we can. That means paying our fair share of taxes. What is a "fair share" is of course open to debate, but people who avoid paying taxes by cheating or otherwise failing to declare income are not contributing fairly. Finally, we should get involved politically, which entails becoming reasonably knowledgeable about the issues and the persons running for office and voting our conscience.

"Then Jesus said to them, 'Give back to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's.'"

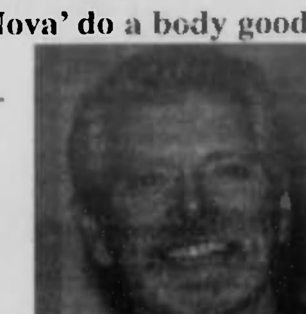
Can Fox's 'Terra Nova' do a body good?

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



Stephen Lang

Q: Is the Stephen Lang who plays Commander Taylor on "Terra Nova," and was in "Avatar," the same Stephen Lang who was in the TV series "Crime Story"? This Stephen Lang has the same face, but is incredibly fit. – Mark Dorn, Whitewater, Wis.

A: That's what dedication to your craft will do, since the actor worked to shape his body specifically for those roles. He did weightlifting to make himself look convincing for his "Avatar" role, and for Fox's "Terra Nova" – as well as the recent movie remake of "Conan the Barbarian" – he dropped 20 pounds. As might be expected, he's a big advocate of physical activity, but he also advises people to take a day off from their workout regimen if they feel they need it.

Q: Alex Trebek used to walk over and talk to the contestants at the break on "Jeopardy!" Now, he sits behind the desk. Then at the end of the show, he would stand and talk with them, but not now. Why the change? – Lance Ellering, Stevensville, Mich.

A: It's likely related to the injury done to his Achilles tendon while he was chasing a thief who broke into his San Francisco hotel room last summer. He fell during the pursuit, and damage that required surgery was done, the type that can take some time to heal. Bear in mind that new "Jeopardy!" episodes are taped about two months before they air, and it's likely Trebek has been trying to take it as easy as possible as the healing process continues.

Q: How many of the cast members of "It's a Wonderful Life" are still alive? – John Richards, Orange, Calif.

A: The most significant is Karolyn Grimes, who played Zuzu, one of the children of George and Mary Bailey (James Stewart, Donna Reed). Invariably, she makes appearances each holiday season, as she has this month in the Turner Classic Movies documentary "A Night at the Movies: Merry Christmas!"

Grimes also is a frequent guest at theatrical showings of the Frank Capra-directed classic, and she maintains a connection to a museum of memorabilia from the film in Seneca Falls, N.Y. She also wrote a cookbook that invokes the Zuzu name in its title, and she has another seasonal favorite in her list of acting credits ... "The Bishop's Wife," starring Cary Grant, David Niven and Loretta Young.

Q: In the movie "Network," a Kathy Cronkite is listed as the actress who plays the Patty Hearst-like heiress working with radicals. Is she any relation to Walter Cronkite? – Paul Stevens, Denver

A: She is, indeed, one of the offspring of the late CBS News legend. In fact, her father was a good friend of the director of "Network," Sidney Lumet ... who passed away last spring and had, in his days of directing television, worked with her father on the program "You Are There."

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was American inventor and businessman Thomas Alva Edison who made the following sage observation: "Opportunity is missed by most people because it comes dressed in overalls and looks like work."

• If you're planning a trip to Peru to ring in the new year, you might want to bring along some yellow underwear. In that country it's considered lucky to wear it on the first day of the new year.

• Another story to add to the file on clueless criminals: In 2010, two men in Portland, Ore., went to a supermarket and started removing price tags from items and filling their backpacks with the loot. However, they didn't even make it out of the store with their ill-gotten gains. It seems that the would-be crooks decided to do their shoplifting during a "Shop With a Cop" promotion, and there were 60 police officers already in the store -- in uniform.

• You may be surprised to learn that the Statue of Liberty is not located in New York. While it is on Liberty Island in New York Harbor, it's technically within the territorial waters of Jersey City, N.J.

• If you're going to be traveling to California anytime soon, you might want to keep this in mind: In that state, shooting game from a moving vehicle is illegal -- unless the animal you're aiming for is a whale.

• A baseball will travel farther on a hot day than on a cold one.

• The oldest bakery yet uncovered was found by archaeologists digging in the Egyptian city of Giza in 2002. They say that the baking trays, bread molds and ovens there date back to 2500 B.C., right around the time the pyramids were being built.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 1, 1876, the first area-wide New Year's Day Mummers' Parade is held in Philadelphia. Mummers' celebrations in America date back to colonial times. Reciting doggerel and receiving in return cakes and ale, groups of five to 20 people, their faces blackened, would march from home to home, shouting and discharging firearms into the air

• On Dec. 28, 1895, the world's first commercial movie screening takes place at the Grand Cafe in Paris. The film was a series of short scenes from everyday French life. Admission was charged for the first time.

• On Dec. 27, 1900, prohibitionist Carry Nation smashes up the bar at the Carey Hotel in Wichita, Kansas, causing several thousand dollars in damage and landing in jail. Nation became famous for carrying a hatchet and wrecking saloons as part of her anti-alcohol crusade.

• On Dec. 30, 1922, in post-revolutionary Russia, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is established. In the USSR, all levels of government were controlled by the Communist Party. Soviet industry was owned and managed by the state, and agricultural land was divided into state-run collective farms.

• On Dec. 31, 1937, Anthony Hopkins is born in Port Talbot, Wales. Hopkins is known for playing one of the greatest villains in movie history, the cannibalistic serial killer Hannibal Lecter in "The Silence of the Lambs" and its two sequels, "Hannibal" and "Red Dragon."

• On Dec. 29, 1940, London suffers its most devastating air raid when Germans firebomb the city. The next day, a newspaper photo of St. Paul's Cathedral standing undamaged amid the smoke and flames seemed to symbolize the capital's unconquerable spirit during the Battle of Britain.

• On Dec. 26, 1966, the first day of the first Kwanzaa is celebrated in Los Angeles. The seven-day holiday is a celebration of African-American family, community and cultural values, which include unity, self-determination, collective work and responsibility, economic cooperation, purpose, creativity and faith.

Q: I have three books of tickets from Walt Disney that were sent to me in 1970 or 1971 for being one of the first employees at the Florida attraction. Are they considered collectible? -- Henry, St. Cloud, Fla.

A: I spoke with several Disney collectors, and they seem to agree that your ticket books are probably worth in the $25 to $50 range.

Q: I have a shoebox full of old postcards that date back to the 1940s. Many are from the American West, including Arizona. Do you have a suggestion of how I can determine their value? -- Jim, Goodyear, Ariz.

A: One of the better groups in your region is the Tucson Post Card Exchange, 820 Via Lucitas, Tucson, AZ 85718-1046. This is an active club that meets the first Sunday of each month at the Pima County Medical Society Building, 5199 East Farness, Tucson, AZ 85712. If a holiday interferes, the meeting is rescheduled for the week following. Meetings begin at 2:30 p.m. Dues are only $15 per year and include a subscription to an excellent newsletter, "Postscript."

Q: I have a four-volume set of "Abraham Lincoln" by Carl Sandburg, published in 1939. How much should I ask for it? -- Jean, Apache Junction, Ariz.

A: There are dozens of copies available of the four-volume 1939 edition of Sandhurg's "Abraham Lincoln" at www.abe.com. Most are priced at $4 to $6 per volume. The first edition, originally published in 1926, is extremely rare and in the original dust jacket or slipcover can retail for several hundred dollars, depending on condition.

Holiday trees don't have to cost a fortune. A small tree with or without lights will do just fine. A local craft store should have everything you need to decorate it. I like bird-related items such as nests, pinecones, ribbon, garland, birdhouses, ornaments, etc. Have fun and be creative!

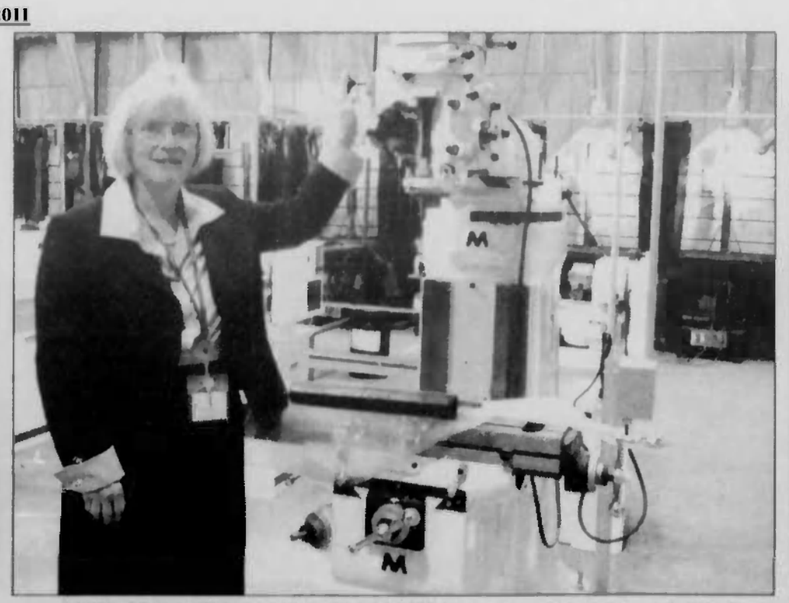
CELEBRATING 40 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

SVO TO COORDINATE ANNUAL CHASE – Sponsorship of the Snowflake Chase benefit race was transferred this year from the Garrett College Athletic Department under men's head basketball coach Dennis Gibson, pictured left, to the Garrett College Student Veterans Organization (SVO). Joshua Armstrong, a student, military veteran, and president of the SVO, pictured right, will coordinate the event, which is scheduled for January 14. See story for details.



DEVELOPING NEW CAREER PROGRAMS is a major part of the work that Carol Mowbray Brooks is now involved in at the Garrett College Career Technology Training Center in Accident. As the new coordinator for this facility, Brooks has been working closely with local business leaders, county officials, and other educators to establish new directions of growth. She is pictured above in the open lab area where welding and machining courses will be offered.

College Veterans Club Sponsoring Snowflake Chase

The 2012 Snowflake Chase, an annual 5-mile run and 2-mile run/walk at Deep Creek State Park, will be held Saturday, Jan. 14. The event is sponsored by the Garrett College Student Veterans Organization (SVO) in cooperation with Uno Restaurant. Registration will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. with the race beginning at 10 a.m.

Registration forms are now available online, and the deadline for pre-registration is January 5. The fee is $20. Free T-shirts will be given to those who pre-register. Others may sign up on race day for a fee of $25.

This is the first year that the college veterans group has been the organizing entity for the annual fundraising event. Joshua Armstrong, Garrett College student and president of the SVO, is spearheading the effort, taking over that responsibility from Lakers head basketball coach Dennis Gibson, whose team has sponsored the race for the past several years.

Armstrong, a veteran majoring in adventure sports, said he is "excited" about accepting the challenge of sponsoring the 2012 race.

"I ran in the Snowflake Chase last year," he said. "It was the first foot race I had ever entered. I had a great time doing it, and now I have the opportunity to coordinate it."

Proceeds from the race will benefit the GC Student Veterans Organization, which was founded just this past spring.

"This will be the first major fundraiser for our group," said Armstrong. "It will help us get up and running to provide services, activities, and support for the Garrett College family of veterans."

Steve Friend, a GC student and member of the veterans club, said he is also looking forward to the Snowflake Chase.

"Our veterans will be there to help out the day of the race, doing things like passing out water and helping to organize things," Friend said. "Some of us are also going to run in the race."

The Snowflake Race attracted nearly 200 participants last year, according to Armstrong, and this year a similar number is expected. This winter race is presented under the auspices of the Queen City Striders (QCS), a non-profit organization based in Cumberland that promotes health and fitness in western Maryland and surrounding communities in West Virginia and Pennsylvania through encouraging distance running, walking, and other social events.

For more information and to download an application for the Snowflake Chase, persons may go online to www.garrettcollege.edu or www.qcstriders.org. Armstrong will also be available to answer questions via e-mail at Joshua.armstrong01@students.garrettcollege.edu.

Mowbray New Coordinator At GC Tech Center

by Peggy Santamaria

The Garrett College community recently welcomed a new member, Carol Mowbray Brooks, who accepted the position of coordinator of the Career Technology Training Center (CTTC) in Accident.

The CTTC facility, located in the former Phenix Technologies building in the Central Garrett County Industrial Park, houses a variety of technological programs provided by the GC Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division.

Brooks brings with her a depth of experience in business, workforce skill training, and education. Her former employment with the Xerox Corporation included customer education, technical resources recruiter, workforce development, and serving as regional manager for mid-Atlantic Technical and Customer Service. During her career with Xerox, she worked with the technicians covering Garrett Country for several years.

"I applied for the coordinator position because it will give me the opportunity to use my previous business, workforce development, and technical and teaching skills," Brooks said.

"Carol is a perfect fit for our needs at the CTTC," said Julie Yoder, dean of Continuing Education and Workforce Development. "She has a wealth of experience and knowledge that will help Garrett College expand the course offerings at the CTTC to meet the needs of our students and the local business community."

A challenging list of goals has been established for the CTTC, which Brooks said she welcomes. Among them are:

•Increase the number of high-quality training courses and career certification programs.

•Offer training supporting the needs of students with all learning styles.

•Provide training schedule to meet the needs of students.

•Develop training to meet the needs of local businesses, government, and citizens.

•Maximize the use of local talent as instructors.

•Be the first place for employers to source for new employees because they are confident in the CTTC's programs, instruction, and high expectations for GC students.

Since assuming the position in mid-November, Brooks has been reviewing curricula and considering future plans for the center, with input from the local business and education community.

"I have focused on assessing our current programs at the CTTC, meeting leaders in the community, developing the winter class schedule, expanding courses in the welding certification program, gathering input from many sources to develop a list of potential new programs, sourcing for new instructors, and planning for the first quarter of 2012," she said.

Though faced with a rigorous task, Brooks said she is enjoying the challenge and her new colleagues at Garrett College.

"The coordinator position is in fact a great fit for my skills and personality," she said. "Everyone at the college – the president, deans, instructors, support staffs, security personnel, and peers – have gone out of their way to give a great Garrett County welcome and include me in any opportunity to learn more about Garrett College and the surrounding community," she said.

Brooks and her husband Neal, residents of the Swanton area, have six grown children and eight grandchildren.

For more information on the Garrett College Career Technology Training Center persons may telephone Carol Mowbray Brooks at 301-387-3770.

We extend a compassionate helping hand.

DeVore Inducted Into Beta Gamma Sigma Honor Soc.

Trevor DeVore, Grantsville, was recently inducted into Frostburg State University's chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, the international business honor society. A junior business major, DeVore was one of 14 students – four graduates and 10 undergraduates – inducted during the fall 2011 semester.

Beta Gamma Sigma provides the highest recognition a business student can receive in an undergraduate or graduate program, a spokesperson said. Its mission is "to encourage and honor academic achievement in the study of business, to foster personal and professional excellence, to advance the values of the society and to serve its lifelong members."

The FSU chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma was established after the College of Business received Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) international accreditation in 2005. Only AACSB-accredited schools can have Beta Gamma Sigma chapters.

Among the many membership requirements, a student's cumulative GPA must be in the top 10 percent of juniors, seniors, and graduate students.

Barnard Stresses Test, Maintenance Of Smoke Alarms

As winter begins to grip the area and structure fires tend to increase throughout the state of Maryland, State Fire Marshal William F. Barnard urges all Marylanders to test and maintain their smoke alarms.

"These life-saving devices can provide the needed advantage to escape injury and death from the ingredients of fire," stated Barnard.

According to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), from 2005 through 2009, 62% of home fire deaths resulted from fires where there was no working smoke alarm.

Smoke alarms should be installed on every level of the home and inside each bedroom. Interconnected smoke alarms with battery back-up operate even during a power outage. The benefit of interconnected smoke alarms is that when one smoke alarm activates, all other are activated, giving occupants the advantage of escaping a potentially lethal situation.

Barnard urges persons to follow manufacturers' instructions on placement of smoke alarms for battery-operated units. Alarms that are hard-wired must be installed by a qualified electrician.

He says that batteries in all smoke alarms should be replaced at least once a year. If the alarm "chirps," the battery should be replaced right away.

All smoke alarms should be replaced when they are 10 years old, and sooner if they do not respond properly when tested.

In addition to smoke alarm maintenance, residents are urged to plan and practice a home fire escape plan, know two ways out of every room, and determine a specific location outside to meet.

Charitable Giving Helps Everyone

To participate in the spirit of the holiday season, you may be thinking of making some charitable gifts. If so, you'll no doubt enjoy helping a group that does valuable work.

But to begin with, it's important to understand just how necessary your gifts are to the country's social fabric. Given the effects of the Great Recession and the slow recovery, it's not surprising to learn that charitable giving fell a combined 13% in 2008 and 2009, after adjusting for inflation, according to The Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University. And although 2010 giving increased by 2.1%, again adjusted for inflation, many groups are seeing tough times as 2011 comes to a close. So your gift counts.

And it can count for you, too. By contributing to a qualified tax-exempt organization [e.g., a charitable group that has received 501(c)(3) status from the IRS], you may earn valuable tax deductions. This is true whether you give cash or another type of asset, such as stocks or real estate. And you may be able to get further tax benefits if the noncash asset you've donated has appreciated in value since you purchased it.

Making charitable gifts now may help you reduce your taxable estate. As you may know, the estate tax exemption level has fluctuated in recent years, so it's hard for any of us to say for sure that we won't be subjecting our estates to these taxes. However, that doesn't mean you can't take steps now to plan for possible future estate taxes.

One such step might involve establishing a charitable remainder trust. Under this arrangement, you'd place some assets, such as stocks or real estate, in a trust, which could then use the assets to pay you an income stream over a certain period of time. When you establish the trust, you may be able to receive tax benefits based on the amount the charity is likely to ultimately receive, the charitable group's so-called "remainder interest." Upon its termination, the trust would relinquish the remaining assets to the charitable organization you've named. Keep in mind, though, that this type of trust can be complex, to establish one, you'll need to work with your qualified tax advisor and estate-planning attorney.

Another popular contribution vehicle is the "donor-advised fund." Here's how it works: You give cash or appreciated securities to the donor-advised fund, with the expectation of receiving a tax deduction for the contribution in that same year. You recommend which charities are to benefit from the contributions to the fund, and the fund invests and manages your contribution, along with the other assets in the fund. Again, you'll need to consult with your qualified tax advisor before establishing a donor-advised fund to help ensure you obtain any expected tax benefits.

As we've seen, you can follow different charitable giving strategies. But however you choose to make charitable gifts, you can take satisfaction in helping worthy organizations while possibly improving your own tax picture.

AAA Projects 91.9 Million Travelers During Year-End Holidays; Up 1.4%

The American Automobile Association (AAA) forecasts that 91.9 million Americans will travel 50 miles or more from home during the 2011-12 year-end holiday travel season, a 1.4 percent increase over the 90.7 million people who traveled one year ago. This year's expected year-end holiday travel volume is the second highest in the past decade and represents 30 percent of the total U.S. population.

The 11-day year-end holiday period is the longest holiday travel season of the year, affording many more Americans time to visit family or take vacations. AAA defines the year-end holiday travel season as Friday, December 23, to Monday, January 2.

"The overall economic situation for many Americans continues to improve compared to last year – and that improvement is driving a small increase in travel volume for this year's holidays," said Ragina C. Averella, manager of Public and Government Affairs at AAA Mid-Atlantic. "This year's overall travel projection is the second-highest year-end travel holiday volume in the past 10 years."

While pent-up demand was projected to inspire significant Thanksgiving holiday travel growth this year, holiday travel at the end of the year is less cyclical – volume tends to remain relatively consistent from year to year – so pent-up demand has less effect, according to Averella. Travel during the year-end holiday period did not see the dramatic drop following the 2008 recession that other holiday periods experienced. The 2008-09 year-end holiday travel volume of 85.7 million was 8.5 percent less than the 93.7 million year-end holiday travel during the 2006-07 peak.

Year-end holiday travel has grown each year since 2008-09; 89.5 million in 2009-10, 90.7 million in 2010-11; and a projected 91.9 million this year.

Fifty-nine percent of intending travelers feel the economy has either no impact on their travel plans or they feel like things have improved for them. The remaining 41 percent state an intention to scale back travel plans because of economic concerns. Given current economic conditions, a majority of travelers reporting no economic impact on their travel plans is a positive sign for the travel industry and another reminder of just how important traveling is to Americans.

Automobile Travel to Jump 2.1%

Approximately 83.6 million people (91 percent of holiday travelers) plan to take to the nation's roadways this holiday travel season, a 2.1 percent increase compared to 2010-11 when the number of auto travelers totaled 81.9 million. This year's projected automobile travel volume is the second highest in the past decade and only 100,000 less than the 2006-07 auto travel peak of 83.7 million. Automobile travel remains the preferred choice of transportation for 2011-12 Year-End holiday travelers, as nearly 27 percent of the total U.S. population will hit the roads.

The current national average price for regular unleaded gasoline is approximately $3.26 per gallon, about 28 cents more than one year ago. However, the national average price is about 72 cents less than this year's peak price of $3.98 on May 5.

Air Travel to Decrease 10%

Approximately 5.4 million leisure travelers (6 percent of holiday travelers) will fly during the holiday travel period, a 9.7 percent decrease from 2010-11 figures. This year's air travel volume is the seventh lowest in the past 10 years, as nearly 2 million fewer holiday travelers are expected to fly than did so during the decade's air travel peak in 2002-03.

Jet fuel costs and capacity cuts continue to impact holiday air travel. According to AAA's Leisure Travel Index, holiday airfares are expected to be 21 percent higher than last year's, with an average lowest round-trip rate of $210 for the top 40 U.S. air routes. This is the highest year-end holiday average airfare in the past five years.

Train, Bus, Other Modes of Travel to Increase

Other modes of travel (bus, trains, watercraft, multi-modal travel) will make up the remaining 3 percent of the total person-trips, with 2.9 million people expected to travel by these modes, 4.2 percent higher than the number in 2010-11. Economic conditions are dictating that some Americans who might otherwise travel by air or automobile are traveling by these alternative modes of transportation.

Hotel Rates Up; Car Rental Rates Down

According to AAA's Leisure Travel Index, hotel rates for AAA Three Diamond or mid-range lodgings are expected to increase a modest 1 percent from last year, with travelers spending an average of $126 per night, compared to $125 one year ago. Travelers planning to stay at AAA Two Diamond hotels can expect to pay 4 percent more, at an average cost of $92 per night, up from $88 last year.

Daily car rental rates are $40 on average, a 21 percent decrease from one year ago and the lowest seen in the past five years. As the demand for used cars fluctuates or car manufacturers offer fewer opportunities for buying back fleets, it can become harder for car rental companies to shrink their fleet to meet demand. With a larger pool of cars in the market, car rental companies must lower pricing to match supply and demand.

Distances to Decrease; Spending to Increase

According to a survey of traveler intentions, the average distance traveled by Americans during the year-end holiday travel season is expected to be 726 miles, a decline from 2010-11 when travelers planned to log an average of 1,052 miles. Propelling the reduction in expected travel miles is the 9.7 percent decline in air travel and indications that many air travelers are choosing shorter-distance flights.

The percentage of expected trips with a round-trip distance above 1,500 miles decreased from 23 percent last year to 17 percent this year. Median spending is expected to be $718, which is a 3 percent increase from $694 last year. Fuel and transportation costs combine to consume the largest share of holiday spending (32 percent), followed by shopping and food and beverages (tied at 19

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT LIGHTING CHANGES

by Lynn Little,
Extension Educator,
Family and Consumer Sciences
University of Maryland Extension

The Energy Independence and Security Act (EISA), passed in 2007, aims to lower the amount of energy Americans use by requiring the most common light bulbs to use less energy to produce the same amount of light.

Incandescent bulbs won't be illegal in 2012; they just have to waste less energy. The lighting standards require light bulbs to use 30 percent less electricity than does today's average light bulb. New options now available, like halogen incandescent bulbs and LEDs, use a fraction of the amount of electricity compared to the old incandescent bulbs, and are available with the same quality of light.

There are exceptions. Certain specialty bulbs are not required to adhere to the increased efficiency law. Traditional incandescent bulbs will still be available for heat lamps, appliance lights, candelabra, decorative tinted and colored lights, and three-way lights, as well as some other types of specialty bulbs. For a complete list of exceptions, go online to www.energysavers.gov

There are three new types of energy-efficient bulbs: halogen incandescent, compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs), and LEDs. Halogen incandescents use 25-30 percent less energy and can last up to three times longer than older versions. CFLs use about 75 percent less energy than the old bulbs and last up to 10 times longer. LEDs save 75 percent or more in energy costs and have the potential to last up to 22 years.

Your household can save between $50 and more than $100 a year with energy-efficient light bulbs. EISA cuts costs by ensuring you get the same amount of quality light for less money. Since lighting is approximately 12% of your household energy bill – about as much as running your refrigerator, washer, dryer, and dishwasher combined – energy-efficient light bulbs will save you significant money on your utility bills.

To help you with your transition to energy-efficient light bulbs, here are some tips:

•Don't just look for watts when buying light bulbs. Read the labels for information on brightness (in lumens), estimated yearly energy costs, life expectancy, light appearance, and energy use.

•Do not change every bulb in your house at once. This allows you to test what types of energy-efficient lighting works best for you, while beginning to see savings. Start with the lights that are on for the longest periods each day and use the most power. In most houses that is likely to be in the kitchen, living room and dining room.

•Know your light fixtures. There is an energy-efficient bulb for almost every type of lighting. Evaluate the type of bulb that fits best for each fixture. For example, do you need a light bulb that dims?

•Don't assume color appearance is always the same. The color appearances you will see with energy-efficient bulbs include warm white, soft white, cool white, bright white, and natural or daylight.

Learn more about lighting by visiting the Alliance to Save Energy's lighting topic page at www.ase.org/lighting-info and the U.S. Department of Energy site, www.energysavers.gov.

Balance of the purchase price, together with interest on the unpaid purchase money at the current rate contained in the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Trustees, payable in cash within ten days of final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court. There will be no abatement of interest due from the purchaser in the event additional funds are tendered before settlement or if settlement is delayed for any reason. TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE FOR THE PURCHASER. Adjustment of current year real property taxes will be made as of the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the purchaser. All past due property taxes paid by the purchaser. All other public and/or private charges or assessments, including water/sewer charges, ground rent, whether incurred prior to or after the sale, and all other costs incidental to settlement to be paid by the purchaser. All transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be paid by the Purchaser. Purchaser shall pay all applicable agricultural tax, if any. Purchaser is responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property, and assumes risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale. If ratification or settlement is delayed for any reason there shall be no abatement of interest. The sale is subject to post-sale audit of the status of the loan with the loan servicer including, but not limited to, determination of whether the borrower entered into any repayment agreement, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to the sale. In any such event, this sale shall be null and void, and the Purchaser's sole remedy, in law or equity, shall be the return of the deposit without interest. If Purchaser defaults under these terms, deposit shall be forfeited. The Trustees may then resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulted purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds resulting from said resale even if such surplus results from improvements to the property by said defaulted purchaser. If Trustees are unable to convey either insurable or marketable title, or if ratification of the sale is denied by the Circuit Court for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Violation Hearings Held By Garrett Co. Liquor Control Bd.

The Garrett County Board of License Commissioners/ Liquor Control Board held violation hearings earlier this month for five retail establishments for the sale of alcohol to a minor. Three additional establishments will go before the board on Thursday, Jan. 5, 2012, for the same offense.

"The hearings are a result of the businesses failing recent compliance checks conducted by underage cadets and troopers form the Maryland State Police," said a board spokesperson.

The establishments that failed the compliance checks were the Good to Go convenience store, Friendsville; Sebold's Texaco, Deer Park; Swanton Grocery, Gas & Liquor, Swanton; Keyser's Ridge Liquors, Grantsville; and Zip'eez, JG's Pub, El Canelo restaurant, and Dutch's at Silver Tree, Oakland.

In accordance with the board's rules and regulations, the fine and suspension guideline for the first offense is a $100 fine and "letter of reprimand" in the licensee's file; the second offense is a $500 fine and up to a 10-day suspension; the third offense is a $1,000 fine and up to a 30-day suspension; and a fourth offense is the maximum fine and up to a one-year suspension of the license.

Along with these fines and suspensions, the board may require additional alcohol awareness training and review and evaluate internal procedures concerning sales to minors at the licensed establishments.

"If the licensed establishment goes two years with no additional sales to minors, its record is expunged," the spokesperson noted.

The clerks who sold the alcohol to the cadets were charged criminally by the Maryland State Police and will have to appear in Garrett County District Court.

The license holders for the above-mentioned establishments were summoned before the board for the violation hearings. The following fines and penalties were issued: Zip'eez, JG's Pub, and Sebold's Texaco all received a $100 fine and a letter of reprimand was placed in their files. El Canelo's and Good to Go both received a $500 fine and five-day suspension of their alcoholic beverage licenses.

The January violation hearings will be for Dutch's for a first offense, Swanton Grocery for a second offense, and Keyser's Ridge Liquors for a third offense within a two-year period.

Additional violation hearings before the board include the Deer Park Sportsman Club and Wildwater Inn. An administrative show cause continuance hearing was held for the Deer Park Sportsman Club on Dec. 1. At the hearing the Liquor Control Board reviewed an incident report from the GC Sheriff's Office under Article 2B § 10-401 (a) (2), "Revocation and Suspension," as it relates to the peace or safety of the community in which the place of business is situated, and Article 2B § 12-108, "Sales to Minors and Intoxicated Person Prohibited."

"After reviewing the incident report and hearing the testimony, the board concluded that violation of Article 2B occurred on the licensed premise," said the spokesperson.

The board ordered a fine of $1,000 for the infraction and a 15-day suspension of the alcoholic beverage license.

Wildwater Inn is scheduled to appear before the board on Jan. 5 for two separate violations of the Clean Indoor Air Act.

"The board received notification from the Garrett County Health Department in citing the establishment for failure to prohibit smoking in an establishment as required by COMAR 10-19-04-05A (1)," the spokesperson said.

Local compliance checks are conducted by the Maryland State Police with Drug Free Communities grant funds from the Garrett County Health Department. The Drug Free Communities Support Program is a grant-funded program from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration. For more information, persons may call Debbe Owston, Liquor Control Board administrator, at 301-334-1925.

Flue Fire Results In Destruction Of Oakland Area House Friday

What started as a flue fire resulted in the destruction of a one-story, single-family house west of Oakland Friday afternoon.

Volunteers from the Oakland, Deer Park, Deep Creek, and Terra Alta, W.Va., fire departments were summoned to 2963 Oakland Sang Run Road at 3:38 p.m. after fire was discovered by an occupant of the house, Douglas Lewis. The house was owned by Al Booth.

Flames were coming from the roof of the wood-frame house upon the arrival of the first unit from the Oakland VFD. Also home at the time of the fire were Lewis's two sons, Tanner, 12, and Tristan, 8. All three escaped the structure uninjured.

According to a report filed by Deputy State Fire Marshal Jamie Rodeheaver, approximately 40 firefighters responded to the scene, and it took them about 20 minutes to bring the blaze under control. He determined that the fire originated in the roof around the chimney and then spread throughout the crawl space of the house, as well as down into the living spaces.

Fire, smoke, and water damage was extensive. Rodeheaver estimated the damages to be $50,000 to the structure and another $25,000 in contents. His report noted that the occupants are receiving assistance from the American Red Cross.

Also responding to the scene was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported. Fire personnel remained on the scene for about 1½ hours.

Two Injured In Sunday Evening Vehicle Accident

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a two-vehicle accident on Christmas Day that resulted in two being transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

Investigation revealed that Robert William Woods, 89, Oakland, had been traveling west on Maryland Highway/Rt. 135, when a vehicle driven by Laura Lee Biggs, 42, Keyser, W.Va., pulled into his path from Swanton Hill Road. Woods and passenger Ruth Geneva Woods were both taken by Southern Rescue Squad to GCMH for treatment of injuries. Oakland and Deer Park fire departments also responded to the 5 p.m. scene.

Biggs was cited for failure to yield right of way to oncoming traffic.

Garrett Jobless Rate At 6.2% In November

The unemployment rate for Garrett County, which several years ago was typically among the highest among Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City, is now among the lowest, with the rate for November dropping to 6.2%, which is slightly below the state's percentage (6.4) and two full points below the national average of 8.2%.

The November 2010 jobless rate for Garrett County was 7.5%, and the year-to-date average percentage is 7.3%. Maryland's year-to-date average is 7.0%, and the national unemployment rate year-to-date for 2011 is 9.0%.

Thirteen Maryland counties and Baltimore City had rates higher than Garrett County's for November, including neighboring Allegany County with a rate of 7.5%. Washington County's rate was 8.2%. Harford County also had a rate of 6.2%, while Worcester County led the state with a jobless rate of 13.7%.

Judge Sherbin Denies Motion In Minnick Case

Statements made by Jeffery Charles Minnick to police when questioned about the stabbing deaths of Timothy Lax and Jessica Baker will be admissible in trial, Garrett County Circuit Court judge Jim Sherbin ruled earlier this week.

Minnick's lawyer, Joseph M. Owen, had filed a motion with the court to have the statements thrown out. Owen argued that his client was in custody but had not yet been read his Miranda rights when investigators began questioning him about the murders. Sherbin denied the motion during a hearing on Tuesday.

Minnick, 46, has been incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail without bond since June 3, when he was arrested and charged with two counts of first-degree murder.

Two days earlier, Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Reese Street in Oakland when Minnick was discovered by residents and told them he had been stabbed. The defendant was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for his wounds.

The deputies and K-9 unit went to a place Minnick was known to frequent – a wooded vagrants' camp site along the railroad tracks between 2nd and 8th streets in Oakland. Upon their arrival, they found the bodies of Baker, 18, and Lax, 24. Both victims were of the Oakland area.

A warrant was served on the defendant upon his discharge from the hospital on June 3. According to police, Minnick alleged during questioning that a fourth person at the camp killed Baker and Lax, but that person has been eliminated as a suspect.

Minnick has a criminal jury trial scheduled for Feb. 7, 2012.

Public May Park In Alder St. Lot When Visiting Courthouse

County administrator Monty Pagenhardt announced this week that parking spots are now available to courthouse visitors in the Alder Street parking lot in Oakland. Parking was previously limited to county personnel, but because of new security measures at the courthouse, public parking spaces have been designated in the lot and will have signage indicating such.

The Alder Street parking lot is located directly across from the courthouse's main doors, where most visitors are now required to enter and pass through a security station.

Parking is also available at the metered parking spaces on Alder Street, as well as nonmetered spots on streets near the courthouse complex.

State Receives Bonus For Efforts To Enroll Children in Medicaid, CHIP

Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) officials have learned that Maryland will receive a $28,301,384 performance bonus from the U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) for Fiscal Year 2011 because of Maryland's consistent efforts to identify and enroll eligible children in Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) coverage.

"Since 2007, we have expanded coverage to more than 300,000 Marylanders, almost half of them children, and this bonus is a great recognition of those efforts," said Lt. Governor Anthony Brown. "However, there is more work to be done, and Governor O'Malley and I will continue our commitment to expanding access to care because it is critical to improving the quality of care, expanding wellness and prevention strategies, and bending the cost curve."

The bonus is granted under the Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2009 (CHIPRA) to states that satisfy two sets of criteria: States must have in place at least five Medicaid and CHIP program features known to promote enrollment and retention in health coverage for children; and states must demonstrate a significant increase in Medicaid enrollment among children during the course of the past year.

Maryland's continuing efforts over the course of FY 2011 satisfied the requirements. Specifically, CMS recognized Maryland's efforts to base eligibility on a family's income alone (and not also on the family's possessions); eliminate the requirement that applicants apply in person; streamline the initial application form so that it is as simple as the renewal form; and allow proof of eligibility for other low-income programs to be deemed sufficient to qualify for Medicaid (which is known as "express lane eligibility" under CHIPRA).

"We will learn the lessons of this success for future efforts to help people enroll in health insurance in Maryland," said Dr. Joshua M. Sharfstein, secretary of DHMH. "We have a great foundation for further progress with the Health Benefit Exchange."

"Ensuring that all eligible children are enrolled in Medicaid and CHIP has been our number-one priority, and this bonus not only highlights those efforts, but also will help us continue those efforts in the new year," said Charles J. Milligan, deputy secretary for health care financing.

Since January 2007, the number of children enrolled in Medicaid and CHIP has increased from 407,300 children to 545,200. Nearly 41,000 children were enrolled in FY 2011 alone, the year related to the CHIPRA bonus.

GC Liquor Control Board Asks For Legislative Bills

The Garrett County Board of License Commissioners/ Liquor Control Board submitted legislative requests to Del. Wendell Beitzel and Sen. George Edwards last week during their annual prelegislative meeting with the Garrett County commissioners.

Debbe Owston, board administrator, requested four changes on behalf of the board to Article 2B, Laws and Regulations of the State of Maryland Relating to Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco Tax.

The board requested a new Class B Beer On-Sale license for restaurants as defined in Garrett County. Currently, this class of license is not available and would be a viable option for a few licensed restaurants or a potential new restaurant wanting to sell only beer, Owston noted.

A request to amend Article 2B 10-103(b) would allow the board to receive updates from the Criminal Justice Information System Central Repository on criminal history record checks of licensees after the initial check was conducted during the application process.

A request was also made to enable Garrett County to "piggyback" on a Caroline County regulation as it appears in Article 2B § 10-405(j)(2). This would allow the board the following authority: "after a finding that the activities enumerated in this section have occurred, the Board of License Commissioners may decide whether or not to revoke a license, notwithstanding the mandatory provisions of subsection (b) of this section of the article as they relate to nudity or sexual display on a licensed premises.

The board also requested to piggyback on a Baltimore City regulation as it appears in Article 2B § 7-101 (d) (3) (i). This would allow the qualifying nonprofit holder of a Class C special beer, wine, or liquor license to purchase beer or wine from a wholesaler or retailer on the days permitted by their approved alcoholic beverage license issued by the board.

SEVERAL COMPLETE WATER QUALITY MONITORING TRAINING – Eight members of the Youghiogheny River Watershed Association and the Savage River Watershed Association completed a December training in water quality monitoring procedures at the West Virginia University Water Research Institute and the Mon River Quest Program. The U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) supports a water research institute in each state, with the WVWI the premier water research center in West Virginia. In addition to such programs as the National Mine Land Reclamation Center, Appalachian Clean Streams Initiative, Hydrology Research Center, and Acid Drainage Technology, the Institute invited the two local watershed associations to participate in a daylong "train-the-trainer" program in the Alliance for Aquatic Resource Monitoring program for Marcellus shale gas drilling. The representatives were trained in study design, site selection, water quality monitoring procedures, and protocol, and were trained to use the monitoring equipment and meters. The YRWA and the SRWA are planning a local water quality monitoring program involving local groups and organizations to begin in the spring of 2012. The groups are coordinating with local and state government agencies as well. From left are Melissa O'Neal, YRWA; James "Smokey" Stanton, YRWA president; Terri Belasco, YRWA; Carol McDaniel, SRWA; Annie Bristow, SRWA; Alan Klotz, YRWA; Samantha Gravelle, YRWA and town of Mtn. The funds will be earmarked for the nuclear medicine imaging equipment at the hospital, a Foundation project that is to be completed this week. "We are very appreciative of the support shown by Susquehanna Bank and all the corporate and individual sponsors who helped make the Foundation's recent gala a success," Johnson said.

Regional Primaries?...

It is hoped that our readers will pardon the redundancy of this column today, as the topic is not a new one, but on the eve of the beginning of the primary elections/caucuses in our nation, and with so much in the media (ad nauseam) about the race to nominate a Republican candidate for the 2012 presidential election, a reiteration seems legitimate.

Voters in Iowa will go to their polls next Tuesday to cast their ballots in this race, and by the end of January, voters in three other states (New Hampshire, South Carolina, and Florida) will have done likewise. In all probability, a GOP presidential nominee will have been selected after those primaries, or at least the field will be pared from a half-dozen down to two, maybe three, candidates.

Almost 30 states will hold their primaries before Maryland does so on April 3. By that time, there is almost no question that the nominee will have been selected – selected by a relatively tiny minority of Republican voters from a handful of states.

Is it just this writer, or does this "system" seem totally undemocratic, as it literally usurps the voting power of the great majority of our nation's citizens? Why should the value of the votes of any tiny group of citizens be so much greater than that of the votes of the rest of us? The system has also caused such a competition among the states that we now have primary elections as early as January 3, as states vie to be the ones who get to make these important selections for the entire nation. It's ridiculous.

It is recognized that there would be some logistical problems with conducting all state primaries on the same day. For one, it would be far more difficult for the candidates to campaign. However, could there not be, say, four regional primaries held, with each region comprising a dozen or so states? There would be a rotation of the four regions each presidential election year, with each getting a turn to be first. The region voting first this year would then vote fourth the following presidential election year, then third, then second, then first again.

This seems just too simple to work, and may pose a host of unforeseen problems. But it would certainly be a far more equitable system that what we have now.

To the Editor:

I want to compliment Dr. Tom Sheahen on his excellent response to a reader's question in the 12/22/11 edition of The Republican. Science does indeed operate from the most fundamental levels of physics to near the top of our seemingly limitless human desire to understand everything, but it yields at that point to powers that extend even further into our mental and spiritual capabilities.

While science overtly seems at odds with theological concepts at times, it is in fact a natural response to using our miraculous, perhaps God-given, brain power to decrypt the mysteries surrounding us. That we use these amazing organs to pursue truth and understanding can only be a just reward for any higher power having a hand in our creation.

My thanks again to Dr. Sheahen for his lucid explanation and his willingness to field such a question and provide an answer that helps erase the apparent boundary between science and faith.

To the Editor:

Dr. Sheahen continues to misinform readers of The Republican about climate change, compelling me to speak out again. I am an active climate scientist working at a university, publishing and teaching in the field for two decades. My specialties are the Earth's carbon cycle, oceanography, and regional climate change. Sheahen is a solid-state physicist with no credentials in climate science, obvious by the numerous errors in his December 8 "Everyday Scientist" column. There is not sufficient space here to discuss all of the errors, so I will focus on two: the cause of the carbon dioxide (CO_2) rise and the contribution of CO_2 to the greenhouse effect.

Sheahen states that the human cause of increasing atmospheric CO_2 is merely "plausible, but not guaranteed." There are at least three lines of evidence (bookkeeping calculations, carbon isotopes, and oxygen) that show that humans are unequivocally causing the current rise in atmospheric CO_2. I'll explain one, which is based on the observed decline of atmospheric oxygen.

When fossil fuels are burned, CO_2 is released and oxygen is consumed. Other possible CO_2 sources, such as volcanoes, are not only too small to explain the CO_2 increase, but they would not produce the observed oxygen decline.

The second erroneous statement by Sheahen is that CO_2 has a "slight" greenhouse effect. It is well known that the greenhouse effect warms the Earth's surface by 60° F. Various climate scientists have calculated that CO_2 accounts for about a quarter of the greenhouse effect. So, if CO_2 were to be completely removed from the atmosphere, the Earth's surface would cool by about 15°F, and that's without any feedbacks, like reduced evaporation from a cooler ocean, which would remove water vapor (another greenhouse gas) from the atmosphere and promote further cooling. That's not a slight effect.

The bottom line is that the Earth is warming rapidly and that humans very likely play the dominant role in it. That's the science, and though there are still some details to be worked out, enough is known that the focus of the public climate discussion should shift to policy issues such as adaptation to climate change and attempts to minimize the impacts of climate change.

That's not to say we shouldn't keep asking questions about climate science. But don't ask Sheahen, ask a climate scientist. An excellent online resource is the American Geophysical Union's Climate Q&A Service.

To the Editor:

I would like to say thank you so very much to the students at Crellin Elementary School and the Crellin Outreach Partnership for blessing my family and many others with a huge box of groceries for the holiday season! Their generosity was greatly appreciated. The card we received had the following in it:

"Kindness – Pass it on! Give a flower, eat lunch with someone new, listen with your heart, visit a sick friend, clean a neighbor's walk, offer a hug, give an unexpected gift, make a new friend, pick up litter, say 'hello' to a stranger, call a lonely person, open a door for someone, help carry a load, plant a tree, pass a kindness on, buy someone's meal, cheer up a friend, thank a teacher, give blood, reach out to a child, do one kind act every day, leave a thank-you note, offer your seat, tip generously, be tolerant, let another go first, bake cookies for emergency workers, tutor a student, give a compliment, pay the next driver's toll, lend a hand, give a balloon to a child, offer a ride, celebrate the day, respect others, encourage a child, walk a dog, do a favor, forgive mistakes, drive courteously, share a smile. www.actsofkindness.org."

The card also said, "You were nominated to receive this random act of kindness! It is our wish that you will enjoy the upcoming holiday seasons and that you may be inspired to spread this kindness to others. Being kind to others doesn't have to be out of need, but always from the heart. Scientific studies show that acts of kindness result in significant health benefits, both physical and mental. The practice of caring for strangers translates to immense immune and healing benefits. Helping others can enhance our feelings of joyfulness and reduce the unhealthy sense of isolation."

Again, I'd like to thank Crellin School and Outreach. It's really nice to see a school reach out to its community. It's awesome to see these kids setting a great example! I'd like to remind each of us to try harder to be kind to others. Have a wonderful day, and remember to share a smile!

To the Editor:

The Garrett County commissioners (Commissioner Crawford opposed) recently requested that state legislation be passed requiring the county to bargain with the union representing the county roads employees. This action is puzzling in a year when many state and local governments across the U.S. are trying to reduce the power of public employee unions. If the normal pattern for public sector unions develops, Garrett County can expect the following:

The union members and their families and friends will constitute a potent voting bloc. With their manpower and campaign contributions they will probably be a decisive factor in elections, especially primary elections, in which many candidates divide the vote. If the union-supported candidate wins, he or she can be expected to repay the union for its political support by agreeing to higher wages, detailed work rules (a euphemism for restricting the county's power to manage and discipline unionized employees), and greater health and pension benefits. (Garrett County may be particularly susceptible to such a situation, as most of the property taxes are paid by non-resident taxpayers who cannot vote.) Some of these costs will be immediate, but pension and other benefit expenses may only be realized decades later. This pattern is likely to continue with each election cycle until sometime in the future Garrett County taxpayers wonder how their taxes got so high relative to the benefits which county government is providing to its citizens.

In pushing for the legislation, the union representative is quoted as saying that the legislation is necessary to protect the union from "bad" commissioners and "unscrupulous politicians." These "bad" commissioners and "unscrupulous politicians" are the elected representatives of the citizens of Garrett County. In essence, the union is asking to be protected from the voters. Who will protect the people of Garrett County from the union?

To the Editor:

Facts for a misguided friend.

For the record, I did not and do not condone or sanction the indiscretions of any candidate for public office, but I wonder what Mr. Krewson's response was to the Clinton fiasco in the late 1990s. Was it the same as most of the response from the Left? Was it just a Right Wing witch hunt, and it really had no bearing on his leadership? After all, it's a purely personal matter.

This points to the difference in how we look at issues. Those who walk a life of faith recognize that man is carnal in nature, and even though we have had our sins forgiven and have a new life in Christ, we are still subject to temptation and may occasionally stumble when we take our eyes off the cross. Thus it gives the secular audience the opportunity to cry hypocrite. That is because they have no understanding of spiritual regeneration. That is also why we hear remarks such as, "If I became a Christian, I would have to give up all the 'fun' things in life, such as drinking and everything else that goes with the carnal, unregenerated lifestyle."

What they do not and cannot comprehend is the fact that to the person whose life has been dramatically altered in this way, those things are no longer fun or enjoyable.

The secular non-believer, on the other hand, has no such moral dilemma. He has no moral compass for a guide, but simply the current social mores. Whatever is socially acceptable and feels good. We have opposing sets of goals. On one hand, we have values based on God's word, and on the other hand, well, I guess some things just can't be called values. Values enhance, perversions tear down and destroy. This includes many of the popular causes and movements so prominent today.

Do I detect a hint of frustration in Mr. Krewson's last letter? Could it be that the truth is causing him a bit of discomfort? And, yes, I am drawn to his letters because I believe someone needs to counteract and expose this kind of rhetoric for what it really is. We are all entitled to our own opinions, but we can't make up our own facts.

I hope everyone had a wonderful Christmas, especially the Krewsons.

CELEBRATING 40 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

Message from the President's Desk — Garrett College

by Dr. Richard MacLennan

On behalf of the Garrett College community, I wish each and every one of you a prosperous 2012. It is exciting to be entering into a new year with all of the promises and opportunities that lay ahead as I reflect on the many accomplishments of 2011.

During the 2011 fall semester, Garrett College achieved the milestone of enrolling more than 900 degree and certificate seeking students. Typically these students are young, fresh out of high school, and beginning at Garrett College with the goal of learning new skills or enhancing their education so they are ready to get a good-paying job or transfer to a four-year college or university. Added to this number is another 4,000 or so learners who took a GC Continuing Education and Workforce Development course or program designed to meet a wide variety of community interests. Continuing Education classes include those that lead to industry certification, such as welding, lifeguarding, swim instructor, truck driving, and certified nursing assistant. Other courses commonly offered are personal enrichment classes like aqua aerobics, introduction to guitar, and one of my favorite titles: 101 Ways to Live Longer & Slow the Aging Process. During its 40 years of service to the community, Garrett College has delivered a vast array of diverse learning opportunities to over 30,000 students.

Among the things I would like for you to know about your GC is that it is truly is a gem among its peers. There are 16 publicly supported community colleges in Maryland, and, yes, GC is the smallest, but something else you may not know about GC is that when compared to the other 15 community colleges on measures of student success, Garrett is either at the top or very near the top on almost every measure. This is not a new phenomenon, but a source of pride at GC for many years. Our students who transfer to four-year institutions typically outperform students who began their college careers at those schools. Historically, for example, more than 90% percent of GC students who transferred achieved a 2.0 GPA after one year at their new institutions, which is higher than the state average.

Something else you may not know about community colleges in general is that they are dynamic organizations that constantly adapt to meet the needs of the community, employers, and technological demands. This year, for instance, we launched a "direct transfer" associate degree program in electrical engineering and an ATT in early childhood education, and modified the elementary education AAT to include special education. These programs add to the more than 40 programs area options available to Garrett College students. With the opening of the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC), Garrett College is proud to announce the start of an underwater robotics club. The club, known as Project Kraken, practices weekly in the pool and is scheduled to participate in its first international competition at the Marine Advanced Technology Education Center this summer in Orlando, Florida.

Throughout 2011, Garrett College administration, faculty, staff, and the board of directors conducted an integrated strategic planning process. During this process, stakeholders within the community met with Garrett College leaders in focus groups, as individuals and during board meetings, to provide input into the development of Garrett College's academic plan. This community and business involvement proved invaluable in the planning process and in informing college leaders of local workforce needs and trends. The new strategic, academic plan is nearly complete and aims to help guide Garrett College academic programming for the next five to 10 years.

The opening of the CARC in October 2011 marked a significant step toward meeting Garrett College's commitment to the community by providing a family-oriented community fitness complex. In addition to annual membership rates, the CARC now offers six-month, three-month, monthly, and day pass rates in an effort to best match individual and family needs. A sliding fee scale is also in place for Garrett County residents based on yearly income. Programming at the CARC includes aquatic and fitness classes that provide opportunities for exercise in the fitness center, multipurpose classroom, and two swimming pools. The I Can Swim! Program is well under way and is providing swim lessons to the county's kindergarten classes. I Can Swim! classes will resume in February. Garrett College is grateful to the Garrett County Board of Commissioners and taxpayers for helping to support this wonderful program with a $50,000 contribution; we continue to seek community and corporate support in an effort to ensure the I Can Swim! Program continues for many years to come.

The Career Technology Training Center (CTTC) in Accident opened in August 2010, is in full operation, and provides a state-of-the-art welding lab, an electronics and automation lab, and three classrooms. Numerous courses have been offered in the facility. A few of the winter offerings include Introduction to Machine Tool, Introduction to AutoCAD, Certified Nursing Assistant, Maryland Home Improvement, and Hazardous Materials Operations. Phase II of the CTTC is under way and promises to increase the number of educational offerings that include courses in the areas of alternative energy, technology and automation, and trades. The courses will be implemented on a cyclical basis based on workforce demand and interest.

The newly renovated Southern Outreach Center in the former Oakland Armory is providing us with opportunities to expand workforce development and credit courses that meet the needs of residents in the southern end of the county. Some examples of courses being offered this winter at the SOC include Ham Radio, Comparative Religion, Estate Planning, Advanced Cake Decorating, Office Skills, and Living Well with Chronic Conditions. If you are a business person with specific training needs for your employees, give us a call and let's discuss how Garrett College can provide the right training for you.

Looking into 2012, construction of the new gymnasium of the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex is on track to open in late spring. Planning for the gymnasium is under way to identify specific programming to be offered to the community. Garrett College is committed to making this facility accessible to all Garrett County residents.

The beginning of the New Year is a time when many people identify personal New Year's resolutions. All of us at Garrett College look forward to helping you meet your personal enrichment and educational goals. We are here to help you enhance your fitness level, search for a rewarding career, learn a new skill, increase your educational level, or pursue a special interest. I want to thank everyone in the community for their continued support of Garrett College, its programs, and its faculty and staff. You are encouraged to come visit us and become a part of the Garrett College family in 2012. Create your own Garrett College experience!

In his unusual social circles, he was known to have been extremely kind-hearted and generous, usually at his own expense.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Does Rick Perry have any clue about events in the last 40 years? Apparently, he is not aware that since 1971, when I turned 18 years old, the age for allowing citizens to vote became 18 instead of 21. In fact, the one primary ease my peers protested was that boys who were 18 could get drafted, but they were not allowed to participate in choosing our national leader. Maybe he really hopes that the 18-to-20 age group will not go to the polls on Nov. 6, 2012. Apparently he is not aware of what the general election means in 2012, even though he evidently desires for all people 21 and above to go out and vote for him for president.

I admit that the date of election day is often very easy for me, since it often falls on my birthday. Certainly, it was in 1960, because I clearly remember going to the Bittinger polling place with my Grandmother Glotfelty, who was a poll worker. It used to be located in a building beside Buckel's Store, not the fire hall where it is now.

That was a memorable election day in American history, since it ushered in major times for the White House. It started the era called Camelot by our first lady, a reference to the court of King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table. It was a time of wider social justice symbolized by the shape of the Camelot table instead of the regular rectangle where seating was determined by the status of individual knights. Those with higher status were seated closer to the king.

Why did three American banking firms get a down rating by one of the big rating agencies? Because they have an excess level of employee compensation. That is not because they paid too many regular employees too well. Of course not. It is because their top executives raked in several million dollars every year, plus large bonuses, regardless of how they were performing. It is just an entitlement benefit to the few ultimate Fat Cats in America.

But Citi-Group chose to fire thousands of ordinary workers to make their balance sheet better. They never seem to consider cutting the pay that goes to top executives.

I saw a beloved former student of mine. When she was in my classes, she was very conservative, and my tendency toward liberalism alarmed her. But we found many things in common between us. I tried very hard to convince her that she should vote for Obama in 2008, and she did. Now she is somewhat reluctant to do it again, because she is sad to see how his position chewed him up. She looked at him with an open mind and recognized that he is a fine man and wished him the best.

It is quite heartbreaking to see how the American spirit declined during my life. Largely, it got possessed by hate and selfishness. Contrast that to the atmosphere of early 1960 when we looked forward to a wonderful "New Frontier." That spirit returned for one shining day in January 2009.

I am not surprised that Iraq is now exploding into more civil war. Let's face it, there is no way that Americans can keep a peace-keeping force moving forward. Sadly, America is going in a similar direction toward a divided society, often based on religious beliefs. That is the root of the unrest in Iraq.

Do you oppose any kind of government regulation or oversight? What if you are the parents of a Missouri infant who died from bacterial illness due to formula contamination? Who can believe that that happened in America? I am glad that I never used any kind of infant formula. My babies fed on my own milk. And they were very healthy and happy babies. It was so easy – no fuss, no mess.

One senator said that we shouldn't extend unemployment benefits because the unemployed choose to stay home and watch television instead of finding a job. This is in spite of the fact that there are no available jobs. Some in Congress have probably never known any unemployed persons, and they believe the lie that it is only lazy African-Americans who are without jobs, or that only they benefit from welfare programs.

I got the most wonderful present yesterday from my health department psychiatrist, a big picture book about first lady Jackie Kennedy and her equine pursuits. Horses were an escape for her from the troubled family life of her parents.

It is very clear which American businesses choose to market products as Christmas gifts to the top 1 percent, the only Americans who have enough disposable money. So it is Lexus, Mereedes Benz, and other luxury automobiles. Who can buy a new high-end car as a Christmas gift? Not the majority of Americans.

According to the early numbers for early Christmas shopping from the very expensive stores like Neiman Marcus, they did very well. This situation is not sustainable for the overall American economy. The thing many children wished for from Santa Claus was a warm coat. In the case of the top 10 percent, that would be a mink coat for the lady of the house.

I wish I could think that the motivation of the large number of carolers is giving my home some holiday cheer. But that is not what I believe. I believe they target me as someone who is Godless, and never heard the Christmas message. I was brought up in a very devout Lutheran family, and we embraced the religious meaning of Christmas every bit as much as many Mennonite families do and did.

Do you think that your U.S. Postal Service delivery man would throw a carton containing a new flat scree television, as one Federal Express delivery man did recently? It is important that many Americans call Congress and tell them to stop passing laws to harm the survival of our postal service. Because they did. And they can change their position and support a basic essential government service. Many Americans still do their business through mail, not via the Internet.

My two WVU daughters are already home, and we enjoyed a lovely dinner and a walk down memory road: a Hanukkah celebration just like when they were little. We expect my oldest daughter Claire to arrive home later today.

I saw a brief, somewhat brisk snow shower an hour or so ago. You never know about snow in Bittinger – like a few years following my wedding. We went into the Christmas Eve service at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, and everything was brown. Then when we went outside after the service, there was the most lovely thick snowfall with huge fluffy flakes.

My girls are involved in a joyful reunion with their cousins. Today is the Friday before Christmas Eve. They joined Emma Bass and went down to the Whittemores' home to their Christmas cookie-making party. We have our tree up and decorated, but I have a whole bunch of gifts that I need to get wrapped.

How are parents across the nation just losing all these babies?

Can you believe we are seeing more major advertising blasts trying to get us to do some big shopping spree the day after Christmas? They say that one tenth of adults will return their Christmas gifts. I was never even vaguely displeased with any gift I received. Certainly not enough to brave crowds to return them.

As we pulled up to my house after the Christmas Eve service, several female deer ran across the lane in front of us.

We didn't have much snow in Bittinger for Christmas. But I call the couple inches of snow collected by my ramp qualifying barely as a white Christmas.

The Christmas Eve when John Beachy delivered my best Christmas present, Little Joe (I think in 1964), we had a howling blizzard. We had enough snow that he couldn't bring his pickup and horse trailer down the lane. I heard that my father was worried about my hearing Joey whinnying loudly as he was led in. But I did not. The first I learned about my wonderful good news was when I opened an envelope that contained a little poem by my parents. It ended with, "So go down to the barn and see your Little Joe."

A few years later, my father bought an Indian patterned saddle blanket for me. He was in the hospital after a minor heart attack, and I remember going to the hospital to thank him in person for it.

I just saw the most recent photograph of Congresswoman Gabriele Giffords, who is now approaching the year anniversary of the shooting that almost killed her. She survived, but six other people died. She looks pretty good for a person who was shot point blank and suffered massive brain damage. She is not quite as beautiful as she used to be, mainly because of her new short hair cut. They had to shave her long hair to treat her in the hospital.

It took about five years to regrow my hair. I never felt

THE MAGIC ROOM
by Jeffrey Zaslow
C. 2012, Gotham Books, $27; 285 Pages
Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

They were married on the kitchen floor. You remember it well, since you were the one who picked them up at day's end. The fashion-conscious bride wore something Grandma sewed, and toilet tissue as a veil. Her beloved, a blue pony with long mane and tail, wore an ill-fitting tuxedo borrowed from another doll that your daughter also loved, but that was not invited to the wedding on the kitchen floor.

It seems like yesterday since she was playing wedding, and now she's getting married herself. These days, it's all about the dress – but as you'll see in the new book The Magic Room by Jeffrey Zaslow, that's only part of the love story.

Fowler, Michigan, is your typical small town. There's a sandwich shop there, and a small cafe. The local mechanic is helpful if your keys get locked in your car. Main Street has seen its share of business closings, openings, and closings again.

But one store has stood in Fowler for more than seven decades; in fact, you might say that Becker's Bridal is Fowler's claim to fame.

When she was a very small child, Shelley Becker Mueller used to go with her mother to Becker's Bridal to hang out. Shelley remembers hiding behind the voluminous dresses, eavesdropping on brides-to-be, waiting for her mother to call her, or listening for her grandmother – who started the store – to order decisions.

Today, and not without a minor familial struggle, Shelley is the owner of the store and her own daughter works at Becker's Bridal. But the four-generation thing isn't what makes brides drive from all over to find a white dress. What makes them come is tradition – and the Magic Room.

Formerly a bank vault, the room sports teal carpet, gold-white walls, a pedestal, and mirrors that stretch to "infinity." There, women can see themselves from all angles and sparkles, better able to recognize The Dress. Mothers always cry in the Magic Room. It's where women become brides and dreams are made...

Like any good wedding, The Magic Room includes a bride. Several, in fact, and author Jeffrey Zaslow followed them from the moment they first stepped into Becker's Bridal. There's the one who saved her first kiss for her future husband; the one with a missing mom; a life-changing car accident just months before the ceremony; the widowed bride with angry children; and the 40-year-old who wondered if she'd ever get married.

Like every good wedding, there are mothers fussing, helping, hoping. And like every good wedding, you'll find love and tears here; choked-up fathers, seven-story cakes, and the kind of silliness that makes good memories. There are mini-disasters and big emergencies, doubts and divas, and yes, divorce. Overall, though, there's Happily Ever After in this book, and I was completely captivated by it.

I think you will be, too – especially if you were ever a little girl who loved fairy-tale weddings, or the mom who loved that little girl. For mothers and daughters alike, The Magic Room is a bouquet of perfection.

like myself until I had my long hair back.

Both sets of my grandparents married someone from a different kind of church. In the case of my Buckle grandparents, Charlie Buckle was Lutheran and his bride was Brethren. And she came from as far away from Bittinger as the Casselman River Valley! How shocking and scary. As for my Glotfelty grandparents, Oral was a Lutheran, while his bride Emma Brenneman was a Mennonite.

Most of their offspring went to college or some other form of post-high school education, and several married someone not from Garrett County.

Their children grew up and forged their unique identities and their own lifestyle, which sometimes led to more conflicts, especially when they tried to distribute the family fortune and possessions. I still feel a bit miffed that my sister scored my Pappy Glotfelty's lovely old roll-top desk. But that is a settled matter. I might have felt a twinge of resentment when I saw it in her house during our large Christmas gathering. But I did not bring it up.

Is it not a bit odd that the display of Garrett County kids covers a two-page spread of them in this newspaper with the deer they shot? No wonder I always felt like a duck out of water in Garrett County. And thank goodness. There were many photographs of me in The Republican, but none involved firearms.

I guess my first picture in The Republican was me with my grand champion 4-H fair Holstein heifer. A few years later, I had an only slightly less goofy shot of me as the winner of the Rotary Award for Outstanding Youth at the Garrett County Fair. The same is true of a picture of Bobby Custer and me as the junior division county winners in the 4-H public speaking county-wide contest.

Then, when I was a senior at NHS, there was a picture of me as a Maryland semi-finalist of the Betty Crocker search for a future homemaker. That was about the same time that I appeared as Garrett County Horseman Association queen. There were quite a few of Little Joe and me as one of the top winners at various local horse shows.

No spectacular honors, but still all required significant efforts from me, without a drop of blood spilled. But I guess, "each to his/her own achievements."

One of the nicest aspects of the very nice Christmas Eve service at Emmanuel Lutheran Church was that at last I got to see the little baby girl that belongs to Todd and Michelle Gibson. It was wonderful that Todd came home from Afghanistan in time for Christmas.

Equally moving for me was seeing and hearing my twin nephews and their older brother play their guitars as the prelude to the service, including a version of "O, Holy Night." My older brother Rodney also played beautifully on his clarinet. Rodney always blows a mean horn. All my siblings were/are outstanding musicians. But that talent kind of skipped me. I was a long-term member of the NHS marching band, but I only barely played the clarinet, so I was switched to bass clarinet, a much easier instrument.

Emmanuel's service is always very beautiful with many poinsettias decorating the church. Sometimes we have a traditional pageant of the Christmas story. I worked hard to produce a complete set of costumes for it many years ago. I hope they are still around.

Then we sing all the best Christmas carols. Sometimes we have a special music performance. The last year before my brother Scott left for Africa as a member of the Peace Corps, he performed the most spectacular version of "O, Holy Night." He performed a world-class performance of that difficult song, and a few years ago one of my nephews repeated it.

Then we do something that has been done since my childhood. All the congregation members get a candle, and we light them while we sing "Silent Night." It is simply perfect.

I have one only one wish for the upcoming New Year. That is that our nation would march toward a more perfect union.

Altar flowers at Zion Lutheran Church in Jennings were given in honor of Olivia Stewart, who celebrated her first communion on Christmas Eve. Logan Perry also celebrated his first communion on Christmas Eve at Emmanuel.

Installation of council members of the Bittinger Parish will take place during worship services this Sunday, Jan. 1. The parish council will meet next Tuesday, Jan. 3, at Emmanuel.

Report Says Maryland Falls Down In Providing Smokers Resources To Quit

by Emily Hooper
Capital News Service

Smokers in Maryland aren't provided enough help to quit, according to a new report by the American Lung Association. Maryland ranks third from the bottom of all states in providing resources to help smokers quit, according to the Lung Association.

The findings came as a surprise to Maryland health officials, said Frances Phillips, deputy secretary for public health services at the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

"We don't think it projects the whole picture of what's going on in Maryland by any means," said Phillips. "Maryland is doing really well, particularly compared to other states."

Maryland has cut the smoking rate more than 30 percent over the last 10 years – double the national average, according to Vincent DeMarco of Maryland Citizens' Health Initiative. It now has the fifth-lowest smoking rate in the country – significantly lower than some of the report's highest ranking states.

For example, Oklahoma, which ranks fourth from the top in resources, has one of the highest smoking rates in the country at 24.7 percent of the adult population. Only 15 percent of Marylanders smoke, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

However, the report didn't consider smoking rates. The rankings were largely based on state-funded tobacco prevention and cessation programs, which Maryland lacks.

Smoking has been proven to greatly increase the risk of strokes, lung cancer, and coronary heart disease, the leading cause of death in the United States.

DeMarco points to the state's tobacco tax and smoke-free law as examples of its commitment to reducing the number of smokers.

While these measures have encouraged people to stop smoking, "what they need is help with cessation advice, an active line to call, and low-income individuals need help with patches and accessories to help quit," DeMarco said.

Maryland is one of two states without tobacco ces-

Weather History

Dec. 30, 1988 - Unseasonably cold weather prevailed in the southwestern United States. A week of subfreezing temperatures in Southern California claimed the lives of five people. Redding, Calif. was blanketed with four inches of snow.

Dec. 31, 1962 - Perhaps the worst blizzard in the history of Maine finally came to an end. The storm produced 40 inches of snow in 24 hours at Orono and a total of 46 inches at Ripogenus Dam. Gale force winds produced snow drifts 20 feet high around Bangor.

WARD EARNS SINCELL AWARD – The Wisp Ski Patrol each year honors a member with the Robert B. Sincell First Aid Award, created in memory of Sincell, who was the first emergency medical teacher in Garrett County in the 1970s, and who served on the patrol at Wisp for more than 25 years. This year's recipient is William "Duke" Ward of Ellicott City (and Garrett County part time), who served as a patroller both at Wisp and several other locations for 33 years. He is a first aid and CPR instructor, and just recently retired from active patrolling. The award was presented by Mark Halsig, Wisp patrol director, at the annual banquet in November. The certificate states in part that the award is presented "in recognition and acknowledgment for his outstanding, humanitarian and dedicated service in teaching and training emergency medical care to the members of the Wisp Ski Patrol." He is pictured above left at the Sincell Publishing Company office in Oakland, with Don Sincell, son of Robert and also a long-time patroller, at right. A photograph of R. Sincell can be seen on the wall behind them.

SHS Boys No Longer Unbeaten, Fall To Campers In AMAC Clash

The undefeated record of the Southern High boys' varsity was wiped out last Thursday evening when the Rams were defeated by host Allegany, 86-71, in an Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference contest. It was the first loss in five starts for Coach Jon Hegeman's squad, while the Campers improved their record to 5-2 overall and 4-0 in conference games.

Southern's Alycia Horner Named AMAC Co-Player Of The Year

ALYCIA HORNER

Having led the Southern High School volleyball team in every stat for the past two seasons, senior Alycia Horner has been selected via a vote of Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference coaches as the AMAC Co-Player of the Year for the 2011 season.

The other Co-Player of the Year was Saydi Whiteman of Frankfort.

The daughter of Donald and Tracey Horner, Alycia was also named to the All-Area first team. She is a four-year member of the Ram varsity team, which is coached by Stephanie Stephens.

Horner also excels in the classroom, where she maintains a perfect 4.0 grade point average. She is the president of the SHS chapter of the National Honor Society.

She plans to continue her academic and athletic career at Alderson-Broaddus College next fall.

"I'm very proud of Alycia," said Coach Stephens. "It has been a pleasure to coach her at the high school level. She is an outstanding player and team leader, and I wish her all the best when she begins her college career."

OTHER RAM HONOREES

Southern's Corinne Fike and Natalie Arnold were recognized as honorable mention selections to the All-AMAC squad.

Fike, a senior, was an outside hitter for the Rams. She is the daughter of Andrew Fike and Evie Fike, both of Oakland. Arnold, a junior, was also an outside hitter. She is the daughter of Mark and Brenda Arnold, Oakland.

Also nominated to the All-AMAC team for Southern was Sara Sweitzer, a junior outside hitter. She is the daughter of Rodney and Barbie Sweitzer, Swanton.

The BookWorm

BOOKWORM'S BEST OF 2011

You were such an efficient shopper this year. You remembered everybody on your list: the kids, the spouse, Grandma and Great Aunt Judy. None of the cousins went without a gift this year. You even remembered the neighbors and your boss.

But there's one person you forgot to buy a gift for this year.

You.

And perhaps it's a good thing you waited, because you have plenty of time to find a book for yourself, a can't-miss read that will serve as a reward for being such a great holiday shopper.

Now that your appetite is whetted, look for these Bookworm's Best of 2011 picks...

ADULT FICTION

A chance at redemption is at the root of Emily and Einstein by Linda Francis Lee. This story about a woman, her dog, and her dead husband who only wanted a second chance is a charmer and it's a great place to start your new year.

The Night Circus by Erin Morgenstern has been on a lot of end-of-year lists this year, and for good reason: It's complicated, magical, and dark with a sense of foreboding. Plus, it's a story of love that can't ever be completed. What's not to like about that?

I was surprised at how much I loved Just Wanna Testify by Pearl Cleage, a novel about a benevolent man who takes care of his community, and how he deals with a threat to his people. It's edgy, a little scary, and contains a satisfying ending.

The soldiers are coming back from war, but You Know When the Men Are Gone by Siobhan Fallon is still one powerful book. Told in several related short stories, this novel is about the goings-on on a U.S. military base and what happens to the wives and families while the men are at war. Hint: This must-read is out in paperback on Jan. 3.

If Sons, Then Heirs by Lorene Cary is a novel about the past, the future, and how one affects the other. The characterization of this book is stellar, but pay attention to the details. Those are what drive this Best-Of pick.

ADULT NON-FICTION

I'm not entirely sure how I ended up with two nursing memoirs on this list, but I did...

Beautiful Unbroken: One Nurse's Life by Mary Jane Nealon is the story of the author, who only ever wanted to be a caretaker – but once she attained that goal, she spent a good chunk of her life running from it.

Arms Wide Open by Patricia Harmon is the gentle, soft true story of a midwife in the Appalachians, and – through the 1970s, communes, back-to-the-land years and more – how she came to love delivering babies.

Yep, I have two nurse's memoirs on my Best-Of list this year, and you really can't afford to miss either one.

Also on my list is The Chicken Chronicles by Alice Walker, the story of Walker's pet chickens and what they've taught her. This book was a big surprise because I never expected this kind of feathered-fowl love letter from this author, and because I was totally captivated by it so much.

Snarky, snippy, fun, and informative are the hallmarks of Concierge Confidential by Michael Fazio with Michael Malice. This is the true story of a man who became a concierge at a ritzy New York City hotel, and what he does at his job. Not only are the anecdotes stellar and well-told, but the authors' hints and tips for better service are worth wanting this book. If you're a traveler, especially, you'll love it.

Also loved Little Princes by Conor Grennan, a memoir [illegible]nan who decides to go on a round-the-world hike, but, lest his quest seem selfish, he decides to spend a stint at a Tibetan orphanage first. What happens is not only the basis of this charming, bring-a-tissue book, but it also gives readers a few laughs. Whatever you do, though, do not skip to the end of this book. You'll ruin it for yourself. You've been warned.

BONUS: The Mindset Lists of American History by Tom McBride and Ron Nief is a lighter, fun-to-read look back over the last century at pop culture, politics, and lifestyles, and it puts a lot of current events into perspective. I loved it. 'Nuff said.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS

So you need something to reward the kiddos for being good this holiday season. These books will make them smile...

Yes, the holidays are over, but Thanksgiving Graces by Mark Kimball Moulton, illustrated by David Wenzel, is one of those gracious books you'll want to pull off the shelf really often. This gentle rhyme tells the story of a family dinner with a guest list that keeps growing, and the lesson a little boy learns from it. For ages 3-8.

I was stunned at how much I loved Small as an Elephant by Jennifer Richard Jacobson. This is the (fictional) tale of a boy whose mentally ill mother abandons him in a Maine park, and his resilience and resourcefulness in surviving and getting home. Two things: This is a great story for kids ages 9-13 (and for adults, too!) but it might scare smaller children. Also, I got this book on CD, which I thought made it better; I listen to audiobooks in my car, in fact, and this one made me want to go places.

Teenie by Christopher Grant and Planet Middle School by Nikki Grimes are both about growing up and enduring those tween and early teen years. I loved the characters in these "girl books," and I loved how their respective authors gave us a chance to see inside their heads. And for boys who are looking for the same kind of book, give them On the Come Up by Travis Hunter. These three books are perfect for anyone ages 12 and up.

And there you have it – 15 books to reward yourself (or someone else), to take on that mid-winter vacation, for sitting by the fire, or for no reason other than you want to read them because they're great.

W.Va. Woman Driving Without License Arrested

A West Virginia woman was arrested following a traffic stop by Garrett County sheriff's deputies Christmas morning.

Deputies stopped a Ford F-150 on Hutton Road for operating without a taillight. The driver was identified as Savannah Rae Sidebottom, 18, Aurora. Subsequent investigation into the stop revealed that Sidebottom did not have a driver's license. She was transported to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

sation benefit for state employees. The other state is Louisiana

"I don't understand it personally because Maryland has a vast interest in public health," Williams said.

Tobacco prevention programs are another area where "Maryland isn't doing great," she said.

Funding for such programs has fallen significantly in the last few years. Of an estimated $550 million in tobacco-generated revenue from settlement payments and tobacco taxes, only .8 percent is spent on tobacco prevention programs, according to a report by the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids.

Resources like the Quitline, a hotline for smoking cessation services, have been forced to work with tighter budgets. Maryland has budgeted $1.20 per smoker, a fraction of the $10.53 per smoker recommended by CDC.

Additional funding comes from the federal government, since 30 percent of people who call the Quitline are enrolled in Medicaid, a program equally funded between state and federal government, said Phillips. The state was one of the first to receive federal money for the Quitline.

Despite its low funding, Williams applauded Maryland for supplying patches or gum to Quitline callers free of charge.

And the Quitline, staffed by professional counselors, never has a busy signal, said Phillips.

"The services are there," he said.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

JANUARY SUN – As January begins, the sun appears in front of the stars of Sagittarius, moving a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. In the early morning of Jan. 20, the sun enters Capricornus, where it remains until the evening hours of Feb. 16. Both of these star groups are nearly lost in the sun's glare in January. The star group Aquarius is to the east of Capricornus so it sets after the sun, appearing low in the southwestern dusk. The star group Scorpius (to west of Sagittarius) rises before the sun and is visible low in the southeastern dawn. In early January, sunrises in Garrett County are at about 7:38 a.m., while sunsets are at about 5:05 p.m. (9.45 hours of daylight). Around the end of January, Garrett County's sunrises are at about 7:25 a.m. and sunsets occur at about 5:38 p.m. (10.2 hours of daylight). So during January, the stars are last seen around 6:30 a.m.(early dawn) and then reappear about 6:25 p.m. (late dusk).

JANUARY MOON – On New Year's Eve, the evening moon is half full in the southwestern evening sky. Along the straight or left edge of the moon, the sun there is rising, lighting up the crater rims and mountain ranges. Those with binoculars or telescopes can see the craters and lunar terrain best at this moon phase or shape. The moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter on Jan. 2. Binoculars held steadily may allow you to see a few of Jupiter's large moons as tiny points astride the planet. On Jan. 6 and 7, the moon appears above the star group Orion in the southern evening sky. On Jan. 8, the moon is full, rising as the sun sets and hanging in the sky all night long. On Jan. 13, the moon appears near the yellow planet Mars in the late evening sky.

On Jan. 16, the half-full moon appears to the right and below the planet Saturn in the predawn morning sky. On Jan. 23, the moon passes north of the sun, swinging from the morning sky (to west of sun) to the evening sky (to east of sun). After 6 p.m. on Jan. 25, the crescent moon appears in the west southwestern dusk, below and to the left of the planet Venus. On the next evening, the crescent moon appears above Venus. On Jan. 29, the crescent moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter. On the next evening, the moon appears half-full, once again at its best for viewing craters and mountains with binoculars or a small telescope.

JANUARY PLANETS – The five nearest planets are easily seen by eye, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. Of the five, Mercury is usually the most difficult to see, at a low angle to the sun and seen very close to the horizon. Mercury can be seen very low in the southeastern dusk in the first week of January, when it rises more than an hour ahead of the sun. The brilliant planet Venus is great in January with its setting time increasing from 2.5 to 3 hours after sunset. Venus sets at about 7:40 p.m. in early January to 9 p.m. in late January. Jupiter is easily seen in the evening sky, starting well up in the south in the dusk and setting after midnight. In early January, Mars rises in the east at about 10:30 p.m.; at the end of January, Mars is rising about 8:55 p.m. In January, Saturn is a southeastern dawn object. At the start of January, Saturn rises at about 1:55 a.m., sliding to midnight as the month ends.

JANUARY STARS – In January, the bright winter evening stars are on full display in the 9 p.m. southeastern sky. First look for Orion with his three-star belt. The belt points left and down to Sirius, the night's brightest star. Sirius marks the throat of Orion's Big Dog. Above and to the left of Sirius is Procyon, a bright star that marks the head of the Little Dog. Orion's two brightest stars, Rigel below the belt and Betelgeuse above the belt, point upward to Gemini, the heavenly brothers. High over Orion is the bright golden star Capella. Farther to the west of Capella are the Pleiades, or 7 Sisters star cluster, resembling a tiny dipper. The Big Dipper again can be seen in the north northeastern sky, with its scoop on top and handle below. The two top stars of the scoop point left to the North Star.

JANUARY PROGRAMS – Frostburg State will resume its sky shows in February, with Sunday programs at 4 p.m. in Compton Science Center. The programs will first review the current evening sky sights. The February main feature will be "Bears and Their Skies," reviewing the different species of bears (from polar regions to the tropics) and the sky sights they would see. The program will end in the Science Discovery Center where there is a large collection of bear specimens on display. To receive a Planetarium schedule (or bookmark), persons may telephone 301-687-7799 and give name and mailing address. Persons may also access the Planetarium section of the Frostburg State web site at www.frostburg.edu/planetarium.

4-H Club News

GARRETT HOOF PRINTS
by Brianna LeMay, reporter

The Garrett Hoof Prints 4-H Club held its monthly meeting at Carrie Zbel's house on Dec. 18.

There were 13 members in attendance. Club president Katelynn Hanek called the meeting to order. Members were asked what they wanted for Christmas as a roll call question.

Last month's meeting minutes were reviewed. Christine Welch gave the treasurer's report.

After some discussion, club members decided to help the Garrett County Animal Shelter. The group planned to meet the week after Christmas to shop for needed items and then take them to the shelter.

Members talked about upcoming events, and began planning a trip to the Maryland Horse World Expo. The horse bowl teams have all started practicing for Horse Bowl scheduled for April 22, 2012.

Members were again reminded of record books being due next month.

4-H re-enrollment papers were passed out to be reviewed and signed.

Seasonal Cycles

Winter was filled with migrating sparrows, catbirds, gold finches and robins. Spring was filled with cowbirds, wrens, titmice and woodpeckers. Babies, babies were everywhere during the summer. Fall has red-winged blackbirds, crows and blue jays. My yard is always filled and so is my heart. Happy New Year, everyone!

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was American journalist and satirist Ambrose Bierce who made the following sage observation: "There is nothing new under the sun but there are lots of old things we don't know."
• Those who study such things say that when a ladybug is frightened, it squirts a foul-smelling goo from its knees.
• You might be surprised to learn that approximately 40 percent of the oxygen in the world's atmosphere is provided by the verdant plant growth of South America's Amazon River basin.
• Mayan artwork dating back as far as 700 A.D. shows people preparing chocolate beverages. Chocolate was so valued by the natives of the Americas, the Maya even used cacao beans as currency.
• For reasons that aren't quite clear, in 1960 Macy's department store introduced a vending machine that dispensed men's underwear. After an initial flurry of shoppers coming to see the new contraption, the machine was doomed to obscurity due to lack of interest.
• Here's a question for the ladies: Are you a philematophobe? If you're a woman who hates to be kissed, you are.
• In 1958, then-Vice President Richard Nixon made a state visit to Venezuela. It seems he wasn't terribly popular there, and one of the protesters spit on him. The Secret Service detained the man, and an irate Nixon kicked him in the shins. • Only about 37 percent of the newspapers published in the Unites States are recyeled.
• The next time you're thinking about getting a new pet, consider this: Animal behaviorists say that a puppy can't hold a memory for more than 45 seconds.

Moments in time
THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 5, 1643, in the first record of a legal divorce in the American colonies, Anne Clarke of the Massachusetts Bay Colony is granted a divorce from her absent and adulterous husband, Denis Clarke, by the Quarter Court of Boston.
• On Jan. 7, 1785, Frenchman Jean-Pierre Blanchard and American John Jeffries travel from Dover, England, to Calais, France, in a gas balloon, making the first crossing of the English Channel by air. After almost crashing, the two men were forced to throw nearly everything out of the balloon to lighten the ship.
• On Jan. 4, 1847, Samuel Colt rescues the future of his faltering gun company by winning a contract to provide the U.S. government with 1,000 of his .44 caliber revolvers. Though never cheap, by the early 1850s, Colt revolvers were inexpensive enough to be a favorite with Americans headed westward during the California Gold Rush.
• On Jan 8, 1877, Crazy Horse and his warriors -- outnumbered, low on ammunition and forced to use outdated weapons -- fight their final losing battle against the U.S. Cavalry in Montana. On May 6, Crazy Horse led approximately 1,100 Indians to the Red Cloud reservation near Nebraska's Fort Robinson and surrendered. • On Jan. 6, 1925, in Madison Square Garden, Finnish long-distance runner Paavo Nurmi sets a new indoor world record, running a mile in 4:13.5. In the 5,000-meter race, the "Flying Finn" broke another indoor world record in 14:44.6. Nurmi often ran holding a stopwatch to pace himself, an innovation he developed.
• On Jan. 3, 1961, President Dwight Eisenhower closes the American embassy in Havana and severs diplomatic relations between the United States and Fidel Castro's government in Cuba. The action signaled that the United States was prepared to take extreme measures to oppose Castro's regime.
• On Jan. 2, 1971, 66 football (soccer) fans are killed in a stampede at a stadium in Glasgow, Scotland, as they attempt to leave a game. The tragedy was caused by the crush of spectators all leaving at the same time on the same stairway

Q: I have inherited an old steamer trunk, and I am curious about its value. -- Cooper, Aurora, Colo.
A: You didn't provide me with much information, so I am afraid that my answer will be rather general. The value of a trunk is determined by several factors, including quality, condition, age, style and if it has any unusual features. High-quality makers such as Louis Vuitton, Gillmore, Haskell and Goyard are especially prized, and the older a trunk, the more valuable it generally is. Style is also important, so look for dome tops, embossed metal covered, curve tops, flat tops, plain metal covers and wardrobe designs. Does your trunk have any unusual features such as special compartments in the lid, an extra tray or two, brass banding or large brass buttons. When assessing values, the history of a trunk might also play a role. Did it go West in a covered wagon during the great migration of the 19th century? Was it owned by a famous person? Although there are several excellent guides, my personal favorite is "Antique Trunks: Identification and Price Guide" by Linda Edelstein and Paul Pat Morse (Krause, $24.99). A good source is The Trunk Shop, 62 Canaan Back Road, Barrington, NH 03825. In addition to buying, selling and restoring trunks, this business also has trunk parts and features an in-depth refinishing book.

Q: Can you advise me of a source to evaluate the value of a signed baseball that has the autographs of six members of the 1958 N.Y. Yankees team. -- Frances, Albuquerque, N.M.
A: Although there are several shops in Albuquerque that specialize in sports memorabilia, I spoke to the people at Bubba's Baseball Bullpen, New Mexico's largest sportscard superstore, and they have agreed to help you. Bring the baseball to them for their verbal opinion. The address is 8206 Menaul Blvd NE, Albuquerque, NM 87110.

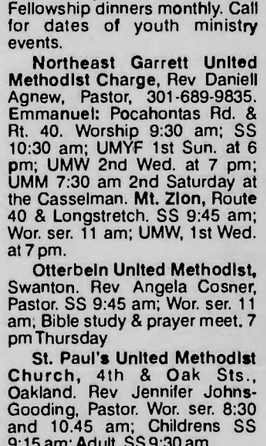
Speak Words That Uplift and Inspire

It is perhaps a cliché that words can heal or words can harm. But, it is nevertheless true that we can uplift and inspire our fellows with words or we can belittle and degrade them. Thus we should always choose our words carefully. Consider the effect which your words will have on others before you blurt them out. And of course words are not the only way for us to express ourselves to each other. Our body language and demeanor speak volumes. If you roll your eyes when someone is speaking you are showing contempt for them. If you ignore someone who is talking to you, this failure to recognize them can be profoundly disrespectful. The forms of language and discourse, both verbal and bodily, are ways in which we can either validate or invalidate others. We should speak words which uplift and inspire others rather than humiliate or attack them. Almost everyone responds to kindness, whether that is a kind word or a kind smile.

"A gentle answerturns away wrath, but a harsh wordstirs up anger."

Proverbs 15:1



Ask The Everyday Scientist

Q. There seems to be an awful lot of predictions that the world will end in 2012. Where do these come from? Why this coming year?

A. Predicting doomsday is a fad that comes and goes, but the peak in interest for 2012 probably originates with the Mayan calendar, which "runs out" in 2012. Some have taken that as a prediction that the world will end.

Recently the web site Beliefnet carried a review of the entire topic, and included interviews with NASA people who had looked carefully at the stars, planets, and asteroids and predicted absolutely nothing unusual for 2012. The URL for that is http://www.beliefnet.com/Inspiration/Galleries/NASAs-7-reasons-the-world-wont-end-in-2012.aspx?p=4#ixzz1gKMUQ7wn

A Bizarro cartoon appeared a few years ago where a couple of obviously-Mayan warriors were looking at a big stone tablet, and one says "I ran out of space in 2012," to which the other replies, "Wow! That will really freak somebody out someday!" Indeed, that captures the extent of the Mayan-calendar topic: they ran out of space. Beliefnet reports as follows:

The National Institute of Anthropological History in Mexico has been trying for months to quell the barrage of forecasts predicting the apocalypse. "The West's messianic thinking," the institute said in a recent statement, "has distorted the world view of ancient civilizations like the Mayans."

"We have to be clear about this," says Erik Velasquez at the National Autonomous University of Mexico. The claims are bogus – and only served to sell a lot of books. "There is no prophecy for 2012."

"Just as the calendar you have on your kitchen wall," says NASA's web site, "does not cease to exist after December 31, the Mayan calendar does not cease to exist on December 21, 2012. This date is the end of the Mayan long-count period. Then – just as your calendar begins again on January 1 – another long-count period begins."

End-of-the-world predictions have been around a long time, and occasionally some religious leader is embarrassed by guessing an incorrect date. Sometimes a very persuasive narrative leads to terrible consequences, as in 1669 when 20,000 Russians burned themselves to death in anticipation of the world ending.

Some people worry about the Earth being hit by a huge object from outer space. The most entertaining sci-fi movies are usually based on this premise. It can happen in principle

The asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter is basically a planet that never coalesced into a round ball, presumably because of the opposing pulls by Jupiter and the sun. It contains countless rocks of various sizes, which mostly remain in orbit, but occasionally some rocks interact (nearly touching) and one bounces out of its usual orbit, hurtling off into space somewhere. Some of those go inward toward the sun, and that is the source of objects that cross the Earth's orbit. The great majority cross when there's "nobody home," that is, when Earth is at a different position along its orbit; but occasionally one actually strikes the Earth, and we call that a "meteor."

A really large meteor hit the Earth about 65 million years ago, ejecting so much dust and debris that sunlight was shielded for years, causing plant life to die and the dinosaurs to starve to death. A cataclysm like that is estimated to occur maybe once in 100 million years. So in any given year you're facing odds of one in 100 million.

NASA tracks near-earth objects, and maintains a public web site with information updated daily. In 2011 there was a "near miss" by an object as big as a bus that passed inside the moon's orbit. Most people never even noticed. No tracked object is expected to do anything interesting in 2012.

The Internet makes it easy to spread rumors of coming disasters. A popular current one mentions a planet or brown dwarf star called Nibiru or Planet X or Eris that is approaching the Earth. The NASA web site says: "Nibiru and other stories about wayward planets are an Internet hoax." The tale is embellished with claims that a wandering planet discovered by the ancient Sumerians is headed toward Earth. Linking it to the Mayan-calendar termination leads to a predicted doomsday date of December 21, 2012.

NASA points out: "If Nibiru or Planet X were real and headed for an encounter with the Earth in 2012, astronomers would have been tracking it for at least the past decade, and it would be visible by now to the naked eye. Obviously, it does not exist."

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $5,000 in cash, cashier's check or certified check is required at time of sale. Balance of the purchase price, together with interest on the unpaid purchase money at the current rate contained in the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Trustees, payable in cash within ten days of final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court. There will be no abatement of interest due from the purchaser in the event additional funds are tendered before settlement or if settlement is delayed for any reason. TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE FOR THE PURCHASER. Adjustment of current year real property taxes will be made as of the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the purchaser. All past due property taxes paid by the purchaser. All other public and/or private charges or assessments, including water/sewer charges, ground rent, whether incurred prior to or after the sale, and all other costs incidental to settlement to be paid by the purchaser. If Purchaser fails to settle within ten days of ratification, he agrees to pay attorneys' fees in the amount of $750.00, plus costs, if the Trustees have moved to resell the property. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with such a motion on himself and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by said bidder at the time of the sale. If Purchaser defaults under these terms, deposit shall be forfeited. The Trustees may then resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulted purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds resulting from said resale even if such surplus results from improvements to the property by said defaulted purchaser. If Trustees are unable to convey either insurable or marketable title, or if ratification of the sale is denied by the Circuit Court for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Seller agrees to pay Sub. Trustees a fee of $395.00 for their review of and consent to any motion to substitute purchaser.

Is more 'Glee' in Kristin Chenoweth's future?

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Kristin Chenoweth

Q: Will Kristin Chenoweth be on "Glee" again? – Susan Price, Chicago

A: Currently a People's Choice Award nominee for the series, the Emmy- and Tony-winning Broadway dynamo says that she'd love to, should the Fox show's writers and producers be able to come up with something else for her recurring character, April Rhodes. The scheduling could be a little tricky, though; Chenoweth has been busy filming her own series, "GCB," which ABC is scheduled to debut March 4.

Q: I have noticed that the Chairman on "Top Chef" is also on "Hawaii Five-0" as Wo Fat. Does this mean "Top Chef" is scripted also? – Barbara Harkins, Palm Coast, Fla.

A: That's an interesting extrapolation, and the short answer is "No." It's actually Food Network's "Iron Chef America" that actor Mark Dacascos is the Chairman on, and yes, he's playing roles on both shows ... but even though that's the case for him on "Iron Chef America," the competition still is an actual competition, albeit done with a very dramatic flair. That doesn't mean the entire show is scripted, though CBS' "Hawaii Five-0" is, of course.

Q: Two of my favorite shows, now in repeats, are "Naked City" and "Route 66." Could you tell me what Paul Burke, Martin Milner and George Maharis are doing now? – Edward Kleinedler, Benwood, W.Va.

A: Burke, who would follow "Naked City" by starring in the series version of "12 O'Clock High," died in 2009. He was the grandfather of Alia Shawkat, who apparently will be rejoining her former "Arrested Development" co-stars to make new episodes of the comedy that will be available via Netflix in 2013.

Milner, who was with "Route 66" for its entire run (1960-64) and then made the Jack Webb-produced police show "Adam-12," is retired and puts much of his focus on fishing these days. And Maharis, who left "Route 66" before the third season ended (and was replaced by Glenn Corbett), is retired as well.

Q: What happened to ABC's "Shark Tank"? – Muriel Dameron, Irvine, Calif.

A: The show's third season is slated to begin Feb. 3, thus returning the program to the Friday slot it also had last time around. Mark Cuban will be among the panelists back to deal with the hopeful entrepreneurs, who get 13 episodes to display their ideas and wares this time.

Q: Which network has the Super Bowl this time? – John Powers, Columbus, Ohio

A: NBC, which can spend the next month promoting that it also will have a Madonna halftime show Feb. 5. That could be a real boon to the "peacock network" in another way, since it will follow the big game with the second-season premiere of "The Voice."

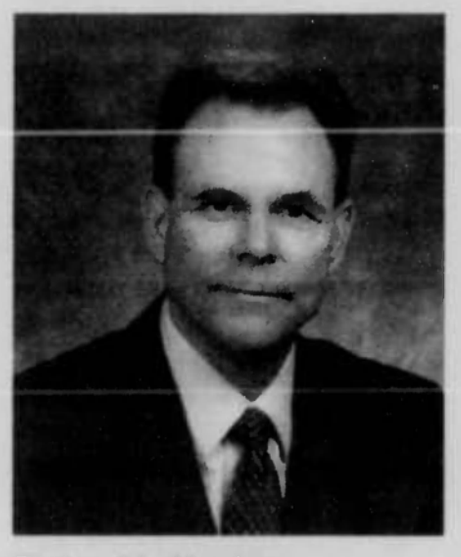
2012 SPRING CREDIT
WINTER CONTINUING EDUCATION

Garrett College
Spring 2012 Educational Opportunities



Richard L. MacLennan
President, Garrett College

The title of this letter speaks to spring and growth, even though we are in the dead of winter. In keeping with the title, on behalf of the Garrett College community, I wish each and every one of you a prosperous 2012. It is exciting to be entering into a new year with all the promises and opportunities ahead.

This past year, Garrett College experienced a record credit enrollment of 902 for the Fall 2011 semester. In FY 2011, Garrett College faculty and staff served approximately 1,000 students working to earn certificates or associate degrees that prepare them for transfer to four-year institutions or entry into careers. The College provided continuing education, workforce training, adult basic education, customized training for business and industry, and personal enrichment courses to nearly another 4,000 students. In total, the 2011 record numbers add to the more than 30,000 students served during the 40 years since Garrett College opened in 1971. These numbers speak volumes about how intertwined Garrett College and the residents of Garrett County are today. The community and its support is an integral part of the College's success, and we believe this is because the College is a part of your success. We'd like to remain the entity that provides you with educational, professional, and personal growth opportunities in 2012.

The friendly Garrett College admissions staff is eager to assist you in the enrollment process. If you are a first-time student to Garrett College, check out the eligibility requirements for the Garrett County Academic and Occupational Scholarships. These scholarships provide tuition support for recent graduates of Northern or Southern Garrett High Schools or for individuals who completed their GED during the past year. There are special provisions for military veterans and for persons receiving unemployment benefits. For more information on the steps to enrollment, please call 301.387.3044.

The opening of the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC) this fall marked a significant step towards meeting Garrett College's commitment to the community by providing a family community fitness complex. Since the CARC opened in October, the College has initiated a range of membership rates including annual, six-month, three-month, monthly, and day pass rates in an effort to best match individual needs. A sliding fee scale was also adopted for members based on yearly income to enable a more affordable rate. Programming for the CARC includes aquatic and fitness-related offerings that provide opportunities for exercise in the fitness center, multi-purpose classroom, and two swimming pools. The I Can Swim! Program is well underway and is providing swim lessons to several of the county's kindergarten classes. We are grateful to the Garrett County Board of Commissioners and taxpayers for helping to support this wonderful program with a $50,000 contribution; we continue to seek community and corporate support in an effort to ensure the I Can Swim! Program continues in years to come.

The list of courses in this insert provides a wide variety of offerings that enable the College to continue to meet the varied needs and interests of the community. The schedule includes a number of new or infrequently offered courses and workshops.

Driver Education
Zumbatomic
Underground Mining

The Career Technology Training Center (CTTC), which opened in August 2010, is in full operation and provides a state-of-the-art welding lab, an electronics and automation lab, and three classrooms. A few of the winter offerings include Intro to Machine Tool, Intro to AutoCAD, Certified Nursing Assistant, Maryland Home Improvement, and Hazardous Materials Operations. Phase II of the CTTC is underway and promises to increase the number of educational offerings that include courses in the areas of alternative energy, technology and automation, and trades. The courses will be implemented on a cyclical basis based on workforce demand and interest.

Remodeling of the Southern Outreach Center (SOC), located in the old Oakland Armory, has enabled the College to expand workforce development offerings in addition to offering credit classes at the SOC. This winter the SOC is offering Ham Radio, Comparative Religion, Estate Planning, Advanced Cake Decorating, Office Skills, and Living Well with Chronic Conditions, to name a few.

Looking forward into 2012, construction of the gymnasium, phase II of the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex, is on track to open in late spring. Planning for the gymnasium is underway to identify specific programming to be offered to the public. The College is committed to making this facility accessible to all Garrett County residents.

The beginning of the New Year is a time when many people identify personal New Year's resolutions. All of us at Garrett College look forward to helping you meet your personal enrichment and educational goals. We are here to help you enhance your fitness level, search for a rewarding career, learn a new skill, increase your educational level, or pursue a special interest. In September 2011, the College added Electrical Engineering, Early Childhood AAT, and a modification of the Elementary AAT to include Special Education. These programs add to the over 40 programs of study and numerous workforce development options available to you.

I want to thank everyone in the community for their continued support of Garrett College, its programs, and its faculty and staff. You are cordially invited to become a part of the Garrett College family in 2012 and create your own Garrett College experience.

Sincerely,
Richard L. MacLennan
President, Garrett College

Spring 2012 Payment Information

To assist our students and their families in meeting their financial obligations, we offer a deferred payment plan as an alternative to traditional payment arrangements. It is important that students understand their payment obligations. We encourage students to contact the Business Office at 301-387-3061 if they have questions.

1. Full financial aid—If you are receiving enough financial aid to cover your entire balance, there is no charge to defer your account balance.

2. Partial financial aid—a) If you bring a statement of your financial aid awards to the Business Office, complete the appropriate paperwork, and pay any balance not covered by financial aid by January 11, 2012, there is no charge to defer the portion of your bill covered by financial aid. b) If you bring a statement of your financial aid awards to the Business Office and would like to defer any remaining balance, you may enroll in a payment plan at www.highereducationservices.org/. There is a $35 application fee.

3. Regular deferred payment plan—Further information is available at the Business Office. You may enroll at www.highereducationservices.org/.

If you are covered by an outside party such as Western Maryland Consortium, AmeriCorps, Division of Rehabilitation Services, your employer, etc., you must have the appropriate paperwork on file by January 11, 2012, to avoid interest and/or late fees. Payment plan dates are December 1, January 1, February 1, March 1, and April 1.

Delinquent Accounts

We will charge delinquent accounts a $25 late fee. In addition, we will refer delinquent accounts to our collection agency which is currently the State of Maryland's Central Collection Unit. Once an account is referred to CCU, a collection fee of 17% will be added to the account, the debt will be reported to consumer reporting agencies, and Garrett College can no longer settle the account. If you have a delinquent account, you will not be allowed to register for the upcoming semester. In addition, no grades or transcripts will be released until the account is paid in full. If you pay with a personal or business check, grades and/or transcripts will be held for 30 days after receipt of payment due to the possibility of insufficient funds or stop payments. Accounts paid with either cash or credit cards can have information released by the next business day

Continuing Education & Workforce Development Spring 2012 Noncredit Course Schedule

The Continuing Education department is looking forward to serving the community again this winter. Courses will be available in many areas, including: Computer Applications, Workforce Development and Career Preparation, Health, Wellness and Fitness, EMS and Fire Training, Adult Basic Education, Lifestyle and Leisure, and Children's and Home School programming. In addition, Continuing Education is now offering many online courses in various areas.

Registration for non-credit courses can be completed in person, by phone, or by fax. Persons interested in registering for a course may visit the office, located in room 210 of the Continuing Education building. They may also call the main line at (301) 387-3069, or fax a registration form (found in the back of schedule booklets) to (301) 387-3096. When registering by phone, or in person, students will speak with one of three registration specialists: Carol Newman, Sarah Friend, or Jenna Rush.

Most courses have a registration deadline which is generally one week prior to the start of the course. This allows for ample time to notify students and instructors, should a course not meet its minimum enrollment. The department recognizes the busy lives which our community members lead, and asks that interested participants register early so as to ensure classes are not cancelled due to enrollment issues.

Payment procedures are as follows: for courses which meet four times or less, payment will be due in full at the time of registration. This payment will officially register a student within a course, therefore reserving that spot for them. Registrations not accompanied by payment will be held on file until payment arrives; however, they will not be considered officially registered or counted in enrollment numbers until such payment has been received. For classes which meet for four sessions or more, or have a cost of over $100.00 (excluding one-day courses), payment plans will be available. Specific plans will be determined by the Program Director or Coordinator in charge of each course. Please call for more information.

Schedules are mailed three times per year: late December, early April, and late August. Call the office at (301) 387-3069 or email at carol.newman@garrettcollege.edu, with your mailing address, to ensure you get your copy.

Comparative Religion---Religion has been an important aspect of life, customs, rituals and culture of Garrett County. Come learn more about your own faith by comparing it to other types of religious practice. We will look at the major religions of the world, briefly trace them historically, and attempt to extrapolate their major philosophical and theological components. Religion asks life's ultimate questions--Who are we? Why are we here? What is the meaning of life? What, if anything, are we supposed to do? In asking these and other questions religion has looked to ancestral myths, revealed texts and, in modern times, to science. Such serious questions form the basis of this study of many religions. Our comparisons of various religions will not be for purposes of determining value, but rather for the purpose of understanding better the religious environment of our world.

Garrett County Scholarship Program

Since 2006, Garrett County has offered its recent high school graduates a full tuition scholarship to study an academic program at Garrett College. In the summer of 2010, the Garrett County Commissioners extended the scholarship program, making it also available to the county's recent high school graduates who wish to study an occupational program through the College's Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division. Effective July 1, 2010, two scholarships are now available: Garrett County Occupational Scholarship (GCOS) and Garrett County Academic Scholarship (GCAS).

GARRETT COUNTY ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIP

What is the Garrett County Academic Scholarship?
The Academic Scholarship is the original Garrett County Scholarship Program created by the County Commissioners in 2006. The Academic Scholarship is a full tuition scholarship for Garrett County high school students who are interested in pursuing an academic degree or certificate program at Garrett College.

Who is Eligible?
Students who, within the most recent school year, graduated from Northern or Southern High Schools, students or adults who received their GED, or students who have completed a home-school program are all eligible. Other students may be eligible for the scholarship, including high school students who are dually enrolled at GC. For additional information on the eligibility for the scholarship, students and parents are encouraged to contact the Garrett College Financial Aid Office.

How do I apply?
Interested students may call 301-387-3057 or walk in to the GC Financial Aid Office to request an application. High School students may obtain an application from their high school guidance office. Applications are also available on the Garrett College website at www.garrettcollege.edu.

What Courses Qualify?
All of Garrett College's academic degree and certificate programs qualify for the Academic Scholarship.

What are the requirements for receiving the Academic Scholarship?
Students interested in receiving the Academic Scholarship must apply for the scholarship and the Free Application for Federal Student Aid. They also must maintain full-time status, taking 12 credits or more each semester (unless the student is dual enrolled). Students must maintain a 2.0 grade point average each semester. The scholarship covers tuition for a total of 64 credits, in addition to required developmental courses, but it will not pay for any repeated courses. Although students are not required to maintain continuous enrollment, students must complete the degree or certificate program within three years of the initial enrollment date.

Other conditions may apply. For additional information on the Garrett County Academic Scholarship, students are encouraged to contact the Financial Aid Office at 301-387-3057

GARRETT COUNTY OCCUPATIONAL SCHOLARSHIP

What is the Garrett County Occupational Scholarship?
The Occupational Scholarship is the second phase of the Garrett County Scholarship Program, created by the Garrett County Commissioners. The Occupational Scholarship provides training opportunities for students who are not interested in a degree but would like a course or program leading to industry-recognized certification.

Who is Eligible?
Students who, within the most recent school year, graduated from Northern or Southern High Schools, students or adults who received their GED, or students who have completed a home-school program are all eligible. For additional information on the eligibility for the scholarship, students and parents are encouraged to contact the GC Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division at 301-387-3069.

How do I apply?
Interested students may call 301-387-3069 or walk in to the GC Continuing Education and Workforce Development Office in McHenry to receive an application. High School students may obtain an application from their high school guidance office. Applications are also available on the Garrett College website at www.garrettcollege.edu.

What Courses Qualify?
The following courses qualify for the Occupational Scholarship: Office Skills, Small-Engine Repair; Medical Coding and Billing; Medical Transcription; Phlebotomy; Welding; Emergency Medical Technician- Basic (EMT B); Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA); Class A and B CDL, Underground Coal Mining; and Childcare Training.

What are the requirements for receiving the Occupational Scholarship?
Students interested in receiving the Occupational Scholarship must complete an application for the scholarship and apply for any other types of financial aid offered through GC's Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division. Students who qualify for and receive the scholarship must demonstrate competency at a satisfactory level in each course taken. The scholarship pays for required training courses in the occupational training program selected and may be applied to the cost of tuition, course materials, and certification testing fees. The scholarship will not pay for any repeated courses.

Other conditions may apply. For additional information on the Garrett County Occupational Scholarship, students are encouraged to contact the Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division at 301-387-3069.
